Violence flares in gas strike

A Teamsters Union strike against three oil companies turned violent on the mainland today as pickets broke windows and flattened tires on four Gulf Canada Ltd. tanker trucks.

Company spokesman Roy Carson said the incident occurred at Gulf's distribution plant in Burnaby as supervisory staff were moving the trucks across a picket line.

Rocks were hurled through the trucks' windows and tires were punctured with spikes.

"It was rather surprising because yesterday the union had said they were not interested in harassing service stations," Carson said.

He said the tankers were headed for stations in the Vancouver area.

The company will only continue its efforts to supply the gas stations if police protection is guaranteed, Carson added.

The other two companies involved, Chevron and Imperial, were also attempting to keep up with the burgeoning demand for gasoline but they were not bothered by pickets.

The truck drivers, warehousemen and office staff went on strike against Gulf Tuesday and Thursday their counterparts at the other two companies joined them on the picket lines.

Spokesmen for the companies in Victoria and Vancouver said motorists have started to panic unnecessarily.

Imperial is not involved in Victoria because the company doesn't operate its own trucks but contracts the work out.

Neither is Shell involved because their truck drivers belong to a different union.

Bob Dunsmuir, who runs a Shell station at 1321 Yates, said there shouldn't be any problem as long as people don't overreact.

He said cars were lined up at his station at 7 this morning.

One man showed up with a barrel to be filled and Dunsmuir turned him away saying such hording is unnecessary.

Chevron is continuing to deliver products to the gas stations in Victoria using supervisory help and a company spokesman said he didn't foresee any supply problem.

Gulf is making no effort to supply its Victoria stations and a company spokesman said the stations will likely run out this weekend.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier said Thursday there was a possibility public works employees would have to be laid off in order to leave enough gasoline for emergency vehicles.

However, he said today the municipality had been assured of the delivery of another 1,000 gallons and so there would be enough "for the near future."

The Teamsters union members are seeking parity with their counterparts in the transport industry who received a $2.12-an-hour wage increase in a two-year contract earlier this year, said one Gulf official.

Teamsters officials refuse to discuss the issues in the dispute.

Poll shows Petro-Can sale opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Almost half of Canada's voters think the Progressive Conservative government should not sell Petro-Canada, the government-owned oil company, to the private sector, a Gallup poll shows.

About 48 per cent of those surveyed said they disapprove of selling Petro-Canada while 22 per cent support the sale. Thirty per cent had no opinion.

Results are based on 3,052 personal home interviews with adults, 18 years and over, conducted in early July. A sample of this size should not vary more than three percentage points, at a 95-per-cent confidence level.

Opposition to the sale of Petro-Canada was greater in Western Canada, among those with university training and those who voted NDP or Liberal in the recent federal election.

The question asked in the poll was:

"There has been some talk recently about Petro-Can — the national oil company that is operating as a Canadian Crown corporation. In your opinion should Petro-Can be sold to the private sector — that is the non-government sector — or not?

"How strongly do you feel about this — very strongly, or not strongly at all?"

Major air safety probe launched by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — A public inquiry into the safety of civil aviation was announced today by Transport Minister Don Mazankowski to deal with public concern about air safety rules and procedures.

Mazankowski said in a statement he is calling for the public inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Charles Dubin of the Ontario Court of Appeal, because of aircraft accidents, critical press reports and a 1977 safety investigation report on commercial aviation in Ontario.

The minister said in an interview this criticism "doesn't augur well for a good environment for the travelling public."

It was "advisable to take an independent examination of this thing" to assure the public the air safety issue was being given a fair hearing. The inquiry would help him plan changes to the Aeronautics Act and establish an independent accident-investigation commission.

Mr. Justice Dubin is to report by Oct. 1, 1980.

He is to inquire into inspection and certification of the aircraft and conditions under which they may be used and operated. He also will look into the formulation and enforcement of laws, regulations and rules for air safety.

The commissioner also will examine how air accidents and incidents are reported and investigated, particularly the problem of small aircraft in remote areas and at airports without air traffic control.

A public inquiry, rather than an internal investigation, reflects the Progressive Conservative government's policy of responding to public concern in an open manner, the minister said.

Mazankowski said there is debate on details for his proposed independent accident investigation commission and Mr. Justice Dubin's inquiry should help.

Accidents such as a 1978 crash at Cranbrook and reports critical of air safety helped prompt him to call the public inquiry, the minister said.

Exclusive fishing rights to Indians

A provincial court ruling Thursday gives Indians exclusive right to control fishing in coastal rivers where they run through reserves.

The move is seen as an encouragement to Indian bands to pass control bylaws, and according to a legal adviser will affect access by sports fishermen.

It also will support a permanent conservation scheme on the Cowichan and Koksilah rivers, Indian spokesmen said today.

Chief Dennis Alphonse and economic development officer Wes Modeste, of the Cowichan band, hailed a provincial court decision at Lillooet granting the Bridge River band the rights to fish caught on that part of the river passing through the reserve.

The decision encourages Indians to move into management of fish stocks under authority of the Indian Act, by means of band bylaws, said Louise Mandell, counsel for the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

She said sports fishermen on reserves are already trespassing on property. "Now they are trespassing on the fish, too. It really makes sports fishermen completely out of bounds on reserves unless they are given the right by the band."

The Cowichan band is already in the second year of a salmon enhancement program financed by the federal fisheries department. Alphonse said his people are hoping to develop a permanent management scheme that will meet the needs of the band and satisfy conservation requirements.

Provincial court Judge William Diebolt pointed out federal fisheries conservation measures affect Indian rights to fish only in the absence of a coherent management program.

"I think it is a landmark decision," said Modeste, former chief of the Cowichan band. "Especially here in the Cowichan, where the river comes through the lands, the people have always maintained we have the right to the fish which come up the river. We've been here all the time."

Modeste said the Indians themselves are aware of the decline in fish stocks which has occurred in 80 years of commercial fishing in coastal waters. As a result of commercial harvesting, he said, chinook salmon stocks in the Cowichan are down about 90 per cent; chum salmon around 70 per cent and coho 80 per cent.

"That's the kind of depletion that's been taking place since 1900."

The ex-chief said the federal authorities have been told to "take your conservation measures elsewhere. We've always said preservation should be done on the saltchuck, not in the river."

Commercial fishermen take salmon by the ton out of the ocean, while in the Cowichan only about 100 Indians fish for food, Modeste said.

Koksilah and Cowichan reserves lie along three to four miles of the respective rivers just before they empty into Cowichan Bay.

From four to 30 persons are employed on full or part-time jobs in the program to restore stocks of fish in both rivers. Alphonse said results can be seen in chum runs and attention is now being directed to spring salmon.

Modeste said other major rivers on the island that could be affected by the court ruling are the Nanaimo, Qualicum and Campbell.

Trade surplus at $190M

OTTAWA (UPC) — Canada had a $190 million trade surplus during June when a sharp drop in exports was balanced by a similar drop in imports, Statistics Canada reported today.

The latest figures gave Canada a second quarter trade surplus of $492 million. The surplus through the first half of this year stood at $990 million, about half of the $1.86 billion surplus run up during the same period last year.

The figures, adjusted to remove seasonal fluctutations, showed that exports fell 6.1 percent — $310 million — to $4.8 billion in June. Exports had risen 4.8 percent in May although the surplus was only $215 million.

Nyerere speech fuels Rhodesia peace hope

Times News Services

LUSAKA — In a speech so conciliatory it left British diplomats staring in surprise, Tanzania today called for a cease-fire in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia and a new settlement that would include guarantees for its white minority.

Diplomats said the unexpectedly moderate speech by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, chairman of the five so-called "front-line" states backing the guerrilla war against the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government of Bishop Abel Muzorewa, could pave the way for a compromise on Rhodesia, the thorniest issue at the Commonwealth summit conference here.

Nyerere called for a cease-fire in the Zimbabwe-Rhodesian guerrilla war and new elections in which seats in parliament would be reserved for the white minority even "out of proportion to the numbers involved."

Alternatively, Nyerere suggested, a fund could be established to "buy the whites out peacefully."

Canada would be willing to join a team of international supervisors to monitor any new elections, according to Canadian Foreign Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald.

Nigeria, however, the biggest and richest African member, dismissed the idea, reviving fears it would quit the Commonwealth.

Nyerere's speech was so close in tone and position to that of Britain that diplomats who had been predicting a major confrontation over Zimbabwe-Rhodesia said they now believed a compromise would be reached to end the Commonwealth conference on an upbeat note.

For her part, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said that major changes in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia's constitution were needed along with a cease-fire and negotiations to reach a new settlement eliminating some of the powers now reserved for whites.

In the first such admission by an African leader, Nyerere conceded that the

$100,000 tab put on Socred error

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

The Social Credit government — after a seven-hour emergency session of the legislature — early this morning corrected a legislative error that had put a $25-million insurance company out of business for two days.

Premier Bill Bennett admitted the government made "a human error" but said he does not intend to stage a witchhunt to find the person responsible.

The emergency session — which may cost the taxpayers more than $100,000 — was called because the Seaboard Assurance Company Act, 1953, was mistakenly included in a list of 60 obsolete statutes being wiped off the books.

The error meant Seaboard Life, which carries out business across Canada but is chartered only in B.C., was no longer legally licensed.

A halt was placed on trading in Seaboard shares on the Vancouver Stock Exchange at the company's request.

Earlier fears about getting a quorum for the special legislative sitting were quickly relieved.

The mandatory 10-member quorum was easily fulfilled when 24 Socreds and 19 NDP members made it back for the legislative recall made by Lt.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving who had to return from a visit in the province's interior. The lawmakers had left on holidays only two days before.

Normally 31 Socreds and 26 NDP sit in the in the 57-seat assembly.

Bennett was forced to postpone an appearance at the opening of the B.C. Summer Games in Richmond, Opposition leader Dave Barrett was en route to San Diego, but flew back here from Vancouver.

Planes were sent to pick up MLAs from far and wide. A seaplane did a milk run, picking up Socred MLA Brian Smith on Hornby Island and NDP MLAs Karen Sanford in Comox and Don Lockstead in Powell River.

Some MLAs were incommunicado. Alan Passarel (NDP — Atlin) was somewhere over the Pacific near Hawaii and Colin Gabelmann (NDP — North Island) was on the West Coast Trail.

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria), who discovered the government gaffe, said the $100,000-plus cost of recalling the house does not include the price of any civil liability suits that might be launched against the government.

Total cost of the fiasco will not be known for some time. Government officials will have to compile the costs of sending airplanes out to collect MLAs, extras salaries for legislative staffs, and the price of running the legislature.

Israeli raiders strike South Lebanon bases

United Press International

Israeli troops launched their biggest search-and-destroy mission in eight months Friday, trekking silently past UN lines in darkness to attack two fortified Palestinian guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon.

Israeli gunboats and artillery followed up the assault by pounding a string of Lebanonese villages and Palestinian refugee camps, Beirut radio reported.

The Israeli command said troops of the crack Golani Brigade killed at least 10 guerrillas in their strike against the two bases 9 miles north of the frontier near the Lebanese village of Kawkaba. The Israelis said they suffered no casualties.

Leftist Lebanese militia and Palestinian officials said five men were killed and five others wounded in the 30-minute battle.

The assault marked the biggest action of its kind since Jan. 19, when two other guerrilla bases were attacked in the central sector of southern Lebanon. "It was not a minor raid," an Israeli spokesman said.

The attack, the second in about 10 days, came against a backdrop of growing U.S. annoyance with Israel's search-and-destroy policy and moves to limit Israel's use of American weapons in its war against the Palestinians.

The Israeli entered Lebanon on foot shortly after midnight Friday, a military spokesman said, and apparently were aided by their Christian allies who man a 6-mile-deep buffer strip between the Palestinians and the frontier.

The infantrymen walked past Norwegian UN troops, spokesmen for the Israelis Palestinians and Lebanese leftists said, and launched a surprise attack against the first base but were spotted and fired on by guerrillas at the second one.

The bases, defended with bunkers and part of a chain of guerrilla posts strung along the northern perimeter of the buffer strip, belonged to Al Fatah, a major component of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the Israelis said.

Beirut radio reported Israeli artillery and gunboats shelled southern Lebanon, setting afire an ammunition dump in one Palestinian refugee camp.

Blazing supertanker sinks

ROTTERDAM (Reuter) — The supertanker Atlantic Empress, still afire after a collision in the Caribbean two weeks ago, sank in a mass of blazing oil late Thursday and became the biggest ship ever lost, salvage and insurance officials said today.

Insurers of the vessel, which had a deadweight of 292,666 tons, said its cargo of 275,000 tons of crude oil was also the largest ever lost from a single ship.

An official of the Dutch salvage company trying to save the Atlantic Empress said the tanker sank about 560 kilometres (350 miles) from Tobago as blazing oil cascaded into the air.

The insurers, Lloyds of London, said the financial loss appeared to be the heaviest ever sustained by the company, possibly amounting to $85 million.

Lloyds said the previous two largest vessels to have become total losses were the Liberian steam tanker Olympic Bravery, 277,599 tons, and the Liberian motor tanker Amoco Cadiz, 233,690.

4 climbers die in Rockies' accidents

CALGARY (CP) — RCMP said Thursday four mountain climbers died Wednesday in three separate incidents in the Rocky Mountains.

Two men died when they plunged about 600 metres from Mount Bowlen near Lake Louise in Banff National Park.

Another man died when he fell from Mount Assiniboine in Mt. Assiniboine Provincial Park.

A fourth mountain climber died in Jasper National Park.

Names and other details were not released.

U.K. travel holdups feared

LONDON (Reuter) — British customs officers began a work-to-rule campaign today which may lead to long delays at sea ports and air terminals during the busiest vacation weekend of the summer.

There were few holdups at the start of the action in protest against government plans to cut 1,800 customs jobs this year, but Roy Watts, chief executive at British Airways, said the airline is concerned.

"Airline resources are already strained to the limit with exceptionally heavy traffic," Watts said. "We fear delays due to the work to rule may cause ugly scenes and public disorder at Heathrow Airport."

Customs officers say they are already understaffed. In protest at the proposed cuts they are stepping up detailed searches of passengers, luggage and cargo.

There will be more spot checks and petty infringements of customs regulations will be dealt with strictly, a union official said.

Senator runs store as Joe tours Africa

Canada will have a non-elected prime minister next week. Sen. Jacques Flynn, whose plans for semi-retirement were interrupted by his appointment as justice minister following the May 22 federal election, serves as acting prime minister because of Joe Clark's African travels. Walter Baker, Conservative house leader, normally is Clark's stand-in, but is going on vacation next week.

When Gilda Radner made her Broadway debut Thursday night she portrayed, among other characters, her famous "nerd," Lisa Loopner, and while no one can say for certain that Lisa helped popularize the word, Walter Glanze said Thursday that he had decided, just last month, to add "nerd" to the paperback edition of the Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary, of which he is managing editor. " 'Nerd' has been around for about 15 years," he said, "but I notice it's being used with increasing frequency, especially among 18- to 25-year-olds." The dictionary, shipped to bookstores this week, lists "nerd" as a noun meaning a "gauche, tacky or uncool person; creep."

Former U.S. Navy officer turned businessman Edward Murphy says "It's time we had some fun with it." It wasn't much fun at the time, "it" being Murphy's capture by North Korean forces in 1968 when he was executive officer of the spy ship USS Pueblo. Murphy, 42, now sells recreational vehicles in El Cajon, Calif., and that's how he's "having fun" with his past. He distributes ballpoint pens bearing the slogan "Go Camping — Buy From the Spy." He hopes to launch radio jingles and licence-plate holders with the inscription, although, he said, "You'd be surprised how many people don't even remember the Pueblo."

One of the state senators who helped oust Jane Fonda from the California Arts Council says the anti-Fonda lawmakers would reconsider if Miss Fonda will "change her spots." Sen. Paul Carpenter told reporters in Sacramento "many senators would be willing" to change the vote (28-5 against her) if Miss Fonda will publicly apologize to former POWs for her anti-war trip to Hanoi, and to the solons for accusing them of "McCarthyism." From Miss Fonda: No reply.

A federal judge in Trenton, N.J. has temporarily banned distribution of the soundtrack of Sylvester Stallone's film Rocky II because four singers charge they have not received proper credit as songwriters for the film and album. The singers, known as The Variations, sang in both the film and the album. They receive credit as singers but they claim they also wrote two songs — Nanonie and Two Kinds of Love. The album and movie credits say the writer for those songs was Frank Stallone, brother of the star.

And finally, an unexpected character shows up in the Buck Rogers film being made by NBC-TV. Gil Geraro, playing the spaceman of the 25th century readers of Sunday comics of the 1930s, is aided by an aged rocket ship pilot. "Good shooting," says Geraro-Rogers."I was doing this before you were born," snaps the old timer, identified as "Brigadier Gordon." And so he was. That's Buster Crabbe, who 40 years ago played both Rogers and that other space hero, Flash Gordon, in serials. Crabbe, now 71, said Thursday was the first time he had been on Universal Studios' lot since he last played Gordon — in 1940. As Gordon explains to that whippersnapper Rogers in one scene: "I come from another era."

U.S. ends border screening of gays

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Thursday it will no longer use homosexuality as a reason for denying aliens entry into the United States.

U.S. Surgeon-General Julius B. Richmond said he has directed his staff to cease classifying homosexuality as a "mental disease or defect."

He said immigration and consular officials will be notified of the policy change and ordered to end their referrals of suspected homosexuals to the Public Health Service for screening.

"Effective this date, Public Health Service medical officers, civil surgeons and panel physicians will no longer certify that homosexuality per se is a mental disease or defect," Richmond wrote.

"Quarantine inspectors will no longer issue medical holds on aliens suspected solely of being homosexual."

Richmond said the revision will "reflect current and generally accepted canons of medical practice with respect to homosexuality" and pointed out that homosexuality cannot be determined through a medical diagnostic procedure.

Call off mercy fleet: Viets

Times News Services

Vietnam demanded Thursday that the United States call off efforts by the 7th Fleet to rescue Vietnamese refugees in the South China Sea, charging the U.S. Operation was a "show of force" and that it incited further "illegal departures."

The U.S. government rejected the Vietnamese contention, saying the ships were on a "humanitarian mission" and the rescue efforts would continue.

The dispute underscored the extent to which the refugees' plight has become bound up in political issues, often hampering efforts to rescue and resettle them.

In denouncing the U.S. rescue efforts, the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry accused the 7th Fleet's task force of "inciting and encouraging the illegal departure of Vietnamese and hindering international efforts to implement" provisions of a July 20-21 Geneva conference on Indochinese refugees.

"This move by the U.S. fleet is also aimed at staging a show of force so as to create tension in Southeast Asia and jeopardize peace in this region," said the statement, broadcast by Hanoi Radio.

Meanwhile, officials in Hong Kong say they believe that no Vietnamese refugees were lost at sea when Typhoon Hope lashed that British colony Thursday.

Earlier, there were fears for the safety of 400 or more "boat people" refused permission to land in the Portuguese colony of Macao. They were towed to international waters from the colony on the Chinese mainland 65 kilometres across the Pearl River estuary from Hong Kong.

A Macao police spokesman said three boats carrying 445 persons were towed to sea on Wednesday afternoon. "Typhoon signal No. 1 (early warning) was hoisted in Macao four hours after we sent the three boats out," the spokesman said.

"The refugees had more than enough time to arrive in Hong Kong before the typhoon reached this zone," he said.

Asked what he believes happened to the refugees, he replied: "We believe they arrived in Hong Kong the same (Wednesday) evening."

In Hong Kong, a spokesman for the Government Information Service said it is "almost certain the boats in question were the ones which arrived in Hong Kong on the night of Aug. 1."

But marine police are continuing patrols in local waters.

U.S. charter giant in strike turmoil

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — More than 1,000 World Airways pilots, flight attendants and mechanics went on strike early today after working without a contract for 13 months.

Brian Cooke, World's senior vice-president, said an unknown number of workers began picketing World Airways headquarters in Oakland at midnight Thursday night.

"At this point, we have no idea what the impact of the strike will be," Cooke said. "We plan to operate flights Friday, but I don't know which departures will be affected."

Union negotiators could not be reached for comment.

The Civil Aeronautics Board had said in the event of a strike, other domestic and foreign airlines will be allowed to pick up stranded World Airways passengers.

The board also said cargo from World's all-cargo flights can be carried in available space on other charter flights.

The Seaboard affair

Rest assured, British Columbia. The province's reputation for political zaniness is secure after yesterday's legislative comedy show to resuscitate the Seaboard Life Insurance Co. of Vancouver.

What other province ever accidentally wiped out an active business, with several hundred shareholders and thousands of policyholders across Canada, and then had to call the legislature back just two days after it adjourned for the summer?

Canadians on the other side of the Rockies may have wondered what's happened out here. The political scene has been unusually quiet and sedate for the last few years. The colorful, bombastic politicians of former years, like W.A.C. Bennett and Phil Gaglardi, are gone from the main stage. Even former premier Dave Barrett, who seemed to make the headlines every other week when the NDP was in office, is now a quiet and sober political leader who wears a sensible blue suit.

But the affair of the Obsolete Statutes Repeal Act has abruptly reversed the trend.

Of course, it has more than just comic elements to it. The scrapping of the Seaboard Assurance Act of 1953, among 53 other redundant statutes, had serious ramifications for the Vancouver-based company.

Legally, for two days it did not exist and could not carry on normal business. Trading in Seaboard shares had to be suspended on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. When the news got out, many policyholders were rightly worried about their insurance coverage.

The goof also raised questions about the government. When Premier Bill Bennett established the deregulation department last December to cut red tape and bureaucratic delays, most praised it as a sincere effort to streamline the government. But more and more it has taken on the coloring of a public relations venture, and the Seaboard affair will live forever as its most ambitious attempt at simplifying things. It also may have scuttled the department for good.

British Columbians, especially businessmen and lawyers, will also wonder about the quality of the civil servants who prepared the legislation which sent Seaboard down the tube. It went through half a dozen stages in the government, all of them supervised by trained legal hands, and apparently nobody checked carefully enough to discover the actual effects of repealing the 26-year-old law.

Nobody is reassured by the government's remedy, to simply repeal the repeal act, thus reinstating all 54 old laws. Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, who is also deregulation minister, said the government wants to make sure such a thing will not happen again. Exactly. What other sleeping time bombs are hiding in the deregulation ministry?

Politically, too, the foul-up leaves the Bennett administration with a lot of egg on its face, no matter that it was blamed on honest, human error. Coming on the heels of a series of equally embarrassing cabinet squabbles, it gives the impression of a government coming apart at the seams.

It does not, as MLA Charles Barber claimed last night, "betray a cabinet in chaos, a government in disarray," preoccupied with its own internal problems and political infighting. Bennett's cabinet will be known henceforth as "the government that pushed Seaboard overboard." Somehow the traditional Socred refrain of efficient, businesslike government will not sound the same again.

A handle to hang it on

The addition of a handle to a case of beer has the breweries engaged in a frantic promotion campaign. They appear to believe that this amazing reform is the best thing since the invention of frosted corn flakes or tea bags.

On one company's familiar blue box, the new attachment is colored a contrasting bright red and if you still don't see it, the word "handle" is printed across it in big block letters. Isn't that helpful?

Another brand of brew practices a little oneupmanship. Its boxes have a handle — and are also divided like egg cartons to keep the bottles separate. No more fumbling with the empties falling over flat.

All the hoohaw might be good for something if the beer companies could honestly take credit for a genuine improvement, but didn't the same breweries get rid of the handle a few years back to save money and make things easier for their box-making machinery?

It was a good idea then, and it's nice of the breweries to bring it back, but please excuse the imbibers who aren't too hearty with praise after watching a dozen brown bottles rip away from their grasp on the way out of the liquor store.

How things work in Africa

LUSAKA, Zambia — The visitor comes to understand the way things work in Africa is that they don't. Not very well.

Thus, Canadians gathering at their high commissioner's residence for a cocktail party for Joe Clark and the Canadian delegation to the commonwealth conference tell visitors with a kind of perverse glee how they wait a year and a half to get their telephones repaired.

It's the same for plumbing, electricity, machinery, transportation . . . The Canadian visitors themselves have found out what it is like to get around Lusaka: impossible.

Taxis don't come, chartered buses don't show up, or they break down, police snarl the traffic that does move by sweeping the roads clear of vehicles whenever a dignitary goes on the move.

Stacks of bumf

The commonwealth secretariat announces that all the special long-distance telephone lines, special soundproof booths for radio reporters, telex and wirephoto machines have been located in Mulungushi Hall, where the conference is being held. Then Zambian security forces declare the hall off-limits to press.

The other telexes and long distance lines are at the National institute for public administration, miles away. And the transportation . . .

All this is by way of introduction to the one interesting little pamphlet handed out by the Zambian government and commonwealth secretariat in amongst the stacks and stacks of bumf and purple rhetoric for the conference.

It is called Why Zambia Re-opened the Southern Railway.

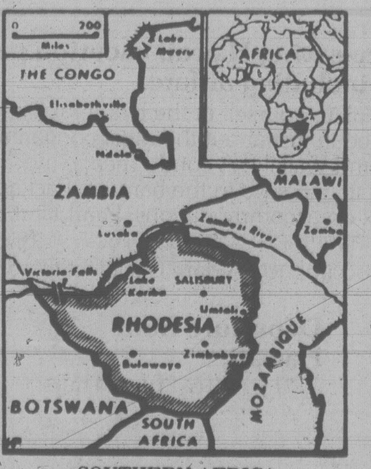
It is about the horrible problems Zambia experienced between Jan. 9, 1973 — when it closed its border with Rhodesia, thus severing southern rail and road links — and Oct. 6, 1978, when it was forced to re-open the railway or face economic disaster.

Zambia is landlocked. With the Rhodesian route to the sea closed, and one or two other lesser routes out of commission, the route to Dar Es Salaam via road and the Chinese-built Tazara Railway became the critical transportation artery: By 1976 more than 80 per cent of Zambia's exports and imports were moving through Dar Es Salaam.

But with what efficiency?

Tazara started full operations in August, 1976. Its expected capacity from Zambia to Dar Es Salaam was 80,000 tonnes per month in either direction. The best achievement was only about half that figure.

Out of 1,800 railway cars, only 1,450 were serviceable: The rest were in workshops, and out of 85 mainline locomotives, only 39 were serviceable when the government made the decision to re-open the southern route.



SOUTHERN AFRICA
. . . Zambia locked in by Rhodesia

The target for railway car turnaround time was 22 days. In fact, it was averaging between 35 and 45 days.

On the Tanzam highway, the transporter is Zambia Tanzania Road Services, a company owned jointly by the two governments and an Italian firm called Intersomer.

The ZTRS operational fleet on the Tanzam highway was 180 trucks out of 520 — the rest were in workshops awaiting repair.

This was partly because of inexperienced mechanics. It was also in part because ZTRS, lacking foreign exchange, could not purchase replacement vehicles or spare parts. Shortage of foreign exchange also caused ZTRS subcontractors to cancel their contractual arrangements because of the difficulty they had in repatriating their earnings from Zambia in convertible currencies.

Next, problems at the port of Dar Es Salaam. Because of the slowness of Tazara and ZRTS in moving goods destined for Zambia out of Dar Es Salaam, the port area had to be used for storage, a function for which it was not intended.

This congestion further slowed cargo handling and general administration, leading to a steadily decreasing volume of cargo handled by Dar longshoremen — from 61 tonnes average per shift in 1974 to 41 tonnes average per shift in 1978.

It also increased the average number of days ships waiting to load or unload Zambian cargo had to hang about before they got berthing space — an average of 30 or more days at demurrage charges of $3,000 per day per ship.

Ferry bottleneck

The upshot of all this was that there was no way the fertilizer Zambia desperately needed for its planting season could make it in time through the port of Dar Es Salaam. So it was decided to bring the fertilizer in via the port of Beira in Mozambique.

Only for one reason or another the trucks that were needed didn't show up and the port administration got jammed and nothing moved. So it was decided to bring fertilizer in via another port — the Mozambiquan capital of Maputo — and move it by rail to Zambia via Botswana.

Only the promised facilities for offloading the rail cars at the Botswana transshipment point could not be made available and the trucks to pick up the fertilizer at the point didn't materialize. And someone hadn't calculated how much of a bottleneck a ferry on the road route would be.

So it was decided to open the rail route to Rhodesia, and bring in fertilizer via that route. Which is what happened.

This isn't a new story. But the details are interesting. These are Africa's problems.

Squeezed out

Re your recent editorial Stuck Record (July 13), and the ensuing correspondence from Messrs. Geddes (Support Mayhew, July 21) and Wheaton (Back Up Mayhew, July 20). One gathers that Geddes speaks for the population at large, which I question, and from Wheaton that the Victoria area has been suffering from the blight for the past 30 years and is a deserted village.

I am not altogether qualified to give an objective rebuttal to their remarks in as much as I was "squeezed" out of my home by a developer and had to leave Victoria, not because I wanted to but because a developer required my property to enhance his holdings and annual income.

I am not going to suggest to Geddes that he return to Alberta. However, I fail to read anything remotely resembling common sense in his remarks. Furthermore, if some of the developments that have been perpetrated in these parts over the past ten years were "sensible and well planned," I would like to see them! Condominiums where [illegible]de no difference where you were [illegible]ated, everyone heard your every conversation, and no matter who in the building flushed the toilet everyone else heard it — sensible and well planned all right!

A developer from the "Wild Rose Country" erected an out and out monstrosity in the downtown area some years ago and the city fathers found it a near impossibility to prevail upon him to clean up the site when the structure was complete.

I would ask Mr. Wheaton to clarify his statements with some facts regarding the local stagnation he speaks of. From where I sit development has brought vast change in Victoria and the outlying areas over the past 30 years. Not all of it good. We had a period when it was almost out of control, witness some of the near-instant slums that were constructed a few years ago.

Mayhew's statement that 1,000 workers could have had jobs for 11 months if the projects he enumerates could have had the go ahead also seems a little flimsy. As I recall, when he arrived, he was going to bring in various types of business as well as light industry.

One gets somewhat out of patience with the cry of "Red tape halts big development" when in many cases people are merely standing up for their rights. While some of the developers get annoyed when hey are not allowed to do just what they think is good in any situation, i.e. "What Bullmoose thinks is good is good for the entire area." And no comments allowed from anyone! — W. A. Drummond, Duncan.

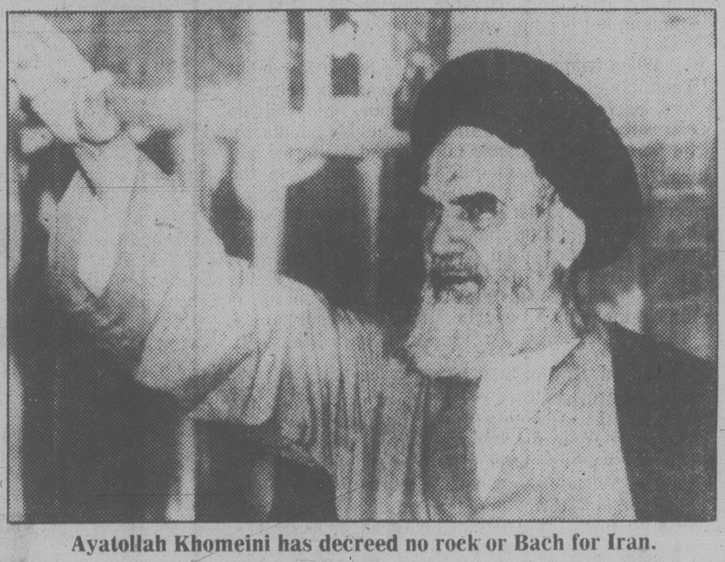
Running wild

While I am an admirer of dogs, I am fed up with their running uncontrolled in our parks and on public beaches. On several occasions recently my young children have been chased and badly frightened by large, barking animals whose owners seemed amazed that anyone should object to their dogs running free on public land.

If we allowed our children to terrorize strangers and defecate in public places, there would be an immediate protest. Why should we tolerate such behavior from dogs?

All Victoria municipalities should have bylaws requiring any dogs walked on public property to be leashed and owners to collect any messes left by their pets.

If this issue also concerns you, speak to your aldermen. — M. Brigden, 3195 Norfolk Road.



Ayatollah Khomeini has decreed no rock or Bach for Iran.

No rock for Iran

I have just learned Ayatollah Khomeini wishes to silence Bach and rock, the latest in a long series of proposals he has made to imprison life within the strictures of his dogma.

Now he is a Moslem, with a desire to have his country live according to the laws of the Koran, laws which encompass the whole range of social and moral behavior. As a devout believer he no doubt has a particular conception of a Creator, one who presumably would demand that he execute all traitors, flog all adulterers, sever the hands of thieves, cover the faces of Iran's women and mute Beethoven's piano.

Is He who created this cosmos that tyrannical and prudish? Somehow I doubt it. This killing of what is free, sensuous and poetic surely pronounces the impoverishment of His imagination. Mohammed the prophet instituted his revelations because at that time the Arab people needed to be unified, needed to root themselves in a common mythology and tradition. Only by a highly repressive and fundamentalist doctrine of morality could such a cohesiveness be created amidst Arab civilization. But as the final statement of the character of God, such precepts nowadays lag far behind the unfolding of His mysterious and wondrously aesthetic script.

I ask the Ayatollah to exalt what he has abased — the potential for human beings to master their fate and discover a relationship with the universe that begins to account for the playfulness of Picasso, the humour of Chaplin, the skill of Pele, the intensity of Aeschylus, the serenity of Buddha, the brilliance of Michelangelo, the sensitivity of Mozart — and, indeed, the charisma of Mohammed. Whether there is a God or not, we must above all recognize that religious feeling attains its apotheosis in the celebration of what has expressed itself most beautifully, most subtly, most imaginatively — there is where eternity breathes. — Robin W. Carlsen, 1225 Sunnyside Avenue.

Stand on guard

I am at least one Canadian who is not in hysterical acquiescence to the imminent influx of the Boat People.

First of all, I would remind fellow Christians that the Good Samaritan did not take his protege home with him. I have a friend who was a missionary in Ethiopia for 23 years. She says that the only real solution is to help them in their own milieu. Another friend was with human resources in British Columbia for many years in a supervisory capacity. She too confirms this, in view of the heartbreak she has seen among refugees, some of whom were never able to adjust to their new environment.

Let us be truly humane where the refugees are concerned. We are on an emotional binge and had better slow down and think before we do irreparable damage.

At this time it is irrelevant what race, color or creed immigrants may be. The fact is, we can't afford any more population for the following reasons:

The first is energy consumption. At the present time we are being told we need to resort to nuclear power, despite the threat it may pose to our very existence. Some eastern Canadians pay as much as $300 a month just to heat their homes.

Second, two-thirds of our vast area is desert covered with ice and snow much of the year, making it necessary to import most of our food.

Thirdly, at the present time we have the highest unemployment rate in the Western world, and our own economy will soon reflect that of our neighbor to the south where a depression is pending.

Fourth, government spending is the major cause of inflation, and this refugee program will be very expensive.

Fifthly, it has been brought to my attention by a sponsor of the first group of "boat people" to arrive in Victoria that many have intestinal parasites. Despite this, they are employed in the handling of food. This makes one wonder if bubonic plague and smallpox might be a problem later on, along with other maladies heretofore unknown on this continent.

I resent the implication of some that I am a racist because I wish to sing "O, Canada, we stand on guard for thee," and to act accordingly.

Let us apply reason and care to an emotional problem. — Sydney Carroll, 4657 Amblewood Drive.

HAWAII: It's paradise, but with all the trimmings

By DAVE SMITH

(This summer marks the 20th anniversary of statehood for Hawaii. These two stories marking the event were written by reporters for the Los Angeles Times)

Aerial view of high-rises with skyscraper hotels along Waikiki Beach on right

HONOLULU — "Look at people's faces," said the young man, gesturing at the tourist crowds browsing past the shop windows. "They just don't look very happy."

True. There was talking and laughter from the locals, familiar with and thus unignited by Waikiki's much-advertised tourist charms, but what of all those brightly dressed newcomers, those silent couples wandering through the strenuous carnival gaiety?

And still, after a few days and long, languid evenings on the beach at Waikiki, one begins to accumulate a sense of shared feelings behind those eyes — feelings of easy reassurance, of waiting, of vague disappointment, mild chagrin . . .

Can it be that this is the place where they say to go to get away from it all — but it's all here, too?

A 50ish couple from Michigan are a bit taken aback at being asked if Hawaii is anything like they expected. "Well, it's absolutely beautiful," the woman says. "But it isn't quite like I imagined . . ."

"Our hotel is terrific," the man says. "We rung up room service when we got in, and the food was excellent."

"Oh yes," she agrees. "It's a nice hotel, very comfortable. But, I don't know, I guess I just expect it to be less commercial. I mean, it's just paradise, but I guess I thought it would be more like a different country, sort of . . ."

Now observing its 20th anniversary of statehood, Hawaii is the affordable paradise of the North American dream — whether habitual long-weekend redoubt of the affluent or Shangri-la on the instalment plan for the less well-heeled.

Once a sovereign nation unto itself, with ancient and quite different customs of its own, it remains today an odd mixture — one hesitates at "blend" — of the foreign and familiar.

What is native and exotic about Hawaii is everywhere obvious, sometimes smoothed out and spruced up for the tourist trade, so that even the most timorous traveller may thrill with mild adventure and yet know that steak dinners and American plumbing are never more than a heartbeat away. One can almost forget, in the heart of Waikiki, that the Hawaiians were here before Hyatt and Sheraton.

The administration of Gov. George Ariyoshi gives tourism top priority on the state's developmental agenda, and the Honolulu-Waikiki urban area — where 80 per cent of the state's people live and work — depends upon tourism to a degree that alarms many proponents of a broader-based, more diversified economy. Waikiki, after a construction slump a few seasons back, is booming again, with even the Royal Hawaiian and the Halekulani — those venerable hostelries of unhurried grace — giving way this year to multi-storey expansions.

It is about 9 p.m. and the trade winds have lulled to a light breeze across Waikiki's Kalakaua Avenue. If the air were still, it might be a bit too warm, a bit too humid, but with this fluid breeze it is a perfect open-shirt evening, the air a fragrant elixir giving one the illusion — rather like a third mai tai — of being unwound and recharged at the same time.

The shops are open until 11, the bars till 2 and the cabarets till 4, so people have blossomed on to the nighttime streets to check out the action. Seasoned tourists and locals, skins ranging from gold to tan to leather, lounge about like indolent old pros among the fresh crops of baby-pink arrivals whose orchid and plumeria leis and matching muu-muu and aloha shirt ensembles are badges of their novitiate status in Paradise.

While it might be argued that the Hawaiian Islands were taken over by a succession of newcomers, a reading of Hawaiian history also gives an impression that its people virtually gave themselves away for the asking, unwittingly and out of pure good nature.

The Hawaiian archipelago developed into a homogeneous Polynesian culture unaffected by the rest of the world, its people as splendidly adapted as dolphins to their generous natural environment. From both sea and land they fed themselves at their ease, working as much as they needed, playing as much as they wanted, warring occasionally to exercise feelings of expansionism and local pride.

They were nature-worshipers who revered an extensive pantheon of gods as well as their own living and departed royalty, and when the diligent missionaries of early 19th-century New England brought them the Christian gospel, they found the Hawaiians so amiable, pliable, and intensely religious that they already appeared 95 per cent ready for conquest by salvation.

As decades passed, the Hawaiians readily accepted the church, enthusiastically adopted the mores of American and European visitors and, as the 19th century ended, gracefully accepted the role of a U.S. territory. Much of the respect formerly allotted to the old rulers passed, as if by divine right, to the paternalistic businessmen who took over vast tracts of Hawaiian land and began to build the sugar and pineapple plantations that were the early cornerstone of its economy.

The early mainland pioneers to the islands brought two things with them that had long-lasting effects on the native Hawaiians: new diseases, which from 1778 to 1876 reduced the native population from 400,000 to 53,900, and the Puritan work ethic, an arduous moral concept with which the natives were ill-equipped and disinclined to deal, since the demands of their natural environment had always been so easy.

And so, to supplement the insufficient work force of Hawaiians on the spreading sugar cane and pineapple plantations, began the massive importation of industrious Chinese and Japanese fieldhands, already accustomed to this hard labor, who worked as virtual indentured servants under strict three-year contracts before they were free to set themselves up in small businesses of their own. In later years would come Samoans, Koreans and Filipinos, adding to the general impression of a melting-pot society — and indeed often intermarrying and taking on new identities as double-hyphenated citizens — but also preparing the ground for a stratification of society that would, in the 1960s and '70s, sometimes result in an ethnocentricity that bears some of the earmarks of de facto racism.

In the years following the First World War, the United States built up a massive military establishment in this outpost to the Orient, until the military and federal budget for Hawaii was by far the islands' greatest source of income. Further, the military presence created yet another, rather more encapsulated, subculture which in some ways resembled a force of occupation among colonials. Friction between the locals and military remains great to this day.

When Hawaii became a state in 1959, it had long been accustomed to a paternalistic economy in which the government was overwhelmingly the chief source of revenue, with agriculture and tourism a distant second and third. No longer a territorial dependency, its institutions supported by the parent government in Washington, Hawaii as a state had to assume financial responsibility for many institutions it formerly was given. Thus began the hunt for a tax base as a source of revenue for state services, and thus began the earnest cultivation of the tourist industry, which quickly shouldered government and agriculture aside and became Hawaii's chief revenue source.

"There was a time," says one woman, Japanese-Hawaiian, a social worker who asks anonymity, "when Hawaii really was the melting-pot that some people still say it is. That was before the Second World War, even into the 1950s. But after statehood, it seems like people suddenly became aware of prizes to be gone after. Everybody got very ambitious . . . upwardly mobile . . . greedy, if you will. And suddenly, people began elbowing their way ahead, nudging people aside, moving in on political office, the jobs, social position. And then the tourists really started pouring in. So the cost of living started to go up, and that meant that the ambitious ones really began to profit, while people who just continued to live in a casual, day-to-day existence began to slip down and down and down.

"Maybe it's inevitable. But it makes me so sad to see Hawaii get pulled into the ratrace . . ."

"There is no doubt that statehood was the beginning of the end of the 'old Hawaii.' Foreign capital began investing here, and competition for this prosperity began to get pretty keen."

The Hanohano family, an old Hawaiian clan, is remarkably luckier than most.

Descended through their mother's family from Queen Emma, consort of King Kalakaua, the family today consists of 12 brothers and five sisters, ranging from 55 to 36, with 104 offspring among them, many now parents themselves.

Early in the 19th century, King Kamehameha I gave the present Hanohanos' great-grandfather a 79-acre konahiki, or land grant, at Punaluu, on Oahu's windward side. It reaches from the top of a small mountain to the surf.

The 17 Hanohanos, most of whom have jobs elsewhere about Oahu, formed a family corporation, Hanohano Enterprises, to manage the property, with the next-youngest, Robert, 38, as president.

After 12 years of existence, the family corporation now grosses nearly $70,000 per year — on leases from two large condominiums on their oceanfront, from plumeria and crown flowers that they raise for leis, and from five one-acre ponds from which they harvest Malaysian freshwater prawns.

The family plans to develop 30 one-acre ponds to harvest prawns and a bass-like hybrid carp called tilapia. But that is just part of the plan.

"We also want to develop this property into something that will show what Hawaiian history and Hawaiian life was really like" says Robert. "Our own family has intermarried, of course, and Dad was a Catholic, and Mother was an Episcopalian, and some of us are Mormon, and I'm a born-again Christian. I mean, you name it, we've got it, the whole works. But we identify ourselves as Hawaiians. And we know we have been very lucky.

"But Hawaiians are very proud people. They had a good life, with their own customs and traditions. And although it may seem strange, I can see why many of them would rather be on welfare than take menial jobs serving tourists and sweeping up after them, washing their dishes . . .

"What we hope to do is develop a kind of place where we could employ Hawaiians to show people here on this land what it was like in the early days — how Hawaiians worked, how they managed the fishponds, how they grew crops....

"The Hawaiians lived well, before the rest of the world discovered them, you know."

The politics of racism

By WILLIAM ENDICOTT

HONOLULU — In one of the early years of Hawaii's political existence as a state, a candidate won a local office on the Big Island without ever once discussing an issue but by telling a bad joke about a blind mule.

"He told that same joke 29 times and he led the ticket," Carla Coray, Hawaii's Republican national committeewoman, recalled the other day. "That was his whole campaign."

Politics here has grown considerably more sophisticated since those days and now is chock-full of consultants, advisers and slick television campaigns, just like the mainland

Gov. George R. Ariyoshi and Honolulu Mayor Frank Fasi, for instance, each spent hundreds of thousands of dollars on TV advertising in a bitter Democratic primary campaign last year which Ariyoshi won.

But the state's island character — and its isolation from the rest of the U.S. — lends itself to insulation and provincialism, and Hawaii politics retains a large measure of both.

"There's a preoccupation with politics here you don't find in many other places," Stuart G. Brown, a professor of American studies at the University of Hawaii, said.

"Politics is the politics of growth. The issues of how the land is going to be used affects everybody. All you have to do is go up in the hills and you can see the whole damn works."

In a state noted for its unusual racial and ethnic composition, however, the politics of growth also can be the politics of subtle racism.

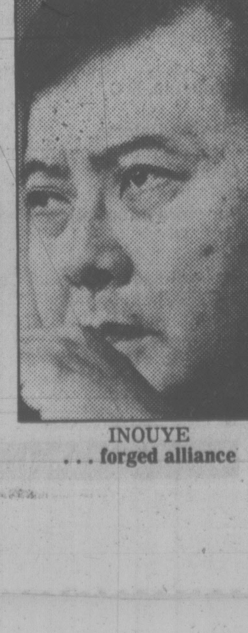
Few people will admit openly to it. It has never been socially acceptable to be racially prejudiced in Hawaii, which enjoys an image of multi-racial goodwill. But appeals to ethnicity, more than anything else, have changed the face of Hawaiian politics in the 20 years since statehood.

- Japanese-Americans who flocked to the Democratic Party after the Second World War now exercise almost total domination over island politics.
- The predominantly Caucasian Republican Party has been reduced to what one university political scientist described as "a joke."
- A resurgence of native Hawaiian cultural pride is helping to sustain strong feelings against the immigration of haoles, a pejorative Hawaiian word referring to mainland whites.

Japanese-Americans no longer are in the population majority here, having been passed by Caucasians, but they still boast the largest single voting bloc, an estimated 42 per cent of the total registration.

In last year's gubernatorial primary, which showed the major political conflicts here to be a result of Democratic factionalism, Mayor Fasi's appeal was to many of the out-of-power ethnic minorities — native Hawaiians, Filipinos and Samoans, for instance — and mainland newcomers who saw in him a chance to break the Japanese-American political hold on the state.

"You hear people say the governor, the lieutenant governor, the president of the state senate, the Speaker of the House, the president of the University of Hawaii, the two U.S. senators, most of the state's judges are Japanese," a Fasi aide said. "And they want to see an end to that kind of control."



INOUYE
. . . forged alliance

Robert C. Oshiro, longtime chairman of the Democratic Party here and an Ariyoshi ally, said such talk is used because "the fastest way to turn votes is racism and we have seen some politicians do that."

A cornerstone of Ariyoshi's administration, on the other hand, has been an emphasis on limiting population through various restrictions against outsiders, including a residency requirement for welfare and government jobs.

And former Lt. Gov. Thomas P. Gill, who lost to Ariyoshi's predecessor and political patron, John A. Burns, in the 1970 gubernatorial primary, said the governor's efforts to limit growth are "a form of ethnic shorthand, whether it's racism or something called 'localism.'"

While Ariyoshi talked about growth limits, a politically popular position, in his last campaign, he drew heavily on developers and builders for campaign contributions, Gill said.

"The rhetoric on limiting growth was a way of telling the Japanese-Americans they'd better get auntie and grandma and everybody else out to vote, else the machine crumbles."

Michael Haas, a political scientist at the University of Hawaii, put it more bluntly. He said the racial issue pervades politics and campaigns here, just as it pervades life in Hawaii.

"The focus on keeping out 'outsiders' constitutes the throwing down of a racial gauntlet . . ." he said.

To understand the complex racial nature of Hawaii politics, however, it is necessary to understand the philosophical crusade from which the Democratic Party grew.

From the time the Hawaiian monarchy was overthrown in 1893 and Hawaii became a U.S. territory seven years later, power was in the hands of an elite ruling class under the banner of the Republicans.

The state's five major companies, known as the Big Five, controlled everything for years — land, banks, courts, politics, the newspapers. Discrimination against native Hawaiians and the immigrant sons and daughters of sugar and pineapple plantation workers was a fact of life. They were shut out of the political process.

"Wherever you have a so-called oligarchy, you're bound to have the grass-roots people developing a sense of resentment, a frustration, the anger and everything else," Oshiro said.

That frustration finally manifested itself in political action after World War II, when hundreds of Japanese-Americans returned home to Hawaii after serving in Europe in the much-decorated Nisei 442nd Infantry Regimental Combat Team. Daniel Inouye, later to be become a U.S. senator, was among them.

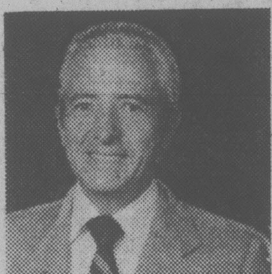
Inouye and others moved into the empty ranks of the territorial Democratic Party, found a sympathetic leader in John A. Burns, a former Honolulu police captain, and by the early 1960s had forged a powerful alliance with organized labor, particularly the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, and were headed for the statehouse.

Burns won his first of three terms as governor in 1962, removing the Republicans from power, and they have been kept largely on the outside ever since.

The ingrown and insulated system has produced an easy tolerance for government corruption. Political favors are routinely done for family and friends, and favors are expected in return.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO DATSUN OWNERS FROM

Brian S. Gingell
Three Point Motors Ltd.



N.C. (Cam) McCallum
McCallum Motors Ltd.

After August 31st McCallum Motors and Three Point Motors will no longer be Datsun Dealers.

The Nissan Automobile Co. (Canada) Ltd. will no longer allow it's dealers to sell another make of car and neither of us was prepared to go along with that policy.

We regret that Nissan has initiated such a policy. It ignores the fact that we were both selling other makes of autos when NISSAN chose to franchise us. It also ignores the fact that we have both repeatedly won awards for excellence in our service and parts departments.

It is our intention to continue servicing Datsun vehicles for as long as you — our valued customers — wish us to do so. We believe that our wealth of experience with Datsun will enable us to provide the very best service and we would appreciate your continued patronage.

Sincerely,
Brian Gingell

Business briefs

Chrysler drops dividend

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. directors omitted the third-quarter dividend on common stock, the company said Thursday.

The action had been expected by financial analysts in light of the company's industry-record $207 million second-quarter loss.

Chrysler had paid 10 cents a share in the first two quarters of this year and the final quarter of last year. It had paid 25 cents for the six previous quarters before that.

Omitting the dividend will save $6.22 million in cash each quarter.

Directors approved a quarterly 68¾-cent dividend on the 10 million shares of preferred stock issued last year. This dividend accounts for $6.88 million a quarter.

Mines merger possible

TORONTO (CP) — Rio Algom Ltd. and Preston Mines Ltd. has announced they are considering amalgamating the corporations next Dec. 31.

The new company would continue the name Rio Algom Ltd., the statement said. Share exchange ratio and other details have not yet been determined.

Preston owns about 44 per cent of Rio Algom's outstanding shares.

Amalgamation is conditional on approval by board of directors and the shareholders of each corporation as well as by other regulatory authorities.

Rio Algom has reported net earnings of $27.1 million or $1.99 a share for the first half of this year, down from $27.9 million or $2.04 the first half of 1978.

Preston's earnings for the first half were $11.7 million or $1.33 a share, down from $12.0 million or $1.36.

Steel firms' profits up

TORONTO (CP) — Two of Canada's largest steel producers have reported improved financial results for the first half of 1979.

Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. reports a six-month profit of $75.9 million compared with $58.3 million for the same period in 1978 and Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. reports a profit of $65.7 million for the first half compared with $41.1 million a year earlier.

Stelco had a second-quarter profit of $45.2 million or $1.68 a share, compared with $34.9 million or $1.30 a share for the same period in 1978.

Dofasco's second-quarter profit was $34.7 million or $2 a share, up from $21.8 million or $1.24 a share a year earlier.

Both companies also reported an increase in sales although Stelco says there has been a softening in demand for products related to the automotive industry.

CP Investments offers shares

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. has announced the terms of a public share offering expected to generate about $150.2 million to buy equity positions in United States firms and other investments.

The final prospectus says about $100 million of the money will be used to finance three U.S. acquisitions under negotiation, two of which are expected to go through next month.

CPI spokesman Bob Rice said the other $50 million will be held for any acquisitions resulting from the study of a number of possibilities, "but no details are available until a decision is made to proceed with any of them."

The new share issue involves 5.25 million shares at a price of $30 a share offered today through a group of investment dealers managed by Wood Gundy Ltd., Dominion Securities Ltd., A. E. Ames and Co. Ltd. and Nesbitt Thomson Securities Ltd.

Canada gas reserves up

CALGARY (CP) — Canada's natural gas surplus is said to be nine trillion cubic feet by Imperial Oil Ltd. in the most optimistic estimate so far put before the National Energy Board.

Imperial, in a submission to the board, said the new calculation exceeds the company's estimate made last year by more than two trillion cubic feet.

The increase is derived almost entirely from the recent revisions made in Alberta's formula for reserving supplies of natural gas for local markets.

The energy board, in determining surplus exportable gas, is accepting the province's formula, which now is based on a 25-year period rather than the former, more rigid 30-year model.

The most recent estimate of surplus natural gas published by the board gave a figure of two trillion cubic feet.

$3.56 for Simpsons shares

TORONTO (CP) — Shareholders of Simpsons Ltd. of Toronto who dissented from tendering their shares under a merger offer with Hudson's Bay Co., Winnipeg, will be offered $3.56 for their shares.

Neil Baker of Winnipeg, the largest dissenting shareholder, holds 2.4 million of the 5.5 million minority shares and has agreed to accept the offer of $3.56.

The price was the same as that offered under the merger.

A Bay spokesman said other shareholders who did not accept the offer, representing about 500,000 shares, dissented to obtain tax advantages. Payment will be made upon receipt of appropriate share certificates and demands for payment.

'Few frosties' froth ends Smokey hokey

KELOWNA (CP) — Smokey the Bear, who went absent without leave Sunday, is back on guard with an ice-pack on his head outside the Kelowna ranger station.

Forest ranger Shelley Hansen said the 300-pound, seven-foot bear was found Wednesday staring into the lake at Oyama Provincial Park.

An unsigned note attached to the bear said he had not been stolen, but had made friends with a group of fun-loving people and decided and decided to go with them to the lake to partake in the consumption of "a few wild frosties," better known as beer.

Fear chases Indians from village

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Blueberry Indian band have once again fled their homes to a crowded, ill-equipped tent town in the bush, fearful of a gas well which covered their village in a cloud of poisonous fumes three weeks ago.

Band counsellor Eddie Aspassin said Thursday that the Indians fled to the bush again following unconfirmed reports that the well which ruptured July 16 was to resume production today.

Aspassin said that his people would remain in the mosquito-infested bush of northwest British Columbia until their village was relocated or the gas wells around it were shut down.

The rupture was only the climax of mounting concern among the Blueberry band over the long-term effects of lesser amounts of sour gas which escape from the well.

"People smell the sour gas when the west wind blows and really bad in the evening — it reminds them of the poisonous cloud coming down on them and they don't want to go back to their houses," Aspassin said.

"The kids have to walk through the wells on their way to school and they're just in an out of hospital. Most of them have sore throats and are coughing all the time."

The rupture occurred during a procedure called fracking in which sand is forced into a well to increase pressure and force the gas out faster. A valve opened too soon and allowed sand to enter a pipe which immediately ruptured. No one was on the scene so the leak went undetected until a cloud of poisonous hydrogen sulfide enveloped the village.

Men, women and children fled into the bush and set up camp in tents provided by the well's owner, Kildonan Oil Services Ltd. of Calgary.

George Manuel, president of the B.C. Union of Indian Chiefs, said federal health authorities have for the last eight months ignored the Blueberry band's requests to deal with the air pollution problems caused by the gas wells.

Indian leaders want the government to undertake a full inquiry into the operation of the gas wells and their effect on residents' health and the surrounding environment.

A team of specialists the chiefs' union brought in from Chicago after the well rupture found symptoms of mild to severe hydrogen sulfide poisoning in preliminary tests of Blueberry band members. A final report of the $21,000 study will be released in three weeks.

The federal government's only response so far has been to ship new monitoring equipment to the well site, about 65 kilometres north of Fort St. John. The Indians want independent checks of well emissions.

Previously, well emissions were monitored only by outmoded chemical sniffers and an alarm system which failed to sound any warning of the rupture July 16.

Dr. Courtland Mackenzie, head of the health care and epidemiology department at the University of British Columbia, described hydrogen sulfide as an irritant.

Federal limits on exposure to the gas are geared to industry, based on exposure during an eight-hour day, not around the clock as the Blueberry band is, he said.

Chronic exposure could make band members more susceptible to the effects of the gas, said Mackenzie.

Victor Baer, president of Kildonan Oil, said in a telephone interview that he was willing to go along with whatever solution could be devised.

"We don't want these people living there if they are suffering and find it obnoxious," he said.

"We'll certainly help to have them relocated if that's what the government wants. We'll do whatever we're forced to do by the government."

However, Baer echoed the Indians' accusations of government neglect, saying that confused lines or authority and areas of jurisdiction stood in the way of resolving the problem.

'Pretty clean industry,' claims prisons minister

AGASSIZ (CP) — Prisons are "pretty clean industries," Solicitor-General Allan Lawrence assured this quiet Fraser Valley community after officially opening the prison that will replace the infamous B.C. Penitentiary.

The $19-million, maximum-security Kent Institution here was built to take over for the violence-plagued, 107-year-old B.C. prison at New Westminster. The 140 general population prisoners at the old fortress will be transferred to Kent starting about mid-August.

Despite the threat of escapes and "worries . . . especially in a tourist area . . . prisons are pretty stable, clean industries," Lawrence said at a press conference.

Kent is likely to be the first and last of its kind, he added.

Concepts change rapidly and planning of new prisons must be done about five years in advance.

"These are pretty fancy surroundings; I don't think we will build another like this."

Lawrence agreed that Kent will be one of the most expensive prisons in Canada to run, with more staff than prisoners, and an annual operating budget of $5.7 million to incarcerate 192 prisoners — about $30,000 a year a convict.

Oakalla staff shaken

BURNABY (CP) - One guard was fired and a number of others were suspended following a recent internal investigation by officials at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) here.

"A number of staff have been suspended," Barry Saddler, assistant to the commissioner of corrections, said Wednesday. "My understanding was that the issue was staff leaving their post and certain job locations,".

"I think there were a number of staff alleged to have been drinking," he said. "All action taken to date is internal."

Saddler refused to specify the number of guards involved.

The internal probe followed an investigation by the inspections and standards division of the corrections branch which was ordered by Henry Bjarnson, the centre's director, Saddler said.

CP Air to expand SkyBus

VANCOUVER (CP) - CP Air hopes to expand its cheap SkyBus service rather than match Air Canada's fall seat sale on domestic and some foreign flights, a spokesman for CP Air said Thursday.

Air Canada announced details of its seat sale Wednesday but said prices would be considerably higher than those offered in a similiar sale earlier this year.

There are no advance bookings and fewer restrictions on the SkyBus tickets which offer fares $10 cheaper than seat-sale prices on flights between Toronto and Vancouver, and Calgary and Edmonton, he said.

Sales begin immediately for Air Canada's seat sale on flights in Canada between Sept. 24 and Nov. 4, and in the U.S. between Oct. 5 and Nov. 23. Initially, the sale applies only to flights of 1,000 miles or more but Air Canada says it will announce discount rates for shorter flights later.

Library cuts irk SFUers

BURNABY (CP) — Students at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby are often forced to study at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver because SFU has inadequate research facilities.

At a rally to protest cuts in the university's library budget, teaching assistant Val Whiffen said Wednesday students waste many hours on what can be a four-hour round-trip bus ride along the 25-kilometre route between the two schools.

"What's the point of getting a degree from SFU when you have to do research at UBC? You may as well do them both on the same campus."

The university's library budget has been cut by about $500,000 this year due to insufficient operating funds granted the university by the provincial government. The cuts have also affected about 11 library jobs.

The university's administration said the university has stretched its funds to the limit, but students aren't satisfied because they feel SFU should ask the government for more money.

Restraint crimping ad probes

The federal government's hiring freeze has put a severe crimp on the consumer and corporate affairs department's ability to investigate complaints about misleading advertising in B.C. and the Yukon.

Clare Savage, manager of the combines investigation branch, said in an interview from Vancouver today the freeze has prevented him from hiring a replacement for an investigator who quit in June.

As a consequence, he said, only about half the complaints the branch is receiving are being investigated.

"We are having to utilize a priority system," he said. "We are only investigating cases which we feel might have the greatest impact on the market place or may afford the courts an opportunity to clarify the law.

"We're having to be very selective. We make no pretense we can keep up with the workload."

Savage said his two-man unit is strained to the limit in handling several cases before the courts.

Much of the routine work processing minor complaints has had to be set aside.

He said the branch receives about 50 complaints a month, but only about a quarter are serious enough to warrant investigation. Half of those have had to be shelved until time can be found to begin a probe.

Savage said he won't know if the manpower situation will be improved before Aug. 15 when Treasury Board Minister Sinclair Stevens is expected to make an annoucement on the government's hiring policies.

Puppy survives shafting

Humphrey the puppy spent 12 hours Wednesday in a ventilation shaft at his converted heritage house and emerged none the worse for wear.

Humphrey, a purebred cocker spaniel, went missing at about 3 p.m.

His owners, Jane Silvester and Ron Smith, 4-1501 Laurel Lane, looked everywhere.

No puppy.

Finally they heard some whimpering from the vent shaft. It was 3 a.m.

They knocked on their downstairs neighbor's door.

No puppy. But they could still hear the whimpering.

The apartment manager was called in. They punched holes in the wall. Four holes in three walls and still no puppy.

Finally Ron Smith put his hand in the first hole. Puppy! All covered in soot.

Humphrey was fine, despite his three-storey fall and 12-hour stay in the vent shaft.

Denticare priority still high

Premier Bill Bennett indicated this week his government's proposed new denticare plan could be introduced before the next sitting of the legislature.

Bennett said the dental care program, which has not yet been detailed, remains a government priority and will not require new legislation before it is introduced.

"It can be developed within the ministry of health and that's what we're working on now," the premier said.

The government announced it was going to introduce the plan in its throne speech before the May 10 provincial election.

The legislature is expected to sit again early in 1980, although there is a possibility there will be an autumn session.

City couple helped in refugee rescue

A freighter cruise through southeast Asia brought a Cadboro Bay couple face to face with Vietnam's boat people recently, and they'll never be the same.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Thomson, 2671 Macdonald, were aboard the American freighter President Wilson en route from Singapore and a day out of Hong Kong when a white flag was spotted by Thomson.

Mrs. Thomson recalled that her husband said, "I bet it's boat people."

Through binculars they could see "a little dilapidated boat in the distance waving a white flag."

The ship's crew and 12 passengers convinced a reluctant captain (who thought the boat might conceal pirates) to stop, but sea conditions delayed the rescue for more than an hour.

Once the captain was assured by his crew that the boat wouldn't last the night, he agreed to bring the 19 boat people aboard.

Mrs. Thomson and a doctor's wife were called below decks to search the women for concealed weapons.

One of the boat people who spoke some English said the boat had floated down a Vietnamese river, hiding in reeds during the day.

They hoped a passing ship would assist them once they hit the open sea, but in their 13 days at sea before rescue by the President Wilson, 29 ships passed them by.

Two of the boat people were brought aboard unconscious, and a woman collapsed in Mrs. Thomson's arms as she came aboard.

The negative feelings held by some Canadians towards the boat people baffles Mrs. Thomson, who asked, "What are you going to do in all humanity?

"What are you going to do when they're out in the middle of the ocean, next to drowning?"

Boat people deny knowledge of loan

TORONTO (CP) — Many refugees arriving in Canada say they are unaware they each owe the federal government $750 for their airfare even though they have signed notes agreeing to repay the loans.

Despite several interviews with Canadian immigration officials before leaving Asia, the Vietnamese say they were either not told or did not understand the government expected reimbursement for the plane rides.

While refugees are supposed to speak either English or French to be admitted to Canada, the stipulation has been relaxed.

The refugees said they did not know exactly what they were signing and believed the documents were just general registration papers.

Duon Hung Quoi, who flew to Toronto with his family last week, said Canadian immigration officials spoke to refugees through Chinese interpreters, inquiring about their skills, whether they had any relatives in Canada and whether they could speak English or French.

A spokesman for Immigration Minister Ronald Atkey said the government, "is not aware of that problem, but you can be sure something will be done about it."

Job-seekers stream to Victoria

Victoria's surging economy has attracted a record number of job-seekers from Alberta, Ontario and other parts of B.C., the Canada Employment Centre (CEC) said today.

During July, 788 came to Victoria looking for work, up from 566 in June.

The July total represented about 39 per cent of the 2,000 job-seekers.

"This is a significant increase," local CEC manager Wally Pickering said. "Since November, the percentage had been holding at about 31 per cent. Now, more people want to move to Victoria."

The attraction, he said, besides the natural beauty of the city, is a strengthening economy, based on the tourist industry.

There were 838 new job openings in Victoria during July and almost half were in the hospitality industry.

Hotels, motels and restaurants say their revenues are up 12 per cent from the previous July.

Local department stores report retail sales are also up 12 per cent. A large portion of these sales are to visitors, according to a check of the cities listed on department store credit cards.

Among the 788 newcomers seeking work in July, 42 per cent were from other B.C. points. Another 22 per cent were front Ontario and 17 per cent from Alberta. But only 3.5 per cent came from Quebec and four per cent had arrived from Nova Scotia.

"Many are in the 17 to 24 age category, a highly mobile age group," Pickering said.

Pickering said some of the newcomers indicate that, if they don't find work here, they will return home and consider the trip to have been a vacation.

The CEC does not use priority systems. It refers the best-qualfied people for job interviews, regardless of their home city.

However, when the job-seekers arrive for interviews, many Victoria businesses give preference to local people, he said.

"That makes sense because it is helpful if your employee knows something about the city."

This makes it difficult for the newcomers, although some of them are finding work.

Meanwhile, an economic survey conducted by local CEC information officer Dan Bowes showed vigor in all sectors, except for construction:

Retail sales — Appliances and furniture have been big sellers and clothing is starting to sell in the beginning of back-to-school activity. In mid-August, some department stores will hire additional people to handle the pre-school rush. Interviews will be held at the CEC, 810 Fort.

Tourism — About 400 new jobs were created in this sector during July. With the peak season still ahead, businessmen are predicting revenues could be 15 per cent above the 1978 level.

Shipyard — Burrard Yarrows Corp. had 600 workers employed in its Yarrows yard at Esquimalt in July as orders came in for two barges plus repair work on a drill ship. More workers will be needed in September to construct the new ferry for the provincial government.

Wood products — Local sawmills are busy but many loggers had to leave the forest in late July owing to the fire hazard. Unless it rains soon, the fire hazard will become extreme, forest companies said.

Fishing — Oakland Fisheries employed 240 workers, up slightly from the previous July, to handle a large salmon catch.

Agriculture — Demand for agriculture workers was strong in July and growing in August. Total employment is expected to be about 20 per cent higher than the previous summer and fall. The supply of workers is adequate.

Metal fabricating — There is a surge of activity due to orders from forest companies for machines. Some additional hiring is likely for machinists and welder fabricators.

Real estate — Sales under the Multiple Listing Service totalled $20.8 million during July, up from $17.2 million in the same month last year. There were 323 units sold, up from 275. There were 697 listings, down from 704.

Tourist favorites set for big day Monday

B.C. Day on Monday is expected to be the busiest day of the year for two of the biggest tourist attractions in Victoria, but they've already had a busy year.

In July, a record 53,182 people toured the Legislative Buildings. The total for the year is 113,319 — up over last year's 110,449.

Across the street, the Provincial Museum has had fewer visitors than last year.

The July attendance was 211,492. The total number for the year so far is 585,683 — down from 642,130 visitors at this time last year.

The two attractions charge no admittance.

Housing starts surge

Housing starts for July totalled 195, up from 144 the previous July and the first time this year that residential construction has been higher than 1978 levels.

The surge was expected, however, because of increasing demand for accommodation of all kinds.

There were 187 new single-family homes started during July, up from 97 at this time last year.

In addition, eight duplex units were started.

The pace of construction is expected to pick up for the balance of the year.

There have been only 815 starts during the first seven months, down from 1,173 in the same period last year.

These included 662 single-family homes (down from 625), 28 duplex units (down from 148), 31 row houses (up from 28) and 94 apartment units (down from 372).

The largest surge is expected to be in single family homes, if lots can be found, although some additional apartment units will be required as well.

Rescue business booming

Judging by Thursday night's action, the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt is facing an extra long weekend.

Thirty-nine incidents — including a fishboat that started a bush fire — have been handled in the last 24 hours.

"It was a very busy night," a spokesman said.

One of the longest incidents began at 10 p.m. when Russell Vandiver fell over the side of his 37-foot sailboat Lightheart near Texada Island.

The alarm was given after an unidentified female passenger scrambled ashore and contacted the RCMP detachment at Powell River.

A Buffalo aircraft and a Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox carried out an air search while several vessels took part in a marine sweep of the area. Among them were the coastal ferry North Island Princess, the environment vessel Vector, the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready and the auxiliary vessel Heron from CFB Comox.

Vandiver was found at 1:30 a.m. today on the beach at Texada Island and was flown by the Labrador to hospital in Comox.

At 3:30 this morning the 38-foot fishing vessel Colin Card broke down two miles south of Broken Island near Kelsey Bay.

The unidentified owner lit a flare which started a fire in the boat.

The boat, which burned to the waterline, was beached at Kelsey Bay where the burning hulk started a bush fire.

A MacMillan Bloedel crew was called to bring it under control.

The man was rescued by a passing vessel, the Cape Scott, and taken to Vancouver.

Another incident involved a plane that crashed 10 miles east of Old Crow in the Yukon Territories.

The spokesman said an RCMP detachment rescued two persons who received only slight injuries.

Industrial park strategy aired

Saanich council will give three readings Tuesday to bylaws for the proposed Royal Oak industrial park so the project can be submitted to the provincial government in time to meet the municipality's Sept. 4 approval deadline.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said Thursday ministries that must approve the development will have a full four weeks to examine the bylaws.

Any delays in the approval process will be blamed on political interference, he said.

The bylaws will be submitted to the government Wednesday and municipal staff have gone over them with William Long, the provincial inspector of municipalities, to make sure there are no technical problems.

Council is going ahead with the industrial park in spite of warnings by Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis he will convey his disapproval of the project to other ministries involved, such as highways.

Curtis, MLA for Saanich, recently announced his opposition to the development and said council should abandon its plans. He suggested industrial development take place at Central Saanich industrial park at Keating Crossroad.

Aldermen Tuesday will give third reading to a loan authorization bylaw, the creation of a specified area and a development cost charge bylaw.

Red tape kills rescue unit

Pender Island marine rescue agent Horst Klein has called it quits after spending thousands of dollars of his own money in the past three years helping boaters in trouble.

Klein, his wife Joyce, and their 20-year-old daughter Sandra have taken part in hundreds of rescue missions in Canadian and American waters.

Klein says it is not only the money that has made him decide to call it a day. He says he can no longer take the constant hassle with bureaucrats.

The final blow came when an inter-department squabble erupted over funds he had been promised by Saanich-The Islands MLA Hugh Curtis during the recent election campaign.

He says Curtis assured him funds would be available to the newly-formed Gulf Island Rescue Unit, a non-profit organization with 100 members. The promised $35,800 for a new Boston whaler would have come from the provincial lottery fund, Klein says.

He said the environment ministry, which handles the Provincial Emergency Program, got hostile because the money was not going to that agency.

"This inter-departmental squabbling has been going on for weeks. I got sick and tired of the whole damn business," Klein says.

Curtis, who is responsible for lottery funds, was on his way back from Ottawa today and could not be reached for comment.

Klein, an electrical and plumbing contractor, says a major reorganization of search and rescue operations is needed. He has discussed the matter with Defence Minister Allan McKinnon, who has asked him to submit a brief with his recommendations.

Klein would like to see coast guard operations transferred from the department of transport to the military. McKinnon, however, says he could see some disadvantages in this proposal.

Two months ago Klein's daughter was in Ottawa to receive a national valor award from Governor-General Edward Schreyer. She received the award for saving the life of a Nanaimo man who was forced to jump over the side when his sailboat caught fire in the Strait of Georgia last Dec. 29.

Datsun gets new outlet

Saunders and Hitchman Ltd., an Oak Bay firm selling Toyotas since 1965, will switch to Datsuns effective Aug. 20, the company has announced.

Metro-Toyota will become the sole Toyota dealer in the city.

Two other dealers had their Nissan (Datsun) franchises withdrawn this summer because they sold other lines as well. McCallum Motors now sells only Volvo cars while Three Point Motors sells the Mercedes-Benz.

The Saunders and Hitchman announcement was made by Ed Graham, the company's assistant manager. The Graham family bought the dealership from Stan Hitchman and Henry Saunders in 1977.

Ellen Renshaw . . . and the official result of the vote

By majority of one granny union folds

VANCOUVER (CP) — She always voted with the majority, she had constant access to her shop steward and she didn't have to worry about dissension in the ranks.

But Ellen Renshaw does not march to Solidarity Forever.

Ms. Renshaw, secretary and sole union member at the Volunteer Grandparents Society here, decided to opt out of the province's smallest bargaining unit and work without union representation.

"I just want to do my job and get my pay," explained Ms. Renshaw. "That's all I'm interested in."

The British Columbia Labor Relations Board last week decertified the one-woman bargaining unit of the Service, Office and Retail Workers Union of Canada after carrying out an investigation which entailed reams of form and document filling for both Ms. Renshaw and her supervisor.

"All that paperwork — it just seems ridiculous to me," Ms. Renshaw said.

"The LRB thought I was General Motors," said her supervisor, Marjorie Walters. "There was the same amount of work involved."

Ms. Renshaw does clerical work and answers the telephone at Volunteer Grandparents, which matches up older people with surrogate grandchildren for their mutual benefit.

Union representative Marnie Maser said Wednesday the employer "intimidated the woman who previously worked there into quitting," then searched for two months for an anti-union replacement who was willing to go through the decertification procedure.

"It became clear to us that management was more interested in getting rid of the union than in carrying out the society's social service function," Ms. Maser said.

Ms. Walters said she was going to fire the previous secretary "because she wasn't doing her job." and added that Ms. Renshaw was carefully chosen as an replacement. Decertification was not even mentioned in the interview, she said.

A union in a two-person office created problems over interpretation of the collective agreement that Ms. Walters said "cost me a great deal of time, energy and money."

Before the judge

A 34-year-old French-Canadian was jailed for one month after admitting an assault on a Saanich woman July 15.

Joseph Guy Joyal pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court Thursday before Judge William Ostler to assault causing bodily harm.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith told the court the incident occurred at 4254 Shelbourne about 7 p.m. when Joyal and three others went to the woman's residence. Smith said Joyal claimed the woman "ripped him off" for $225 and stormed into the house yelling, "Call the narcs, I want my money." Smith also said another witness heard Joyal say two hours before the incident that he was "going to slit her throat and have her killed."

Joyal, through interpreter Camille Zaffaroni, told Ostler he had slept the night before with the woman at the Strathcona Hotel where he stayed and, when he woke up, she had left with all his money. He said police advised him he was not the first person it had happened to and that she was a prostitute.

Smith said Joyal grabbed the woman's hair and gave her between 15 and 20 hits to the head with a closed fist.

Ostler said the remedy was to charge her with theft and not to take the law into his own hands.

A landlord was fined $50 for disobeying a rentalsman's order to return a $200 deposit to apartment dwellers who requested the money when they vacated the premises.

Gerald Martin, director of West Trend Enterprises Ltd., pleaded guilty to failure to comply with the rentalsman's order of Dec. 5.

Smith said the two renters took possession of the premises at 1063 Chamberlain on May 1, 1976, and vacated on May 31, 1978, after giving the proper, one-month notice.

They requested the return of the $200 security deposit required when they first moved in but received no satisfaction, Smith continued. Letters sent from the rentalsman's office June 30 and July 18, 1978, failed to get the money returned and an order was completed and served on Martin on Dec. 5, directing him to pay $232.

Martin said the tennants had left their possession on the property for a month after they left, making it impossible for him to rent the premise for that period.

Two Victoria fishermen pleaded not guilty to a charge of fishing during a closure period March 9 at Lambert Channel between Denman and Hornby islands.

Crown counsel John Savage alleged that 10,280 pounds of herring had been seized and sold for $13,888, and asked for forfeiture before 22-year-old Charles Gregory Mills, of 944 Page, entered not guilty pleas on behalf of himself and 20-year-old Gary John Wick, of 2545 Selwyn.

Ostler returned the case, which was originally transferred from Nanaimo provincial court to Victoria for pleas, back to the up-Island court to fix a trial date.

One of two drivers who pleaded guilty to driving while their licences were suspended received a 10-day jail term while the other was fined a total of $600.

Neil Clinton Clarkson, 21, of 2807 Sooke Lake Road, received the jail sentence after Ostler learned it was his second such conviction this year.

Bradley William Harris, 20, of 3155 Donald, was fined $200 and $400 after pleading guilty to two counts of driving while his licence was suspended over a period of three days. Ostler said he took into account that it was the first such convictions for Harris.

Ostler granted bail to 18-year-old Jamie Frederick Mendres, of 479 South Joffree, charged with the attempted rape of a 15-year-old girl Sunday at Elk Lake Park.

Mendres, who broke down in court Monday and was ordered remanded for a medical examination, was released on $500 surety bail with conditions. One of the conditions was that he obey a 10:30 p.m. curfew and another was that he not attend at a public beach or playground without an adult.

He was remanded until next Thursday for election of his trial method.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Vincent Roy Jimmy, 31, of Duncan, $600; and Douglas Llewelyn McElwee, 27, of 531 West Bay Terrace, $500.

Suite owner raises stink over garbage

The city's new garbage collection bylaw was challenged in B.C. Supreme Court Thursday by a small apartment owner who claimed it is discriminatory.

Lawyer James Carfra, representing Elsie Wedman, told Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie that city council is giving free garbage collection to owners only and this is a discrimination against tenants in apartment buildings.

McKenzie reserved his decision after hearing argument by Carfra and city solicitor Jacob de Villiers.

The bylaw, finally approved June 14, states that the occupier of each parcel of land shall be entitled to free removal of two garbage cans by the city 50 times a year at intervals not exceeding 12 days.

But the definition of occupier is given, in the case of a parcel of land occupied by one person or by a family, that person or the head of the family, and in the case of land separately occupied by two or more persons, firms or corporations, the owner of that parcel of land.

Parcel of land is defined in the bylaw as meaning any unit of real property held under a separate title and includes strata lots in condominiums.

What this means, Carfra told McKenzie, is that in a hypothetical city street, two cans of garbage will be picked up free from a single-family house, 40 cans from a condominium with 20 suites--but only two cans from a 20-suite apartment building.

He said the apartment owner pays the cost of city garbage collection through his taxes but gets no service because he is responsible for paying for private pickups.

Carfra said that Esquimalt and Saanich do provide free garbage collection to apartment buildings.

In the case of condominiums in the city, he said all or a great many suites in one building could be rented but each suite would still be entitled under the bylaw to two free cans pickup or the equivalent if everyone pooled their entitlement into one or more bulk containers.

Carfra said he has been informed that more than half the units of accommodation in the city are apartment suites so that council is depriving more than half its residents of free garbage collection.

De Villiers said a difference has to be made between discrimination which is commonsense and discrimination which is arbitrary and unjust and beyond a city's legislative power.

He said the bylaw is not a sham or subtefuge but an honest attempt to avoid discrimination by treating all persons in a certain category without discrimination.

Provincial legislation gave the city the choice of charging all owners for garbage removal, or charging all occupiers, or specifying in what circumstances owners or occupiers must pay.

He submitted that the bylaw charges the same scale for each unit of real property and does not discriminate.

Excess garbage, he said, can be removed by the occupier himself, by getting a private contractor or by making arrangements with the city for a fee.

Friends can ease bereaved's pain

Bereavement — the loss of a loved one — can be a physical illness. It is never easy. It must be worked through. But an understanding of some of the reactions to bereavement can help.

This was the message Dr. Mary Brown brought to a four-day workshop on care of the dying and bereaved sponsored by the Sisters of St. Ann's at Queenswood House.

Among the 80 people at the Thursday session were nurses, volunteers, funeral directors, and priests - people who work with the dying and their families.

Dr. Brown, a clinical psychologist from Ottawa University, explained some of the normal reactions to the death of a loved one.

One of the first reactions is likely to be numbness, which can extend even to the physical senses. The bereaved may feel that they can't hear or see as well. They may forget to eat or to wash.

Dr. Brown says a friend can help by coming in to cook, by saying gently "wash your hair."

Says Brown: "You can ease this numbness by saying that it is normal. But be careful in dispelling it. The numbness is there because it is needed. It helps in lessening the pain of loss."

With the numbness may come the denial of the death. Dr. Brown gives the example of Queen Victoria acting for years as though Prince Albert would be coming for breakfast any time and at the same time carrying on, functioning.

"This too is normal unless carried to extremes."

Brown counsels against well-meaning friends trying to rush the bereaved out of all thoughts of the death.

"They may say, 'Sell the house. It's too full of memories.' But a quick decision would be unwise. No major decisions should be taken for at least six months."

Brown says, "Mourning is painful. There is no way to avoid it. You must not try too strongly to remove the pain.

"But you must gently and insistently make them face the pain when they are trying to avoid it. Otherwise the bereavement is more complicated."

The bereaved person can experience a whole gamut of emotions.

Anger at the person who died is one of the most common and one of the hardest to deal with because it is so irrational.

Other common emotions are guilt, regret, and remorse - guilt that the bereaved person somehow caused the death, regret that things weren't better while the person was alive, remorse if the dead person was denied something.

All these emotions, along with very deep sorrow, often cause disorganisation through all aspects of the personality.

The bereaved person may be physically ill. Brown days the health of widowed people should be watched closely. Stomache disorders are common.

Often the illness will mirror the illness of the lost loved one.

Brown tells the story of a 40-year-old woman who had been paralyzed from the age of 14. The doctors could find no physical problem.

In therapy, Brown found that the woman's father had died of a stroke when she was 14. The girl had repressed a dream in which her father sat up in his coffin and stroked her thigh.

When the woman realised that she had taken on the paralysis of her father she was able to get up from her wheelchair.

Brown says, "She was capping her grief, putting it in her body and leaving it there. What a shame. She was paralyzed for 36 years."

The disorganisation can also affect sexuality. Men, long used to the closeness of a spouse, can experience premature ejaculation and impotency. Women can experience frigidity. If they do have sexual experiences, they may feel deep guilt at being "unfaithful" to the dead spouse.

The disorganisation often extends to the family. Latent problems may suddenly spring to the fore.

Again Brown counsels against trying to find an easy solution to these problems.

"Sometimes it will be so painful they feel it will never stop. They have to give themselves time. At least a year. Perhaps two. Or more. Sometimes aspects of grief stay and stay.

"Sorrow at first can be expressive, hard, painful. As you move away from time of death, sorrow can become much much deeper."

Eventually, reorganisation starts. It starts with renunciation of the dead person.

Brown says: "The bereaved must accept the fact that the person has gone. The person who is left has to pick up the pieces again."

The next step is redefinition. The bereaved must build an entirely new identity, separate from the person who is gone. They must learn to be unmarried again.

Finally there is re-investment — re-investment in other people, in other activities.

Throughout the workshop, Dr. Brown avoided being sombre or sentimental about death.

But she expressed real anger — anger at the idea that grief should be short, that it should go away quickly.

She says, "There's a real taboo about death. We are shy to think about it.

"We used to have rituals to help us deal with death. The black armband said 'Be gentle with me, I'm hurting.' Now people expect us to get over it in three days. It takes a long time."

5% pay hike for mayor?

A five per cent pay raise for mayor and aldermen and 7¼ per cent for civic management staff were recommended Thursday for 1979 salary increases.

City council's Group A committee passed the increments along to council for final approval, with the comment from Ald. Larry Ryan that five per cent for council is appropriate in the light of the economy and inflation.

He said there should be fiscal restraint, "and not just by words alone."

The city earlier granted its union staff 7¼ per cent wage increase, and the committee decided in a closed meeting to give union-exempt staff the same.

Management increases would range up to about $3,300 a year based on the top-salaried post of city manager, which would rise to just under $50,000 from $46,000.

The mayor's new remuneration would be up $1,168 to $24,528 and aldermen would get $438 more, bringing their indemnity to $9,206.

One-third of the council allocation is for expenses related to the duties performed by mayor and aldermen.

Since 1974 council has raised its salary 12.4 per cent (1975), 8 per cent (1976), 6 per cent (1977), and 4 per cent (1978).

Ryan said mayor and aldermen could not compare themselves with MLAs, who had just voted themselves 31 per cent increase in annual salary. In arriving at the proposed increase for Victoria, he said comparison was made with 53 elected representatives in the Capital Regional District, of which 32 serve the core municipalities.

U.S. Air Force band planning city visit

The Air Force Band of the Pacific Northwest will visit Victoria Thursday and Friday under the auspices of CFB Esquimalt. The band is a United States Air Force unit based at McChord Air Force Base in Washington State.

Sound Reason and Impact are two six-man groups specializing in more current musical selections; Sound Reason does contemporary, light jazz, rock and top forty popular selections; Impact plays rock, disco, soul and top forty. Its vocalist is Dave Harrison.

Friday: Touch of Blue, Market Square 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.; Cameron Bandshell 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Sound Reason, Hillside Shopping Centre 11 a.m. to 12; 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. Impact, Naden Parade Square 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.; Gorge Park 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. Brass Quintet, Gorge Park 11 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.; Centennial Suare 2 p.m. to 2:45 p.m. Woodwind Quintet, Centennial Square 12 to 12:45 p.m.; Market Square2 p.m. to 2:45 p.m.

Performances are free. The United Way will have booths at all the shows for any who wish to give a silver collection.

In the event of rain Gorge Park concerts will be held in the Jubilee Hall at Esquimalt Recreation Centre, and CFB concerts in the Naden drill shed.

Silent film series planned

A series of silent films will be shown at noon Aug. 9, 16, 23 and 30 at McPherson Playhouse.

The four performances will be accompanied by film historian, musician and lecturer Charles Hofmann, who will play his own original scores.

The series is jointly sponsored by the National Film Board, McPherson Playhouse Foundation and the Community Arts Council.

A photography exhibit illustrating 50 outstanding silent films and stars will be on display at the playhouse during the series.

Box lunches are available at a nominal charge.

On Aug. 9 Hofmann will talk about the origin of movies and illustrate with the first commercial program from Paris in 1895 by the Lumiere brothers. The program will also feature the work of George Melies and films from the Edison studios photographed and directed by Edwin S. Porter, including the first western, The Great Train Robbery.

Pioneers in animation will be the topic of the second hour Aug. 16. From the German projections of the Sklandowsky brothers in 1895, the program will include examples from Emil Cohl of France and Lotte Reiniger from Germany. Other early animators included in the show are Winsor McCay, Bud Fisher, Pat Sullivan, Otto Messmer and Walt Disney.

The American pioneer film director D.W. Griffith and his work at the Biograph Studios will be screened on Aug. 23. Four short films featuring the early work of Dorothy and Lillian Gish, Mary Pickford, Blanche Sweet and other Biograph players who went on to become famous film stars will be shown.

The final program of the series Aug. 30 is about music and the movies. Hofmann will take about music for early films and demonstrate at the piano when he screens examples from the work of Chaplin, Valentino and Fairbanks.

Comic opera troupe shares in B.C. award

Opera Piccola presentations, to be seen as part of the Victoria International Festival in its final week at the McPherson, Aug.21 and 22, shares in a $7,000 grant just announced by the Provincial Ministry of Education, Science and Technology.

The grant is made to the Festival Concert Society, a Vancouver organization directed by Festival director J.J. Johannesen, which sends touring musical groups to B.C. schools and communities. Opera Piccola (short usuallly comic opera) was founded in the International Festival last summer and subsequently toured successfully.

This year's productions — Rossini's La Cambiale di Matrimonio and William Walton's The Bear - will also be touring in the fall and winter.

An award of $20,000 was made to the Victoria Conservatory of Music.

Others on the island receiving grants were Strathcona Park Outdoor Education Society, $50,000; Banfield Marine Station for its school and college program, $8,000, and Greater Victoria Society for Alternative Communication for Handicapped Individuals, $4,000.

Total of grants made province-wide was $221,000.

Jennifer Lindsay of Sidney was over-all winner in the under 15 class, taking four firsts. In the Clan Championships Jennifer was second runner-up and in the Canadian Inter-Provincial Championships she was first runner-up in the under 16 class.

Other successful performances were chalked up by Jennifer Thompson of Comox who received three seconds and a fifth in the N.S. Open and Tammy Whyte of Victoria who was seventh.

In the under 11 class Victoria's Tracy Curtis received a second, a fourth and a sixth. Others representing Victoria and the province were Janice Hope, Tanna Allan and Leah Wood.

She does it all for love of sax

TORONTO (CP) — Jane Fair has done everything from punching clocks in department stores to flashing smiles while demonstrating musical instruments — all for the love of her sax.

Ms. Fair, a shy wisp of a girl, says she has no illusions about becoming rich and famous.

A late-comer to the jazz scene at 23, her determination to master the intricacies of the saxaphone after a brief fling with classical flute led her to love jazz "like nothing else."

Born in Barrie, Ont., Ms. Fair used to sing in the local church choir and took piano lessons.

"But when I first heard jazz I was smitten — it demanded all my energy."

Maintaining a low profile is nothing new to her. She wrote original music for a Canadian film, Passages, which "made it in a small way."

She resents the difference between rock musicians and their less popular jazz counterparts.

"A jazz musician must realize that he will always play to small crowds and will seldom be a rich man," she laments. For her, rock 'n' rollers inhabit another universe where all they need is the right face and the right guitar to be on road to success.

"A rock musician doesn't know what it is to practise every day, to forget everything for the sake of music.

"A jazz musician is bare and intense — he plays his heart out for a pittance — but he loves it all the same."

MLAs quickly correct Socred 'error'

Before the session . . . Bennett, Barrett and (back) Barnes

Controller-General L. G. Bonnell said it costs $60,000 a day to have the legislature in session.

But that does not include paying 24 guards kept on overtime for the evening session. Officials refused to say how much the guards make but agreed their overtime bill could be $2,000 for the evening.

One of the major costs, and the most difficult to estimate, is that of bringing MLAs to Victoria from their holiday haunts. Three government planes urgently winged about the province collecting MLAs.

The taxpayers also will shoulder the bill for sending telegrams ordering the MLAs back to the capital. The telegrams were followed by telephone calls to each member. As well, the Social Credit and New Democrat caucuses made calls to their individual members.

If the taxpayers are somewhat miffed, the MLAs themselves were less than thrilled. Not only are their long-awaited vacations interrupted, they are stuck with the expense of staying in Victoria.

And, to make matters worse, some members had cancelled their special-rate, long-term accommodation. Tourists, flocking into Victoria for the holiday weekend, had grabbed up all the cheaper hotel and motel space.

The premier and Finance Minister Evan Wolfe were not answering questions about costs.

By voice vote, the lawmakers legislated the company back into business as quickly as it was deregistered.

The hurriedly-prepared legislation, called the Repeal of the Obsolete Statutes Repeal Act, was given royal assent by Bell-Irving at 12:20 a.m.

But not before the NDP members had a field day as 13 of their ranks rose to ridicule the embarrassed and silent government benches over the gaffe.

The repeal of the repeal act is retroactive "to the extent necessary" so any dealing Seaboard undertook during the two days it was wiped off the statute books will be legal.

But for the beleaguered Socreds, the cure was worse than the illness.

The NDP's Barber, who discovered the error as he browsed through a list of repealed statutes while waiting for a friend Wednesday evening, rose as Opposition spokesman and told the government benches the NDP would support the new bill, but not before a bit of a lecture.

Barber called it just another error from a cabinet in chaos.

The Socreds will be known as the "government that dumped Seaboard overboard," he said.

The government is making such mistakes because it is under pressure from within its own ranks, he suggested. The NDP is concerned that those mistakes will lead them back into the house in future under similar circumstances to "clean up some other Socred mess — the next, but presumably not the last, of wholesale errors."

Opposition leader Barrett, who has been taking flak from the Socred benches through two election defeats dating back to 1975, could hardly contain his glee.

"I'm unaccustomed to this reserved, almost humbling silence from the government benches," he said.

"Normally when an opposition member gets up to speak it is an opening for rhetorical cat-calling, hissing and the smug burp and everything else that flies across the house.

"Perhaps it's a new mood of humbleness that overwhelms them in the fact that they've admitted they made a human error," he said.

He noted 24 hours passed between the time the finance minister was told of the error and when he finally called a press conference.

Wolfe's press conference was held a half hour after Barber called one to talk about the error and call for a session of the house.

Worse than the error is the fear inspired by discovering the error, he said. Wolfe delayed 24 hours desperately looking for a way out because of the fear he had about what would happen when it became public that he had made an error.

He told Wolfe, who as deregulation minister was responsible for the bill, to reassess his role in cabinet in view of the delay.

An error is one thing, but to delay admission is inexcusable.

Stu Leggatt (NDP — Coquitlam-Moody) said the legislature is now the laughing stock of the country.

Layoffs, but . . . auto, truck sales up

Times News Services

In the midst of widespread layoffs in the Canadian auto industry (see story on page 28), two Canadian automakers today announced increased car and truck sales for the month of July.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. said it sold a July record of 59,366 units, up from its previous 50,882 record set in July last year.

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. reported retail sales of 28,470 new cars and trucks last month, up from 27,762 in July, 1978.

The total included a July record 10,916 trucks compared with the previous 10,194 record set in July last year.

Chrysler Canada Ltd. was the only automaker to report a sales decline with new unit figures dropping to 17,750 from 18,413 during July, 1978.

Nyerere's attitude fuels peace hopes recent majority rule elections in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia had brought about positive change.

But he said Zimbabwe-Rhodesia still did not enjoy authentic majority rule and he called on Thatcher's government to draft a new Rhodesian constitution establishing it.

"We have to recognize that free and fair elections in Rhodesia are only possible if there is a cease-fire and if they are internationally organized and supervised," Nyerere said.

The Tanzanian president, who supports the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance fighting Muzorewa's government, also attempted to reassure Zimbabwe Rhodesia's 230,000 minority whites.

"The demand for a democratic constitution similarly does not rule out the existence of reserved seats for minorities — even out of proportion to the numbers involved," Nyerere said.

Accepting Britain's responsibility as the power to "grant legal independence to Rhodesia," Thatcher said her government will take the lead in trying to negotiate a settlement acceptable to all parties.

"We will present our proposals as quickly as possible to all the parties, and at the same time call on them to cease hostilities and move forward with us to a settlement," Thatcher said.

British diplomats said Thatcher hoped to present the new proposals within weeks.

Delegates credited Thatcher with the turnabout in the mood of the conference.

Private campfires ban

All campfires have been banned on the eastern half of Vancouver Island, while the total number of forest fires burning in B.C. have passed the 500 mark.

The ban covers the lower mainland and Kelsey Bay south to Victoria and around to Port Renfrew.

The ban does not include adequately supervised provincial parks, commercial campgrounds and picnic grounds.

About 100 new forest fires struck the Nelson-Kamloops area Thursday night during a lightning storm.

A forest service spokesman said low cloud in the area early today prevented forest service aircraft from closely identifying the fires.

On a positive note, he said all the major fires have now been contained, including one north of Lillooet which had burned more than 1,900 acres.

TOWN TALK

Hats off to rock bands like Cheap Trick.

The high voltage four-man group gave 8,000 teen-agers a chance to let off steam harmlessly inside Memorial Arena Monday night.

They screamed, they yelled, they clapped and stomped their feet. The noise from the audience almost rivalled the wall of sound from the awesome stack of amplifiers piled up on stage.

Apart from the odd flying bottle and a minor scuffle in the corridor, the only harm done was to the eardrums.

When a B.C. Ferries crew appeared at the Fulford Harbour terminal on Salt Spring Island early today, they found the Queen of the Islands listing about six degrees. It seems the crew that tied up Thursday night snugged her up too tightly and when the tide dropped, so did the ferry, leaving her hung up on one side. A report has it that a well-wielded axe severed the steel cable and the 6:40 a.m. sailing was on time.

Interesting observation department: Of all the deckhands aboard the ferry this morning, not one was a fulltime employee.

And people wonder why train travel isn't popular any more.

It took Frank Darlington, 2311 Musrgrave, most of a day and a lot of patience to purchase a Canadian National Railway daycoach ticket to Kamloops. By the time he got it, he was so aggravated he almost didn't feel like going.

"It's kind of disgraceful that it's a national railway you can't buy a ticket on," he told Town Talk.

Darlington said he first phoned a Zenith number in Vancouver and was told he'd have to pick the ticket up over there the day before the trip. Since he didn't feel like travelling to Vancouver just to pick up a ticket, he hunted for a Victoria travel agent who handles CN tickets.

It took him a long time to find one. Darlington thinks the least the federal-government operated railway could do is open a ticket office on Vancouver Island.

Jordan River will become the Nashville of the North over the holiday weekend when the local pub sponsors three days of country music on a stage in its parking lot.

Organizer Ian Jamieson is optimistically expecting a crowd of 20,000 country fans to show up at the festival, which features 160 of Vancouver Island's top musicians.

The free show starts Friday at 6 p.m. with Western Union and continues over the weekend with other Victoria musicians including Butch Arthur, B.J. Roberts, and Bill Newman. Special attraction is a performance by the Vancouver Island fiddling champion.

An attempt to smoke wasps from a front porch nest could have turned into a raging inferno if not for the quick thinking of two ladies next door.

Valerie Stubble, 182 Joseph, and her friend Sandra Merino were out in the yard enjoying the sunshine when the staircase across the street at 181 Joseph burst into flame.

They rushed across the road and trained a garden hose on the fire until it extinguished. No one was hurt during the incident, but the wasps were so upset they moved.

A 150 per cent hike in the standard fine for loose dogs was recommended Thursday for adoption by the city as part of a uniform approach throughout the capital region.

Council's group A committee agreed with a proposal by Judge William Ostler to make the first offence fine $25 (up from $10 in Victoria) for dogs running at large, unleashed dogs on public beaches between September and March, and dogs picked up on specified beaches from April through August.

When the children of Mr. and Mrs. Bill George, 3435 Lovatt Avenue, threw a surprise party for the couple's golden wedding anniversary recently, there was the usual collection of gifts.

The children, however, came up with a novel one — a cruise to Alaska aboard the Love Boat of television fame, the Pacific Princess.

Quite appropriate for the occasion.

Mayors, aldermen and press representatives will be invited to take a test flight in the Dash-7 short takeoff and landing craft over Victoria on Aug. 9.

The event, co-ordinated by Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, will be a demonstration of the De Havilland plane's suitability for use in Victoria and on Vancouver Island.

The plane will leave Victoria airport at 1:30 p.m. and again at 2:30 p.m., carrying 40 passengers on each trip. Maximum capacity is 52.

The plane will fly over Work Point, considered the ideal place for a future landing strip, but will not land there during the demonstration flights.

Human nature is such that people pop up from all over to offer help at times of emergencies.

This was true of the plight of the Vietnamese boat people and will also be true of the current fire crisis in provincial forests, says Don Owen, director of the provincial forest protection branch.

Owen said suggestions to alleviate the problem will flow into his office, some practical and others perhaps a bit funny, although he says the branch hesitates to term any of them crank calls.

There will be the usual offers to make rain, he said. And recently a University of B.C. professor developed a water-filled rocket to fight forest fires.

It sounded incredible at first, Owen admits, but the good professor actually built a working prototype. Unfortunately it was only good on small fires against which the branch already has adequate fighting methods.

Other suggestions? Well, there was the chap who recommended the protection service tie water-filled balloons to tree branches.

Then when a fire started, the flames would melt the rubber ballons and douse the fire.

Allotments' top crop: health

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Six years ago Victor Jumago was an extremely sick man and it was only with difficulty his wife Barbara could get him out of bed.

Today on most days, Jumago, a former Alberta lumber mill manager, is seen working among secretaries and doctors, other retired people and clerks, on his allotment garden on Kent Road.

"He's still a sick man," said his wife. "But if it wasn't for this interest — gardening — he would be in bed in hospital.

Jumago says its the air and the friendly gardeners around him that keeps him going.

"My doctor says keep it up", he added.

Working on a nearby plot is a retired businessmen living in an apartment who came close to becoming an alcoholic until a friend told him about the B.C department of agriculture renting out garden plots for $20 a year.

"Since I started gardening, I have never looked back," he said. "I was bored then, but no longer."

There are many more apartment dwellers renting government plots in the Greater Victoria area who attribute their good physical and mental health to this form of recreation.

It also saves them money — about $500 worth of vegetables grown in a plot 20 by 50 feet.

But it seems gardening for profit ranks low in priority among their reasons for growing vegetables.

Most plot-holders share the views of John Fisher, 69, that growing food keeps them in shape and provides them with fresh vegetables — really fresh, pulled straight from the life-giving soil.

Welsh-born horticulturist Dick Keepence, who is in charge of the allotment gardens, agrees gardening for many apartment dwellers is preventive medicine.

"I think most physicians will agree that these gardens are saving taxpayers thousands of dollars in health bills," he said. "It cost about $165 to keep a person in hospital one day. Thirty thousand a year to keep a patient in mental hospital. I know some people who would be taking up hospitals bed if it wasn't for this interest."

He noted the British Health Ministry has for years recognized allotment gardening as one of the most important forms of recreation.

"It's rated so high that government has made it law that cities must provide allotment gardens," he added. "It's not a matter if they want to or not."

Keepence said nearly half of the plot holders are retired people.

"They look forward to coming here," he said. "Many say if it wasn't for the gardens they would be bored stiff watching TV and sitting around in their apartments."

The remainder of plot-holders are younger adults, single and married. They include doctors, teachers and businessmen.

"These people garden mainly as a relief from tensions," he said. "Not all people like golf or swimming, you know."

But Keepence said the majority of dropouts — people who give up looking after their gardens — come from this group. This was mainly due to having too many other recreational activities.

"If a person plans to rent an allotment garden, he should be prepared to devote at least five hours a week to it," he said. "Leaving it go is not fair to others as the plot becomes a haven for weeds and spreads to other gardens."

Keepence is in charge of five garden allotment sites at Kent, Kenneth off Glanford, Agnes, Gordon Head Road and Wilkinson Road. They encompass 22 acres, providing a total of 450 plots.

Big top pleads not guilty

Tent show operator Colin Gorrie entered not guilty pleas in provincial court today to four charges in connection with performances at the Inner Harbor.

Gorrie and Kaleidoscope Theatre Productions were charged jointly with erecting a tent for public assembly without submitting plans and specifications to the fire marshal for approval under the Fire Services Act; opening to the public without inspection and approval; erecting a tent contrary to local bylaws, and using a tent contrary to the bylaws.

The offences are alleged to have taken place between June 26 and July 14 at the theatre company's summer show site at Ship's Point, where matinee and evening performances are offered for children and adults.

The case was remanded one week to fix a date for trial.

Earlier, city manager Jim Bramley and Gorrie met with safety officials to agree on steps that would be required to avoid closing the tent and safety conditions were met.

Help for waifs, strike at drugs? City seeks street kids solution

Law enforcement is the only way to solve one aspect of the street people problem in downtown Victoria, a city council committee was told Thursday.

But for street people generally city council was urged to set up a new community-based group to examine problems in connection with drifters and transients, runaways and others making the streets their home.

Ald. Robin Blencoe, who is sympathetic with most of the apparently rootless street children, said the problems associated with Bastion Square are a "hard-core situation and the only way to deal with it is by enforcement," such as undercover police in the drug trade.

Group A committee adopted a number of recommendations put forward by Blencoe after the meeting heard from several street youngsters invited by the alderman to tell about their way of life.

The major request going to city council is for a broad committee to examine the problem of street people and propose solutions to concerns expressed by merchants who consider the youngsters an undesireable nuisance.

This committee should include spokesmen for the street children, the business community, police, human resources and social service agencies.

Second in priority should be a recommendation to the ministry of human resources to provide immediately one or more street workers to deal with young people in the downtown core, the committee decided.

Next, if a street worker is designated, the police board should be asked to assign one or more policemen to specialize in street work.

Finally, it is recommended that the police board as soon as possible examine the status of its community relations section in the light of street problems.

Blencoe said that section at present is "mediocre, understaffed and underbudgeted." It should have police officers that care and who can get their brother officers to "back off" in the way they have been dealing with street children.

A merchants' petition complained of drunks, numbers of people congregating and using rude language; winos, vandals and panhandlers. Bastion Inn asked council to remove the street furniture from the square near the hotel, making it less comfortable for loungers.

Blencoe said many of the so-called undesirables are committing no crime by usual police standards, by sitting on a bench, standing on a corner and talking noisily or rudely. Short-term measures such as restricting liquor outlets and closer enforcement of liquor laws would only shift part of the problem, he said.

The real problem is social and deep-rooted, he suggested. The recommended committee should identify the extent and causes of trouble, then find solutions and preventions.

Blencoe thought neither council nor the merchants and downtown workers who complain have much understanding of the real problem, although some have tried to lay blame.

The way police handle street people has to be looked at, the alderman said.

Social worker Shirley Wakeham appeared with the dozen or so youngsters who came to the meeting. She said she is involved with street people because some, as young as 10 or 12, have gone downtown from her caseload territory in Esquimalt-View Royal.

Council members should see these children first-hand, she suggested: "I have no words to desribe how bereft it makes me feel."

She concurred with statements from some that police taunt the youngsters. A friend of a street person described how she was thrown bodily into a patrol van and spent the night in jail simply for coming to the defence of her friend who was being attacked by police.

One said "people are always calling us down" and that treatment by society and the police is brutal.

"People on the street get tougher; they have to, they're beat on," said another.

Several said they go downtown to meet people they can associate with at a level of mutual trust, something they lack in home or school relationships. They want the chance to help themselves, perhaps through a drop-in centre where they can be with their friends and perhaps engage in creative activity.

Firework sales bylaw drafted

The capital region's first uniform bylaw governing the handling of fireworks by retail merchants has been submitted for approval to seven municipalities and the Capital Regional Board.

CRD executive director Dennis Young was asked to draft a law that would be acceptable to all areas following a fatal fire in Quonley's grocery store on Government Street. The blaze was started apparently by smoking in a back room where fireworks were displayed.

Victoria council's group A committee endorsed the bylaw Thursday.

The requirements limit the quantity of fireworks a dealer may have in his store to 23 kilograms (50.7 pounds); limit sales to the last eight days of October; make it necessary for each owner or occupier of premises where fireworks are stored to have a specified fire extinguisher available, and to have had instruction in its use; specify that fireworks must be kept away from any source of ignition and in an area that is not readily accessible to customers.

City won't allow prizefighting

So You Wanna Fight?, an amateur prizefighting promotion at Memorial Arena, is "just a way to make a quick buck — totally uncivilized," a Victoria alderman said Thursday.

Two such events were held before the attorney-general warned that amateur prizefighting must be governed by local athletic commissions or be subject to criminal proceedings.

Ald. Robin Blencoe told group A committee it was a sad way to provide entertainment, and the committee agreed with him that a boxing commission should not be set up at this time.

"I have no objection to sports boxing, but this is just a way to tear at your neighbor," said Mayor Mike Young. "Not as rough as hockey, but still . . ."

Barlow helps spring major tennis upset

OTTAWA — Wendy Barlow of Victoria and Karen Dewis of London, Ont., gained the final of the women's doubles competition with an upset victory indoors Thursday at the Canadian closed tennis championships.

Barlow and Dewis downed top-seeded Nicole Marois and Helene Pelletier of Quebec City, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5. Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa and Lise Senn of Toronto defeated Judith and Susan Pridham of Mississauga, Ont., 6-4, 7-6 in the other semi-final.

Rain forced postponement of men's and women's singles matches until today.

Consistency finally pays off

Two of the most consistent pacers at Sandown Raceway came up with their first victories Thursday, both coming through the stretch to win photo decisions during the 43rd day of the harness-racing meet.

Brave Buller, which had been second three times and third twice in nine previous Sandown starts and under 2:05 in its last three starts, won the featured eighth race, beating Mitchs Butch and Thirteens Best to the wire. The win price was $15.50 and the exactor payoff $60.40.

Hunters Quill, second three times and third four times at Sandown and under 2:05 five times in a row, nosed out Holridge Duke and Kalamea Brad, paying $10.80.

A crowd of 1,347 wagered $100,354 during the nine-race card.

Ekstrom sparks Firefighters

POWELL RIVER — Rob Ekstrom pitched a two-hitter as Victoria Firefighters smashed Coquitlam 9-1 in opening play Thursday at the British Columbia Senior Babe Ruth baseball championship tournement.

Firefighters, who meet North Vancouver today, also took advantage of four opposition errors while recording the victory.

In other first-round games, North Vancouver edged Prince George 1-0 and Vancouver downed Nanaimo, 7-4.

Meanwhile, at Nanaimo, Vancouver Intercommunity defeated Trail 9-2 in the final of the B.C. Babe Ruth (14-15) championship.

Optimists lead delayed game

Saanich Evening Optimists enjoyed a two-run edge in the seventh inning Thursday when darkness forced an halt in play in the British Columbia Babe Ruth (13-year-olds) baseball championship tournament at Reynolds Park.

Optimists led Prince George 7-5 in the game which was scheduled to be completed earlier today.

In other games, Duncan topped Victoria Cosmopolitan-Gordon Head 9-6, Trail blanked North Vancouver 10-0 and Vancouver Intercommunity was forced to rally before beating Coquitlam, 19-13.

B.C. grabs basketball titles

LONDON, Ont. — British Columbia downed Ontario 94-88 Thursday to win the Ted Early tournament and wrap up an unbeaten summer junior men's basketball program.

British Columbia also claimed the women's title in the tourney.

The men's squad, coached by Ken Shields of the University of Victoria, went 4-0 in the tourney after sweeping three straight games at the West Coast Classic at UVic the previous weekend.

Mike Jackel of Burnaby, voted to the all-star team, scored 34 points to lead the B.C. attack while Gord Herbert of Penticton added 25 and tournament MVP Doug Kelsey of Vancouver contributed 12.

In the women's section, B.C. edged Ontario 51-48 in the final to finish with a 3-1 record. Luanne Hebb of UVic was named to the all-star team.

Vancouver squads make final

Victoria Drive of Vancouver beat Trail 4-3 in eight innings Thursday, to gain the final of the British Columbia Little League baseball championship at Prince George.

Thomas Wong of Victoria Drive hit a sharp single up the middle, scoring Gurmit Sandhu from third to break a 3-3 tie in the bottom of the eighth and lift the Vancouver club into today's final against Dunbar, also of Vancouver.

Dunbar is going after its third B.C. championship in the tournament's 29-year history. Dunbar won the tournament in 1962 and 1975. Victoria Drive has never won the B.C. title.

If Victoria Drive beats Dunbar today, another game will be played Saturday morning. Dunbar is undefeated in the double knockout tournament while Marine Drive has lost once.

The winner advances to the Canadian championship in Lethbridge, Alta., starting Aug. 11.

Esquimalt trips Landscapers

Randy Bryant scored five goals and added three assists Thursday night while sparking Esquimalt Universal Sheet Metal to a 13-9 win over G&W Landscaping in the deciding game of their best-of-three Vancouver Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League playoff semi-final at Pearkes Arena.

Esquimalt now meets Victoria Athletics in a best-of-three final series starting at 8 p.m. Monday at Pearkes.

Mark Bowles added two goals to the Esquimalt total.

Mussels up for grabs

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

If Victoria Mussels return for a third season in the Northwest League next year, it will be under new ownership.

Owners Jim and Lynn Chapman, who have absorbed heavy financial losses since bringing professional baseball back to Victoria last year, want out.

"We lost enough money that we've reached the point we're ready to move out," Jim said Thursday night as the Mussels opened a six-game home stand with a come-from-behind 5-4 victory over Medford Athletics before 265 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

"We'd like to get someone to take the club over," he continued. "We'd give it free of charge to anyone willing to take over the debts."

Finding a taker would be a problem, but Chapman pointed out that at least two major league teams are interested in operating a Victoria farm club next year. He did not want to name them.

Mussels have operated without a major league affiliation although the Chapmans have an agreement this year with Van Schley of Texas, who owns most of the players and pays their salaries. Schley has indicated he would like to operate his own team and is considering the possibility of resurrecting the Longhorn League, a class "A" circuit of independent clubs in Texas that folded a year ago.

"There have been some good indications of a player development contract (a major league affiliation)," Jim said. "A couple of clubs have been in town looking over the operation. We just found out about it yesterday (Wednesday)."

Of more immediate concern to the Chapmans was a date conflict at Athletic Park tonight involving the Mussels and Victoria Budgets, who have a Norwest Major League fastball doubleheader slated against Longview, Wash., Boondocks starting at 7. The issue was resolved after a lengthy meeting with the city Thursday afternoon.

Tonight's fastball twin bill will go on as scheduled. Mussels, meanwhile, have postponed tonight's doubleheader against Medford until Saturday when the clubs will meet at Athletic Park in a pair of seven-inning encounters starting at 10 a.m.

A similar conflict this Sunday was also resolved with Budgets meeting Yakima Pepsis in a doubelheader beginning at 12:30 p.m. and Mussels postponing a single afternoon game against Eugene Emeralds to 7:30 Sunday night.

Thursday night's win pulled the Mussels back up to the .500 won-lost level in their battle with Bellingham Mariners for second place in the league's northern division. It also kept Victoria within striking distance of first-place Walla Walla Padres.

Home-grown pitching product Roy Moretti picked up the win in relief, his third of the season against two losses. He came in to squelch a seventh-inning Medford uprising in which the A's had taken a 4-3 lead on Terry Harper's RBI double off Dave Weis.

Weis had replaced starter Tom Candiotti in the fifth.

Mussels won it with two runs in the ninth — one of them unearned — on two walks, a couple of fielders' choices, a two-base throwing error by losing pitcher Keith Call and a bases-loaded single by Jim Burton that drove in the winner.

The loss was the first against three wins by Call, who yielded a run in the fifth on a walk and singles by Danny Purpura and Rod Murphy, the gave up two more in the sixth on singles by Pete Rabassa and Doug Morganti and a double by Tom Dorsey.

Victoria was without three players. And ankle sprain has sidelined Nick Belmonte for up to three weeks, John Frietas has been called home to Phoenix because of illness in the family and Chris Gandy has a groin injury.

Rare day off ends in crash

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — It was a rare day off for Thurman Munson, one of those special, private times he could spend with his family in the midst of a long and exhausting baseball season.

So the New York Yankee star came back to Ohio to see his wife and three children and to spend a relaxing afternoon Thursday flying his private jet.

Then it happened, the plane plunging into the ground, flames lighting up the airfield — and Munson dead.

"I saw an aircraft totally involved in flames," said Jeff Kashburn, a sheriff's deputy who rushed to the grim scene at the Canton-Akron airport. "I tried, but couldn't come closer than 30 feet because of the intensity of the flames. The body was burned beyond recognition."

Officials said the 32-year-old Yankee captain and team leader was killed at 4:02 p.m. EDT while practicing take-offs and landings in his Cessna Citation, a twin-engine jet.

Two other men aboard the plane, David Hall, 32, and Jerry D. Anderson, 31, were injured, but neither was seriously hurt.

A spokesman at Children's Hospital in Akron said Hall, Munson's flight instructor from Canton, was in fair condition with burns on his hands. Anderson, of Canton, a close friend of the 11-year Yankee catcher, was in fair condition at Canton Timken Mercy Hospital with burns on his face, neck and forearms.

"He was flying home on an off-day, which he does," said Yankee publicist Mickey Morabito of Munson. "Thurman is a very good family man, he loves to be with his family. It's one of the reasons he got the plane, to get home and spend some more time with them. Unfortunately, that's what he was doing, going home to be with the family, and it's a tragedy."

An employee for the Federal Aeronautics Administration at the Akron-Canton airport said of the tragedy: "There is an embankment at the end of the the runway, and he (Munson) was at least 40 feet low there."

According to an FAA spokesman in the Chicago office, which covers the Canton-Akron area, Munson's jet had "been engaged in some touch-and-go practice, takeoffs and landings" when the crash occurred.

The spokesman, Neal Callahan, said the cause of the crash was not immediately known, and would be investigated by the National Transportation Safety Board, but added: "weather does not appear to be a factor." The plane — with the number 15NY (Munson's Yankee number) on it — was coming in for a landing and crashed about 1,000 feet short of Runway 19, officials said.

DEPARTING from squad is Don Kessinger, player-manager of Chicago White Sox, who resigned Thursday because he didn't know how to stop the team's slide into American League baseball cellar.

Six hours and 48 minutes for Expos to move along

By Canadian Press

It took six hours and 48 minutes for Montreal Expos and Chicago Cubs to play a baseball game Thursday. It seemed a lot longer to some of the participants.

"Is that all we played, nine innings?" asked Expos manager Dick Williams after first-place Montreal extended its National League East Division lead to two games by surviving three rain delays and beating the Cubs 6-4. "We tried to end it a couple of times."

One of those times was in the first inning, when thunder boomed and lightning flashed.

"I had one heck of a day today," said Expos outfielder Warren Cromartie. "I didn't sleep well last night, I got to the ball park at 11 o'clock, I got everything scared out of me by lightning and I took an 0-for-4."

Cromartie, 0-for-4 at the plate, nervously paced in left field in the top of the first. His mind, he admitted, wasn't where it should have been and his eyes were focused outside Olympic Stadium, where work crews were using two huge cranes to build a tower.

"I kept looking up at those cranes," said Cromartie. "I didn't want no ricochet from those things."

The first rain delay lasted 75 minutes. The second was 38 minutes and the third lasted two hours.

Montreal got two RBIs from Larry Parrish, who knocked in Andre Dawson with a double in the fifth and had a run-scoring single in the sixth.

In other NL games, St. Louis rallied to nip Pittsburgh 5-4; the Phillies and Mets split a pair, Philadelphia taking the opener 7-4 and the Mets winning the second game 2-1 and Atlanta beat San Diego, 7-2.

In the lone American League game, Bob Watson, 33, and Dwight Evans both clubbed a pair of homers and knocked in three runs apiece, while Butch Hobson added a bases empty shot off Milwaukee's battered pitching as the Red Sox thrashed the slumping Brewers, 10-1.

Mike Torrez, 12-6, fired a six hitter for the second place Red Sox, who pulled to within seven games of idle Baltimore in the AL East after having lost 3½ games in the race in the previous seven days. The third place Brewers fell 10 games back with their fourth consecutive defeat.

Watson, twice a National League all-star with a .297 batting average for 10-plus seasons with the Astros, has hit .351 with 10 homers and 30 runs batted in since joining the Red Sox just before the trading deadline.

Games' officials on guard

RICHMOND (CP) — Athletes caught drinking at the British Columbia Summer Games will be dealt with quickly as officials hope to prevent a repeat of alcohol-related incidents at past competitions, security director Jim Webb said Thursday.

Last year at Penticton, two athletes were sent home early and at the Winter Games in Kamloops in March, the North Vancouver hockey team was sent packing after team members were found drinking.

Webb said a four-member discipline committee has been set up to deal with possible infractions.

Games chairman Ron Butlin made tacit reference to drinking during opening ceremonies Thursday when he told rugby players — whose sport is traditionally connected with drinking — that curfew for them would be 9:30 p.m. and that double security had been ordered for their residences.

Vanderboor collects gold

John Vanderboor of Juan de Fuca Cohos brought home some gold Thursday during competition in the Canadian national Division II swim championships at Crystal Pool.

Vanderboor, 21, earned a gold medal by winning the 100-metre freestyle event in 56:03 seconds, outdistancing runner-up Lawrence Wright of Victoria Amateur Swim Club by 1.7 seconds.

Bill Winram, another VASC member, and Karen Coutts of Cohos, both 15, were the only other Victoria-area medal winners during the second day of the four-day meet, which runs concurrently with a meet in eastern Canada.

Winram collected a bronze medal for a third-place finish in the 100-metre breaststroke and Coutts claimed a bronze in the women's 100 breaststroke.

Jeff Beatty of Regina Dolphins captured the men's 400-metre individual medley in a time of 4:55.61; Jack Ashton of Edmonton Olympians won the 100-metre breaststroke, clocking in at 1:12.35; and Canadian Dolphins of Vancouver won the 800-metre men's freestyle medley in 8:31.59.

In women's events, Canadian Dolphins also won the 800-metre freestyle relay, with a time of 9:13.72.

Individually, Diane Maruk of Saskatoon Goldfins was first in the 100-metre breaststroke, in 1:20.53; Sandy Honour of Regina Dolphins won the 100-metre freestyle, with a time of 1:02.40.

New owner won't be moving Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Years of tediouus negotiations, frustrations and deals that fell through at the last minute ended Thursday with the sale of Baltimore Orioles to Edward Bennett Williams, president of pro football's Washington Redskins.

The prominent Washington attorney and Democratic Party leader promised to keep the American League club a winner here — as long as the fans support the team.

"I want the kind of support which would permit me to keep the Baltimore Orioles in the status I'm going to receive them," he said. "I want them to be champions and competitors, not going downhill . . .

"I did not buy them to move them. I bought them to play in Baltimore so long as the city support thems. That's my pledge to this city."

Plagued by financial losses despite compiling the major leagues' best record over the past 22 years, the Orioles are on top of the American League East by 7½ games with baseball's best record going into their weekend series with the Yankees in New York.

The Orioles are also averaging more than 21,000 fans for each home date this year and seem certain to break the club's home attendence record of more than 1.2 million set in 1966, Jerold C. Hoffberger's first year as Orioles president.

Hoffberger, who has spent much of the past several years in until-now fruitless negotiations to sell the club, was with Williams when the sale was announced at news conference Thursday, just 1½ hours after Williams met with the Orioles' board of directors for the first time.

The sale, for Hoffberger's original $12 million asking price, is to take effect Nov. 1, after the end of the club's current fiscal year, with the purchase price then adjusted for profits or losses.

Shaw Island sailing test for the unconventional

AROUND OUR SHORES

Pat Dufour

One of the most popular — and unconventional — races of the season takes place Saturday, Aug. 11 on San Juan Island.

It's the seventh annual Shaw Island Classic, sponsored by the San Juan Island Yacht Club.

The race starts at Friday Harbor at 11:30 a.m. The only mark of the course is Shaw Island and that can be taken to either port or starboard.

Registration will take place on the committee boat at the main dock and closes at 11:15 a.m.

This year's chairman, Karl Loveland, says no flying sails, such as spinnakers and streakers, will be allowed, boats can use only one jib but boats that have standing staysail rigging may fly staysails.

There will be a 10-minute gun and a yellow flag, a five-minute gun with a white flag and a red flag with the start gun. Karl says if the gun misfires just watch the flag.

This is supposed to be a fun race for every type of sailboat. The race committee will put each boat in a class and boats without sail numbers will be given large cardboard panels with numbers on them.

There will be six divisions. One will be for classic cruising boats, another for cruising boats, one for modern racing-cruising boats, another for centreboarders, one for catamarans and the Diamond Head division for the large boats.

If you want to have more details drop Karl a line. His address is 720 Channel Vista Way, Friday Harbor, Wash., 98250. The phone number is 206-378-2827.

Undoubtedly, some of Victoria's rapidly-growing Hobie Cat fleet will be tempted into taking part in the race as they never miss a chance for some competition. This weekend they're cruising the Gulf Islsnds and San Juans and will be putting in at Bedwell Harbor, Sucia Island and Friday Harbor, where, undoubtedly, they'll be able to get first-hand details about the race.

For those just getting into the boating game or contemplating doing so there's no better preparation than taking a power squadron basic boating course at night school.

The Victoria Power Squadron will man a display and registration booth at the Mayfair Shopping Centre Aug.9, 10 and 11 to take registrations for their course, which will start in late September at the Spectrum community school. The course goes right through to March.

Graduates of the course will be eligible for membership in the squadron.

If you can't make it to the shopping centre give either Gerry Clark or Jim Gillies a ring. Their numbers are 479-3137 and 592-7170.

Those that took part in last Friday's long-distance race from Cadbodo Bay to Munro Head that began the annual regatta of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, took quite a dusting. A strong adverse tide and 30-plus knot winds combined to test the mettle of both boats and crews.

All those in the race were impressed with Pauline Hayes' Amarak with her all-girl crew which successfully completed the course and gained a creditable fourth place.

Pauline also finished fifth overall in her division once the regatta was over.

Friends tell me she broke down in the last race on Sunday and carried a male bartender aboard.

In Division 1, Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet, the winner of Friday's long-distance race was Doug Taylor-Lee's Helios of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. Runner-up was RVYC's Larry Shorter's Kila Kila and in third place was Roy Jawula'a Beowulf of RVYC.

In Division 11, PHRF, it was Paul Jensen's Dania of CFSA, followed by RVYC's George Parkes' Fairlight and Doug Russell's Ithaqua of CFSA.

Overall regatta winners in Division 1 were Helios, kila Kila and Beowulf. Regatta winners in Division 11 were Ithaqua, Jim Rogers' Sara of CFSA and Dania.

Top Thunderbirds were Helios and Kila Kila.

In Laser racing it was Frank Towler, followed by Olaf Thyvold and Garry Rogers, all of CFSA.

The host squadron also took on the Chilliwack and Comox CFSA squadrons in team racing, using the squadron's 420s. Esquimalt won, being trailed by Comox and Chilliwack. M. Saint-Cyr of Chilliwack scored the most points. Next came Michael Moore of Esquimalt and Mike Channon of Comox.

Benefit swing by softball

Eight teams will compete in the inaugural Heywood-Pearkes Clinic men's benefit softball tournament starting Saturday at Macdonald Park.

Games are scheduled to start at 12 noon Saturday and Sunday as well as 10 a.m. Monday.

The top team in each division following round-robin play will advance to the final at 4 p.m. Monday with the second team in each division meeting in a consolation final at 2.

Meanwhile, in Victoria Senior Women's League playoff action Thursday at Hyacinth Park, Stockers North Americans swept a best-of-three semi-final series by tripping Island Dryco Breakers, 10-3.

Stockers now advance to the final against the winner of the VI 90 Vicettes-Bemister's Welding series, which is tied 1-1 and concludes next week.

Debbie Derkson threw a five hitter to pick up the Stocker pitching win while Lorna Lundeen and Gail Prince each had three hits to lead the attack. Prince also drove in three runs.

Strathcona Stingers defeated Pirates 5-2 in a consolation series game.

At Macdonald Park, Ash Douglas bashed a three-run homer and Pete Lawson fired a four-hitter to lead Strathcona Hotel to a 10-0 Macdonald Men's League shutout over Saints.

In Heywood League play, Rick Kasper connected for a three-run homer and added another RBI as Remco defeated Brentwood 9-3 at Heywood Avenue Park. Bruce Thomson contributed four hits for Remcos.

Lopez hits form

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Nancy Lopez shot seven birdies and narrowly missed a few more Thursday, grabbing the first-round lead in the Ladies' Professional Golf Association's European championship with a six-under 68.

Joyce Kazmierski, at 69, and Mardell Wilkins, at 70, were next in line.

Wilkins had a sensational, but bizarre, round. She was four-over-par after five holes, but at the 11th she began a fantastic run of birdie-eagle-birdie-birdie. She had another eagle at the par-five 16th and finished her round bogey-birdie, playing the last nine holes in 31, seven under par.

'Beau' Regina leader

REGINA (CP) — Bob Beauchemin, a lefthander from Victoria, fired a five-under-par 67 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the 54-hole Saskatchewan Open golf championship.

Beauchemin carded an eagle and three birdies over the 6,400-yard Wascana Country Club layout and held a two-shot advantage over Pat O'Donnell of Windsor.

Defending champion Roger Klatt of St. Albert, Alta., was among a group of four golfers tied at 70. His companions were Jim Rutledge of Victoria, John Colwell of Toronto and Tom McNall of Regina, the low amateur.

Beauchemin and 87 other golfers battled winds gusting up to 45 kilometres an hour. Beauchemin's eagle on the 518-yard, par-five second hole came after he hit the green in two and sank a 30-foot putt.

"The course is in great shape but it's playing a bit tricky with that wind," Beauchemin said.

Excellent salmon returns from two general areas

Fishermen are pulling in some excellent salmon catches around the southern and mid-eastern portions of Vancouver Island.

Charlie Rushton boated the heaviest chinook weighed in at Sooke in recent days with a 35-pounder landed Monday on a pink hootchie off Secretary Island. But John Bellis came close Tuesday, boating a 29½-pounder on the same tackle off the Bluffs.

Most of the catch, however, consists of coho to nine pounds with a few pinks to 10 and sockeye to nine thrown in for variety.

Best results were noted by fishing with pink hootchies or Squirts along the tide lines off Secretary. Action has also started to heat up off Otter Point.

Much the same variety of sizes and species is found at Becher Bay.

Wally Kennedy came in from Becher with a nice limit catch early Thursday morning — chinooks weighing 24, 17 and 14 pounds and a 10 pound coho.

Waters down to the 40-foot depth off Beechey Head and the Trap Shack are especially productive.

Numerous pinks and coho in the five-to-nine pound range are being weighed in at Pedder Bay with pink-hued gear working best.

Two young staff members from Pedder Bay Marina — Steve Manzer and Brett Helgesen — came in with a nice catch Thursday morning. Steve caught two chinooks weighing 21 and eight pounds along with a five-pound coho and Brett boated two coho weighing 7¼ and five pounds. Both were fishing with pink and purple hootchies in Race Pass.

The largest chinook this week was a 39½-pounder taken Sunday by M. Salter on a hootchie right in Pedder Bay.

Oak Bay waters are yielding coho to 10½ pounds and a few chinooks to 19 off The Flats, Trial Island and Discovery Island. Super-strip and minnows are producing the top catches.

John Salvador was one of the fishermen working hard for their success off Sidney. He landed a limit catch with the top chinook tipping the scales at 21:10 while trolling a green and white hootchie at the 116-foot depth off Fairfax Point.

"Quite a few" coho in the five to six pound range are showing up off Fairfax as well as Sidney Spit, Dock Island and Coal Island.

Deep Cove action has slowed down a little but some fair catches of jacks to four pounds have been landed off Wain Rock on drift-fishing gear.

Green hootchies and plugs are nailing chinooks to 26 pounds in deep waters off Bamberton and Tozier Rock and a few coho to seven pounds are turning up in Indian Bay.

Good catches were reported from Finlayson Arm with chinooks to 26 pounds and quite a few coho to eight pounds grabbing every type of terminal gear.

Further up-Island, action is still slow off Duncan with only a few chinooks and coho coming from Bold Bluff and Porlier Pass.

Nanaimo fishermen are having to content themselves with a few chinooks to 24 pounds off Hudson Rock and near the White Marker in Hammond Bay. Strip-casters and Buzz-Bombers have been doing best.

Sangster Island and Lasqueti Island waters are yielding coho to eight pounds on yellow and white Flashtails.

Action is finally starting to pick up around the mouth of Alberni Inlet in the vicinity of Village Island and Bamfield. Chinooks to 30 pounds are coming from deep waters on strip or Stingsildas.

Trollers using various types of bait are landing coho averaging five pounds off Hornby Island and closer to shore off Bates Beach.

"Fabulous" was the word used to describe fishing at Campbell River. Chinooks to 40 pounds are turning up off Cape Mudge, the Red and Black Cans, Butler Point and Whiskey Point. Francisco Point (red hot) and Black Can areas are yielding coho to eight pounds.

Trollers using strip, whole herring, Flashtails and Fluttertails are pulling in the top catches.

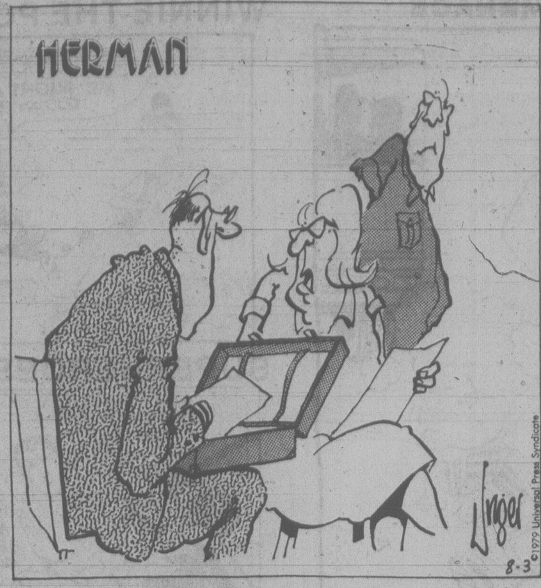
Trout fishermen are finding fair pickings in most high-elevation or larger lakes around Vancouver Island. But the hot weather continues to affect access in a number of areas and warm water has produced "wormy" fish in a number of spots.



"What would the 'widow's benefits' be, say, six months from now?"

Carnarvon opens with easy victory

CASTLEGAR — Defending champion Carnarvon of Victoria defeated Chilliwack 6-2 as play opened Thursday in the British Columbia Pony League baseball championship tournament.

Shortstop Doug Malpass bashed a grand-slam home run in the sixth inning to lead the Carnarvon attack and Mike Shannon contributed two hits in three trips to the plate.

Jamie McIntosh, who took over in the fifth inning, and Danny McDonnell combined to limit Chilliwack to two hits.

Carnarvon was scheduled to face South Burnaby, which downed Little Mountain of Vancouver 10-4, in a game today. In other opening games, Tsawwassen defeated Kelowna 9-2 and Castlegar topped Vernon, 8-5.

Chilliwack	002 000 0—2	2	2

Danny McDonnell, Jimmy McIntosh (5) and David Backhouse; Brian Skvipnik and Brad Anderson. Home run: Carnarvon — Doug Malpass.

Brill a winner

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., won the women's high jump Thursday at the Copenhagen Games track and field competition. Brill jumped 1.88 metres to finish ahead of Soete Way of Belgium (1.85) and Pam Spencer of the United States (1.80).

Two other Canadians fared well. Bruno Pauletto of Quebec City was second in the men's shot put and Penny Werthner of Ottawa was third in the women's 1,500-metre race.

Games fieldhouse will be 'playable'

SASKATOON (CP) — The city's new $4.5-million fieldhouse will be "playable" although not completely finished when the Western Canada Summer Games open here Aug. 12, project manager Derrick Carroll has announced. Among missing items will be resilient flooring, purchased at a cost of $250,000 from the city's 1978 surplus.

Watson 'grabs it' to take PGA lead

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Tom Watson says a golfer's swing is a fleeting thing.

The golfer gets in the groove one day, he says, and slips out of it the next.

"You can't repeat the swing forever, and it does change," said Watson, who says he's found a new swing for the 61st PGA Championship, the last major golf tournament of the year. "Sometimes it can change when you take some time off. You've got to grab it; and hold on to it as long as you can."

Watson, who said he changed his swing Tuesday, shot a 33-33-66 over the 7,014-yard, par 70 Oakland Hills Country Club course Thursday to take a one-stroke lead into today's second round.

"When you're playing well, it's exciting," he said. "When you're playing badly and fighting it, it's drudgery. It's exciting now."

Watson, winner of four tournaments and $387,386 thus far this year, leads by a stroke over Rex Caldwell, who disqualified himself for a faulty scorecard in last year's championship. He is two strokes in front of Ron Streck, who had not seen the course before playing it Wednesday, and Jay Haas, whose only tour victory in three years was in San Diego last year.

Fifteen players broke par 70 over the demanding course.

Among those with a 69 are Lou Graham, Gibby Gilbert, Jim Masserio, Hubie Green, Don January, Jerry Pate, Graham Marsh, Bruce Lietzke, David Graham, Ben Crenshaw and Arbie McNickle.

Frank Conner, who had an ace on the 225-yard, par three No. 9, was among the 11 players who had par 70. Among the other par shooters were Masters champion Fuzzy Zoeller, Lee Trevino, Lee Elder, Howard Twitty, Bill Rogers, Dave Stockton and Larry Nelson.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby shot on opening round 74.

Opening lead — ace of spades.

Assume you're declarer at four hearts and West leads the ace of spades, East signalling for a spade continuation with the ten. However, West shifts to the jack of clubs at trick two. You win in dummy with the queen and there you are, faced with the danger of a club ruff because the club lead by West is surely a singleton.

It would be easy to panic at this stage by playing the ace and another trump in an effort to avoid the ruff. But, if you did this, West would win the second trump lead, put partner on lead with a spade, and East would return a club to put the contract down one.

You could, of course, blithely shrug this off as just bad luck. However, the fact remains that West is likely to have the king of hearts for his raise to three spades opposite a preemptive jump overcall. Furthermore, West is also likely to have three trumps to the king rather than only the doubleton king. It would not make sense for him to shift to a club with only two trumps.

So, with defeat staring you in the face if you were to impulsively lead trumps after the ominous club shift, you should start looking for another method of play that gives you a chance to survive this attack from a new quarter.

As it happens, there is an excellent response to West's club shift. After winning the club at trick two, you cash the A-K of diamonds and then lead a spade from dummy.

East wins the spade and returns a club, which West ruffs. But now West can do you no harm, whatever he returns. If he leads a trump, you finesse; if he leads a spade or a diamond, you ruff in your hand and return the trump queen, planning to finesse. Keeping a cool head will sometimes work wonders.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"I can't figure out this invoice for kujus. It looks like it's been in the tub," Joe told his partner. "They were $117 each, but some of the figures are smudged."

Leo looked. "What a mess. Two digits of the amount are gone," he commented. "I make it two something zero something nine, a bit over twenty thousand bucks and no cents, but the number they've shipped is quite illegible."

There were no extra charges, such as shipping costs or taxes. But how many kujus?

Knife taken to Ottawa ads

By JIM ROBB
FP News Service

OTTAWA — Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens is taking his cost-cutting axe to federal government advertising.

He wants to slash about 25 per cent from advertising expenditures which totalled $43 million in the 1977-78 fiscal year.

"We feel that there is an over-expenditure as far as advertising is concerned and our rough guess is that we could probably save about 25 per cent,'' the treasury board president said.

Stevens said an appaisal of why the government needed advertising was called for, plus a clearer definition of "What exactly is the message we are trying to sell?"

This would, he said, ''eliminate what in some ways is almost just puffing where departments are sort of feeling proud of themselves.''

The treasury board president said the government was going to set up what is called an agency of record, an advertising agency outside government that would co-ordinate the placing of advertising with the print and broadcast media. The method is empoyed by the Ontario government.

"There is a general agreement in the cabinet that much of the advertising is unnecessary,'' Stevens said.

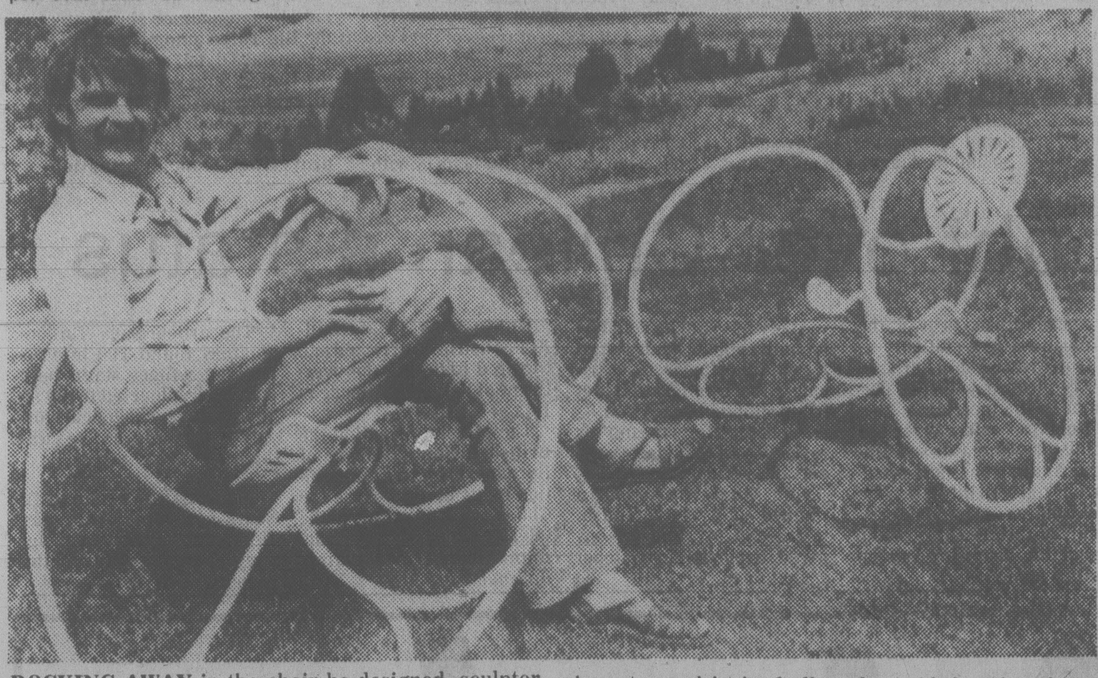
He added that some ministers felt expenditures could be cut by as much as 40 per cent because a lot of advertising wasn't needed, "in the sense of informing the Canadian public.''

The federal government is the biggest advertiser in the country. Its advertising campaigns have always involved patronage.

Now that the Conservatives are in power, advertising agencies that handled campaigns while the Liberals were running the country may find their federal government accounts are moving to rival ad agencies.

MacLaren Advertising Ltd., Toronto, whose executives have always figured big in Liberal election advertising campaigns, loses the Loto-Canada account at the end of the year.

An advertising executive acting as a consultant to the Conservative government said recently that before much switching is done a cabinet committee will probably be established to oversee advertising.



ROCKING AWAY in the chair he designed, sculptor Bill Lishman has just discovered he can't give away his Lishman rockers in Canada, although they are a hot item on the international art scene. The Canadian inventor and jack of all trades said that though two American galleries have purchased the chairs, when he donated one of them to an Ontario gallery the curator told him to 'come and get it.'

Alberta okays oilsands plant

EDMONTON (CP) — Preliminary approval for another multi-billion dollar oilsands plant — the second within a week — was announced today by the Alberta energy resources conservation board.

The latest is a $4.7-billion project proposed by Esso Resources Canada Ltd. near Cold Lake in northeastern Alberta.

The board approval is subject to terms and conditions which won't be announced until the board's final report is released.

Earlier the board gave preliminary approval for a $5 billion Alsands project near Fort McMurray.

The board said it is satisfied, after studying environmenal information presented at hearings into the plant earlier this year, that the impact on land and air can be limited to acceptable levels if Esso Resources exercises proper care in the design, installation and operation of the proposed facilities.

The board added, however, that if the project goes ahead, Esso Resources would have to satisfy the department of the environment with respect to environmental impacts.

In one matter of the environment, the board said it does not believe Cold Lake should be used as a source of water and recommended the North Saskatchewan River be used.

Similarly, the board said it does not believe concentrated waste process water should be discharged into the Beaver River without further investigation of alternative means of disposal.

Broadbent hits Tory flip-flops

OTTAWA (UPC) — The new Conservative government is squandering the opportunity to start rebuilding the Canadian economy and instead have backtracked on election promises, NDP leader Ed Broadbent said today.

The New Democratic Party chief also listed nine election promises the Tories have either backed away from or ignored.

"This approach clearly suggests that the Tories, despite their election rhetoric, no more have the political will to deal with the problems facing Canada than did the tired regime which was thrown out by the voters,'' Broadbent told a press conference.

Broadbent came down particularly hard on Finance Minister John Crosbie who recently said that Canadians voted the Liberals out of power and did not vote for Conservative Party promises.

"Such remarks not only discredit the government, they discredit the whole political process in the mind of the citizen who really thinks his vote means something, ''Broadbent said. "As such they should be repudiated by Prime Minister Clark.''

Vandalism marks Bell Tel dispute

TORONTO (CP) — More than two-thirds of Bell Canada's 15,000 craftsmen in Quebec and Ontario were either on strike or locked out Thursday in a contract dispute punctuated by what a company spokesman called vandalism and sabotage.

Gordon Bleasdell of Bell's Toronto office said the burning of a company hut near Pembroke, Ont., 120 kilometres northwest of Ottawa, was the "latest in a series of acts of vandalism and sabotage since early in July that have plagued the company.''

The wage dispute between Bell and its craftsmen, members of the Communications Workers of Canada, is almost two months old.

Bleasdell said the loss of the hut, which contained about $50,000 of repeater systems and special service circuits, left three telephone exchanges on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River with only local calling.

In Woodstock, Ont., a cable serving 300 customers was cut, disrupting calls between Windsor and Toronto.

Bell spokesman Pierre Marion said cables had been cut in the Saguenay region of Quebec, isolating an airport in Bagotville used by Canadian Forces and private pilots.

Wheat sale confirmed

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Canadian wheat board spokesman confirmed Thursday that the board has sold wheat to the Soviet Union, the first deal with the Soviets in more than a year.

The spokesman gave no details, such as the quantity or when the wheat is to be shipped.

Teenagers survey damage resulting from Montreal storm

Tornado winds lash west end Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Trees were uprooted, pleasure boats overturned and a woman struck by lightning Thursday when an electrical storm with winds gusting to 100 kilometres tore through the west end of Montreal Island.

"It's not impossible that it was a tornado," said a weather official at Dorval airport. "But it didn't act like most of them."

Instead of the circular effect common to twisters, this storm appeared to whistle straight across the island, creating what meteorologists call a "tunnel effect" as it swept along.

Police reported no fatalities although a woman was treated in hospital after she was struck by lightning while crossing the street.

The storm snapped several power lines, briefly cutting electrical service to more than 22,000 homes.

It also forced three rain delays totalling nearly four hours at a baseball game between Montreal Expos and Chicago Cubs.

Auto firm layoffs spreading

TORONTO (CP) — The gasoline crisis that ended the North American love affair with the big car has put hundreds of Canadian auto workers out of work and some of the layoffs will be permanent.

More than half of the 550 workers at Houdaille Industries of Canada Ltd. are facing layoffs because of plummeting car sales in the U.S., says Jim Brady, the company's industrial relations manager.

About 45 workers at the bumper-manufacturer's Oshawa plant are to be laid off permanently beginning Monday, with an additional 48 permanent layoffs Sept.7.

A further 195 employees have been notified that they face possible layoffs in October depending on the state of the U.S. auto industry.

"Business is going to be bad," Brady said. "It could be worse and until they start producing for the 1980-model year we have to go on educated guesses."

Government regulations say companies must post notices of major layoffs eight weeks in advance. Rather than take a chance, Houdaille gave notice to the additional 195 workers, Brady said.

Should the start-up in auto plants be slow following the annual summer shutdowns, the 195 layoffs could follow, he said.

The 93 layoffs already official will reduce the company to a two-shift operation from three.

"The bottom is falling out of the market for cars right now," Brady said. "The gas crisis and the gas scare have caused a very serious drop in the sales of types of cars we make bumpers for."

Chrysler Canada Ltd. and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. have laid off a total of more than 1,500 Windsor workers in what the companies describe as indefinite layoffs with no set call-back dates.

As well, more than 7,500 Ontario workers at Ford and General Motors of Canada Ltd. have been laid off in Oshawa, Toronto and Oakville for from one to three weeks because of a decline in U.S. sales.

These layoffs are extensions of the annual summer shutdowns by the Big Three automakers.

Douglas Glynn, a spokesman for the United Auto Workers in Toronto, said Wednesday the union is so concerned about the layoffs that it has proposed major action to improve the financial situation.

Still doubt over Chilean's status

OTTAWA (CP) — Galindo Madrid-Avilez will be allowed to remain in Canada while Immigration Minister Ron Atkey reviews new evidence in the Chilean's fight against a deportation order, New Democrat Svend Robinson said Thursday following a lengthy meeting.

But a spokesman for Atkey said the minister announced his decision earlier this week when he refused to grant the Chilean refugee status.

However, Robinson said he is pleased with the outcome of the meeting.

Robinson said earlier the minister wanted to see Madrid-Avilez's passport which is marked with the letter L, a designation meaning imprisonment, torture and possible execution should the Chilean return home.

Atkey has said he could do nothing to help Madrid-Avilez obtain refugee status because the Immigration Act has prohibited him from issuing a minister's permit for residence in Canada to anyone already deported.

The Chilean seaman jumped ship in Squamish, in March, 1977, and was ordered deported in October of that year.

Robinson said Madrid-Avilez had been arrested and tortured following the overthrow of Salvador Allende in 1973.

The MP, representing the British Columbia riding of Burnaby, has extra ammunition in his battle to save the Chilean with an article in the latest edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The article says Toronto doctors found 11 Chileans seeking refugee status here had been subjected to physical and psychological torture as well as sexual abuse.

Photographs showing scars on several torture victims left by electric and cigarette burns accompany the article.

Junk job cuts: CLC president

QUEBEC (UPC) — Canadian Labor Congress President Dennis McDermott says the federal government's plan to dump 60,000 civil service jobs should be put on the back-burner and demanded greater labor participation in government decision-making.

McDermott told delegates to the national convention of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC) Thursday that labor's relationship with the new Conservative government would be "a clean slate."

"Our relationship will be what both parties make of it," McDermott said.

"But there must be an end to this new political ethic: this ethic of promising everything during an election campaign without knowing what the hell you're talking about, and then after you're elected, sitting down and seeing what you can actually implement," he told convention representatives for the 180,000-member alliance.

McDermott suggested the civil service reduction plan be given the same urgency as the proposal to move the Canadian embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem — "putting it on the back burner."

Clark promised during the federal campaign to reduce the federal work-force by 60,000 jobs over three years through attrition. The unions have complained that it would cause a greater workload on remaining employees and that real savings could be made if top-level mandarins, and not clerks and secretaries, were not replaced.

The PSAC admitted for the first time Thursday its membership would drop to 148,000 by the end of 1981 because of a traditional decline combined with the government cuts. The PSAC currently has 180,000 members.

McDermott attacked Ottawa for its lack of "hard-nosed analysis and solutions" on inflation and blamed the government for using "political gimmickry at the expense of the workers" in dealing with the rising cost of living.

Mystery wreck yields 2nd body

MONTREAL (CP) — The body of a man believed to have been aboard the luxury yacht Jaguar V when it sank mysteriously off the Gaspe Peninsula July 22 was plucked from the Atlantic Thursday by crewmen of a freighter, Quebec provincial police reported.

The unidentified man was wearing two lifejackets with the name of the craft on them and another jacket was floating nearby, police said.

Last week the body of Diane Labonte-Despard, a 29-year-old woman from Hull, Que., was found off Bonaventure Island. The diminutive brunette had $3,600 stuffed in her Christian Dior swimsuit.

The discovery of Mrs. Despard's body and flotsam from the wreck of the Jaguar V touched off a sea search around Bonaventure Island, a rocky outcropping inhabited only by seabirds.

On Wednesday the Canadian Coast Guard asked vessels in the area to keep watch for more debris and the bodies of the four other passengers thought to have been aboard the Jaguar V.

Police said the body found Thursday about 80 kilometres east of Bonaventure by the freighter Sentoas was that of a male, about 50 years old, and it would be brought today to the port of Chandler, Que.

Mrs. Despard's husband, Andre, 39, Jacques (Coco) Laflamme, 47, of Ottawa, Despard's sister-in-law, Lorraine, 28, of Hull, and Anik Gallant, 30, also of Hull, are believed to have been aboard the $90,000 houseboat.

Pair to trial in Parliament bugging case

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Toronto men have been ordered to trial on charges arising out of the alleged bugging of Progressive Conservative party offices on Parliament Hill in 1977.

The order was made today by Provincial Court Judge Paul Belanger following a 26-day preliminary hearing of charges against Daniel McGarry and Bill Sandiford.

McGarry and Sandiford, owners of an electronics firm, said they found the bugs in the offices of Conservative Leader Joe Clark and Nova Scotia MP Elmer MacKay.

Trial date is to be set Sept. 10 in County Court here.

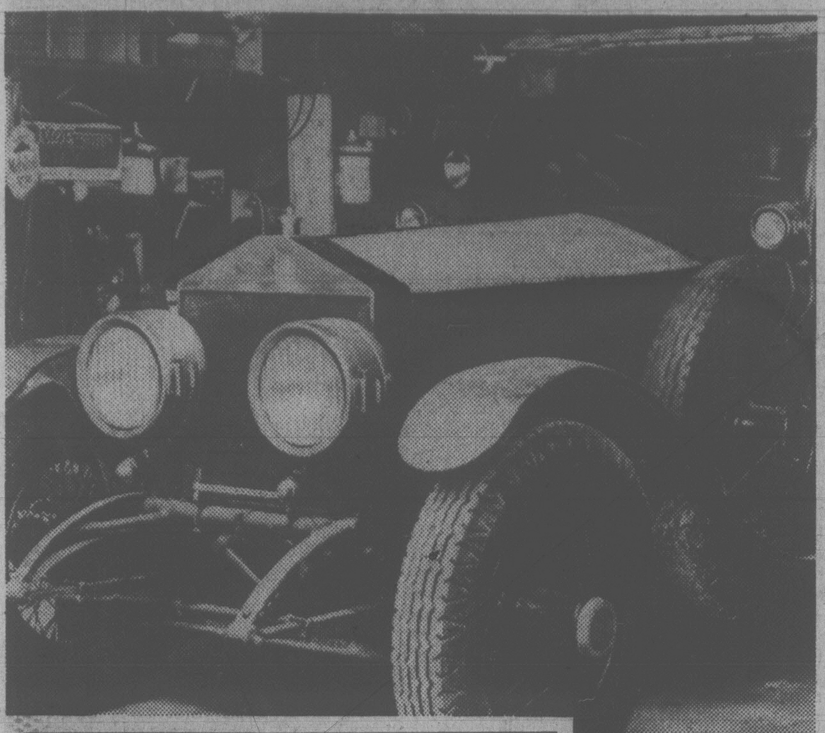
Resurrecting his Ghost a 10-year labor of love



Elizabeth Forbes

While the finding of a vintage car in some long-forgotten hide-away can be a tremendous happening, the big challenge that leads to lasting rewards is bringing the car back to its original beauty.

At least that's the way vintage car buff William Small looks at it.

"To me it's the resurrection that is really important," he tells you — "stripping off the rust and dirt and bringing to life something timeless that proves the stability and imagination of early day workmanship."

When he says that, he's standing beside a 1926 Rolls-Royce Pall Mall-type Silver Ghost tourer, that's in his garage today, in all its restored beauty.

He found that car in 1953, on an isolated mountain farm.

The Rolls was crammed into a shed that didn't look big enough to house a Model T Ford, he remembers.

All the tires were flat and sunken into the earth floor.

It was shrouded in cobwebs, hidden under layers of dust and its hood and fenders were festooned with rope, milk cans, chicken feed, barn shingles and other farm oddments.

"The skill of a gymnast was required to climb the obstacle course to the driver's seat," he says with a reminiscent smile.

Nevertheless, the dignity of line so characteristic of the Rolls-Royce was apparent in all its original purity.

"No one had tried to modernize it, borrow parts from it or otherwise detract from its worth."

The farmer still had the original title and the original instruction book, also a bill of sale and, on his back porch, a spare rear-view mirror, which he had been using for shaving.

Within half an hour Small had the debris removed from over and around the Rolls and, with the aid of a neighbor's truck, was wrestling it out of the shed.

"Finally it lurched ahead and rolled out into the daylight, and as it did the shed moved over about a foot, proving it had been leaning on that car for years."

The rest was a labor of love.

When he got it home Small quickly discovered there was just 50,000 miles on the Rolls register, which meant it was scarcely broken in.

He also knew that being a Rolls Ghost it would doubtless run many years, once it was restored, without any further attention.

So, in his spare time, he started to work on it. He cleaned the spark plugs and the gas tank strainer; replaced distributor points and the battery and had the car fitted out with a new set of tires.

"Right away it started up and ran like new," he says. "You could balance a half dollar on the radiator in the true traditional manner."

A complete paint job came next, followed by new top fabric and new leather linings. Flooring was restored and carpeting, as near the original pattern as possible, was laid down.

That wasn't all accomplished in a day, Small reminds you. It took almost 10 years.

Here Mrs. Small describes the therapeutic value of that restoration.

"My husband, a consulting psychologist, was working full-time at his profession. That meant a never-ending line of people asking for his help.

"To come home at night and spend an hour or so on the Rolls-Royce was actually his way of relaxing."

Small agrees, but even as he does he is turning to his latest find — an original bulb horn that he is eager to get mounted on the vintage car.

He looks at his Rolls-Royce Ghost as it is now in all its original beauty and he says with quiet sincerity:

"It's back from the dead as far as I'm concerned, and its a beautiful resurrection!"

Postscript: Today Small tells you he is half-retired. He still practises a certain amount of forensic psychology through appearances as an expert witness at certain court sessions.

That gives him plenty of time to maintain the spit-and-polish look of his Rolls Royce Silver Ghost.

There is also time for the Smalls to take it out on the road.

My first introduction to it was at the country home of Jack Barnes, out beyond the potholes on the Sooke River.

Mr. and Mrs. Small were there to attend a Sunday outing of Victoria Branch of the B.C. Historical Society and they had driven the Rolls all the way from Victoria as easily and quickly as modern cars covered the distance.

The Ghost, as they affectionally dub it, was centre of attention throughout the afternoon.

Stress test mainly misleading

FAMILY

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The exercise stress test, usually included in the so-called "executive physical," provides doctors with little meaningful evidence about whether a patient has heart disease, and in many cases gives misleading results, a new study shows.

Based on case histories, stress tests, and coronary angiograms (X-rays of the heart's blood supply) in over 2,000 patients who had suffered chest pains, the report concludes that a patient's sex and the character of his or her chest pain are far more reliable predicters of the heart's health.

The exercise test has long been known to have high rates of "false positives" (people with positive tests and no heart disease) and "false negatives" (people with heart disease and negative tests). Studies in 1970 showed that in patients with no chest pain (and therefore a low risk of heart disease), the test is only 35 to 40 per cent accurate in predicting heart disease.

Knowing this, researchers at Boston University Medical Centre asked whether the exercise test can diagnose heart disease in patients with various kinds of chest pain.

They sorted over 2,000 patients from a multi-hospital study of heart disease into four categories based on their chest pain: "definite angina" (typical cardiac pain), "probable angina," "probably not angina," and "definitely not angina."

They then looked at whether the type of chest pain correlated with heart disease, and whether a "positive" stress test (typcial changes in the electrocardiogram occurring during exercise) increased the chances of heart disease showing up on an angiogram.

They found that in men with pain absolutely typical of angina, the likelihood of heart disease was so high — 89 per cent — that a positive exercise test added little information. A negative test would have a high risk of being a "false negative," so it would be unnecessary to do the test at all, said Dr. Thomas J. Ryan, chief of cardiology at Boston University, who headed the study, published in this week's New England Journal of Medicine.

In women with apparent "definite angina," only 62 per cent turn out to have heart disease. But a woman with typical chest pain and a negative stress test still has a 1 in 3 chance of heart disease, the study showed.

In patients with a less typical type of chest pain, the likelihood of heart disease falls off steadily, according to the statistics. In these patients, a positive exercise test has a good chance of being a "false positive," so it again provides little hard information to the physician on which to base treatment.

Boyfriend doesn't own her

YOUTH CLINIC

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and Bruce Vichert, social worker.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I am a 15-year-old girl and my boyfriend is 16. Even though I have only been going with him for a short time, he thinks he owns me.

I don't like that at all. How can I tell him he doesn't own me without hurting his feelings or making him more angry with me?

ANSWER: You can do yourself and your boyfriend a favor by showing him that he doesn't own you, any more than you own him. He is merely manifesting an attitude that many men have about "their" women. This is in the process of change right now, but it is still far too common. A good relationship allows freedom as well as demands of loyalty.

Perhaps you should clarify with your boyfriend what you each expect from the relationship. He may be hurt or angry, but you'll both be better off if you're playing by the same rules.

DEAR MR. VICHERT: It is one thing for a girl to ask a guy to dance, but it is quite another to ask a guy to go out on a date. Would the girl pay? Wouldn't the boy ask the girl if he was interested?

ANSWER: This column receives may letters from boys who feel shy, or nervous, and would like to ask a girl out on a date, but feel that they might be rejected. These boys would certainly appreciate a girl asking them out. I feel most boys would appreciate being asked to go on a date as it would indicate that the girl likes them and wants to spend some time with them.

Discuss the question of who pays when you ask the boy out. If you tell him it is going to be a special treat and you would like to pay, the problem is cleared up at the beginning. Some boys might feel uncomfortable about letting a girl pay, but then it could be planned that each paid for themselves.

DEAR DR. COTTER: I am a 15-year-old girl who is depressed and worried. About a year ago, a guy who was very special to me was killed in a horrible accident. It hurt me very much and has affected my work at school, my social life, and family life. I thought I would feel better as time went by but I don't. I feel worse.

ANSWER: It is important, and even good, to grieve. You have suffered a loss, and it is only right that you should grieve for this. You must find someone you can talk to: a teacher, a minister, a counsellor — there are many possibilities. The person should be an adult who is compassionate and caring, and will give you time to listen.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I am a 14-year-old girl and am going out with an 18-year-old guy. Although we have never had intercourse, the urge is very strong.

We have a very close physical relationship and often it seems like we could make love except for the fact that we have clothes on, I have always thought that sexual intercourse was the only way to get pregnant. Is there any possibility of sperm being transmitted through clothes? I have heard that sperm die as soon as they exposed to air. Could they deposit near the vagina and cause pregnancy?

ANSWER: As long as you keep your clothes on, there is no possibility of your getting pregnant.

What you may have heard and find confusing is that pregnancy can result on rare occasions if the semen is deposited very close to the entrance to the vagina. The sperm might reach the vagina and swim up to the cervix. In these cases, the semen is not deposited on clothing but on the woman's external genitalia, very near the vagina. You are protected against a pregnancy as long as you keep your clothes on.

You do not want to find yourself having intercourse if you are not emotionally prepared for it. The next step for you and your boyfriend is to talk about your feelings and the responsibility you both have to each other to prevent pregnancy. Are you ready for a sexual relationship?

If there is no one to turn to for advice, call your local Planned Parenthood group.

The metric soft-sell is ending

Joan Watson
for consumers

In generations past what Canadians learned in school stood them in a good stead for a lifetime. New knowledge was picked up as the year rolled by, but consumers were not asked to reject traditional ideas for totally new concepts.

There were some changes, but they appeared to be pleasant ones. It didn't take great insight to recognize the transportation superiority of the car over the horse. It was a welcome adjustment to go from kerosene lamps to light bulbs.

But now, for the first time, consumers are being asked to adjust to changes that don't seem to offer any immediate gratification. And that's why we're having trouble with things like metric conversion and energy conservation. Initially they would appear to make life tougher, not easier. We have to re-learn habits and ideas that we are reluctant to give up.

In fact in Australia, where they have been struggling with metric conversion for more than ten years, they have come to the conclusion that a consumer over 40 is a lost cause. The older shopper will continue to translate kilograms into pounds and metres into mileage. And they will always be suspicious that cakes won't rise as well in a Celsius oven.

Nevertheless, at a time when we're faced with recession and an energy crisis, we are being asked to take up one more challenge in our daily life and speed up our conversion to metric measure during the next six months. The fooling around with spoon feeding and coaxing is over as grocery shoppers in Kamloops, Peterborough and Sherbrooke have already found out.

We've all been buying packaged goods in gram and kilogram packages, but meat and produce has still been sold by the pound. Those three Canadian communities now have totally metric food stores and it's hoped that whatever difficulties they encounter can be worked out before the rest of us follow suit.

If you've stopped translating road signs and the weather forecasts back into the old lingo there's hope for you in the months ahead. If you're still in school, you're already a metric Canadian and can feel superior to the rest of us. You probably speak Metric, Imperial French and English.

Here's the problem facing the less gifted: By New Year's Day, 1980, whether we're buying noodles or codfish, wallpaper or carpeting, a suit or seeds for our gardens, we'll be expected to buy metric, and understand it. There will still be, in some cases such as clothing, the old measurement in small print. But it is the belief of the Metric Commission that the best way to learn is not to convert mentally from old to new. They tell us: "Think metric; don't translate."

Meanwhile, in another branch of government, the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, they take a softer line. Some of their officials say many consumers won't get the hang of metric at all unless we're provided with weight and measurement in both systems for a while longer.

One of the biggest hurdles the pushers of metric have to overcome is the consumers' suspicions that in the conversion to metric is a golden opportunity for a price hike. Every day our mail is full of examples discovered by shoppers of the same amount of product costing more in the new metric packages.

Sometimes the price remains the same for a marginally smaller package. Other times there is no equivalent size for comparison and it takes a mathematical exercise to figure out you're paying considerably more. In spite of a lot of pious talk to the contrary, an impressive number of price hikes have coincided with metric packaging. It is always explained away with "rising costs". Who can argue with that?

There is nothing I would like better than a deluge of old and new packaging and pricing to illustrate this coincidental increase in cost at the time of conversion. If you have an example, I'd like to hear about it.

In the meantime, so that you are better prepared for the changes ahead, you might want to send a note off to the Metric Commission, 240 Sparks Street, Ottawa, and ask for Metric Shopping Is Easy! (The exclamation point is theirs, not mine.) or, Why These Sizes? — an explanation of new package sizes for consumers.

To give you an example of how they suggest you think: "A normal-sized apple is about 100 g;" "For ground meat, try a 100 g- patty — the hundred grammer is a grabber." (Now you know what will replace the quarter-pounder!) "A roast for five is about 2 kg."

Get used to it.

Canada, for metric purposes, has been chopped into twenty districts. When your food store will go metric will be decided by your district committee. The changeover will begin in January, 1980, and by the end of the year, all retailers will weigh your meat, produce, fish and cheese in kilograms.

In the meantime, write this on your cuff: 100 g is a little less than ¼ lb., 250 g is a little more than ½ lb., 5 kg is a little more than 10 lbs. And if meat is $4.30 kg, that's $1.95 lb.

And if you think metric is a big turkey, you should know a turkey would have a mass of about 10 kg.

YOUR HEALTH

by L. L. Coleman, MD

Put yourself in shoes of your pharmacist

It's frustrating to go to a drug store and ask for a renewal of a prescription and have the request denied. I was furious with my druggist. It seems to me that this is such an easy thing to do and can spare one an additional visit to the doctor. — Miss B. B.

DEAR MISS B.: At first glance, one would think that you have a right to be irritated. When, however, you project yourself into the position of your pharmacist you will find that your accusation of "unfairness" will actually be converted to a feeling of gratitude.

Doctors prescribe drugs for a specific purpose and for a definite period. When doctors want prescriptions to be renewed at regular intervals, they will indicate this on the prescription.

As a protective device, your pharmacist legally cannot refill a prescription drug without the permission of the doctor. Often, he will call the doctor and ask for that permission. Patients, too, will frequently call their doctors and ask if a prescription can be renewed.

This is an age of skepticism. Far too many people are unnecessarily resentful of the forces at work that are really, in essence, protective, rather than exploitative.

The bond between patient, doctor and pharmacist is a very valuable one. That bond should not be weakened by annoyance and suspicion.

Since the birth of my third child, I find that I urinate frequently. Even after I do, I sometimes get the feeling that the urination is not complete. Is this an unusual complaint? — Mrs. P. B.

DEAR MRS. B.:

There may indeed be a relationship between the birth of your third child and these annoying symptoms. Some women who have had a number of children may have stretched and weakend the muscles and ligaments that normally hold the bladder in a fixed position.

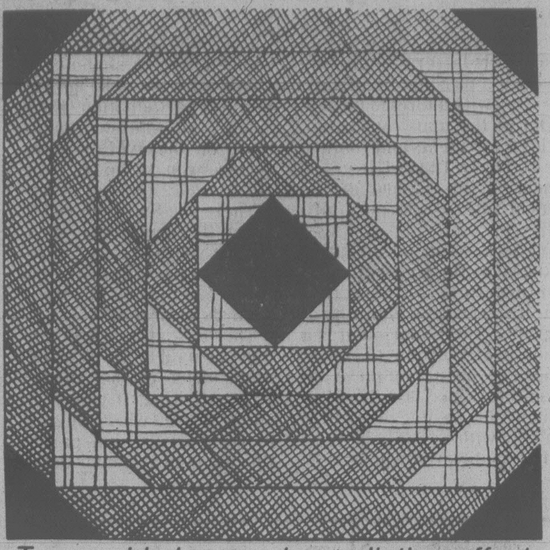
This weakening may produce a "cystocele" of the urinary bladder which may protrude into the vaginal canal. And this could create the symptoms you describe.

The condition is readily recognized by direct examination. Exercises have been tried, to alleviate the symptoms. These are not very effective. In some instances, mechanical devices and pessaries are used to support the weakened structures. When these are not adequate, surgery is used to better strengthen the weakened muscles. The operation has been refined, with new and excellent surgical techniques.

Pineapple turns to windmill

Kath Faryon's

patchwork & quilting



Trapezoid shapes give radiating effect

The Pineapple was a favorite quilt block in colonial times. When the blocks were combined they produced the fabulous lights and darks which gave the radiating feeling sometimes known as Windmill Blades.

Constructed of trapezoids in ever-increasing sizes, it was not among the simplest of quilt patterns, but was popular because it could be made with the smallest of scraps, and spectacular results were always produced.

Jean Dubois, of Colorado, whose well-researched books have added immensely to our knowledge of not only the history but also the techniques of traditional quilts, has given us the background on Pineapple quilts in her book entitled The Wool Quilt — Patterns and Possibilities.

If you are a student of quilts and quilt making, you should have this in your collection. It is invaluable for its patterns as well as for the techniques which will help you construct them. I find that when I want to try a new block, it makes it so much easier when I can refer to a volume such as this.

How does one put a value on the experience of a teacher? Jean has taught, lectured all over the country, and still found the time to write her books, which include: A Galaxy of Stars — all about star quilt patterns; The Colonial History Quilt — about the embroidered quilt Ruby McKim designed to commemorate the early history of the U.S.; and Anne Orr Patchwork — about this popular designer of the '20s and '30s, her work and favorite patchwork.

Jean's latest book is Bye Baby Bunting, which contains patterns and ideas for crib and children's quilts. However, it is Jean's book, The Wool Quilt, which I find particularly interesting because it is such an excellent teaching book.

When I heard Jean lecture at the Quilt Show in Nebraska one summer, I was sold on her. I learned so much in such a short time, but then, that is the mark of a good teacher. She showed us how to mark quilts in the feather pattern, so much used on the older quilts and seemingly so hard to do — until Jean explained it.

She explained borders and cable marking to us. The mysteries of many years seemed all of a sudden revealed to us. That is why her book is such a wonderful reference. If you teach and have tried to explain certain techniques only to find you need a little help or some visual aids, I can't think of a better place to get them.

Jean often displays a Scottish Woolen Pineapple Quilt, made in Hawick in 1880, which was constructed of ⅜-inch (1 cm) wide trapezoids which included many Scottish tartans. The Pineapple is a variation of the Log Cabin with which perhaps you are more familiar. It was started from a square with the laid on pieces radiating outwards from the corners of the square as well as from the mid-points.

Trapezoids are the four-sided pieces with the 45° angles at the ends. To make the simpler version (shown in Jean's illustration), triangles radiate from the corners while the trapezoids work out from the mid-points of the central square.

She gives tips on drafting the patterns for the triangles and trapezoids, and also gives patterns for the pieces so you can get going right away. (We suggest using the template plastic (Pattern GTP-29) for making templates which will assure greater accuracy and thus a better finished product. This is one pattern you want to be doubly sure you piece accurately.

Why not try this book. Hopefully you will be able to meet Jean Dubois, not only through the pages, but at a quilt show.

Why not try a Pineapple? You'll be glad you did!

PATTERNS AVAILABLE:

The Wool Quilt, by Jean Dubois. Valuable reference for many patchwork and quilting techniques. Includes historical background of many famous patterns, photos, abundantly illustrated. $15.50 prepaid.

The object is to match the official letters published every day with the letters in the grid which you have filled in with your name (see samples 1 and 2). When you have circled a row of letters across, vertically, or diagonally either way, send your entry in for the bi-weekly draw for cash prizes. You may submit as many entries as you wish per game, but each must be in a separate envelope.

LETTERS FOR TODAY, GAME NO. 3 ONLY

Final Letters Tomorrow for Game No. 3

IMPORTANT!
IN ORDER TO BE ELIGIBLE, YOUR ENTRY MUST COMPLY WITH RULE NO. 2

THE NAME GAME

Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

How to tee up stay with foreign family

Lucy Izon

youth on the move

Recently I've received several letters enquiring how it's possible to arrange to stay with a foreign family. Out of the many opportunities for students and youth to cut their travelling expenses, this is one of the most interesting possibilities.

There is an organization known as the Experiment in International Living that helps arrange such programs. The Experiment is a non-profit group that has been co-ordinating these adventures since 1932. Through them it's possible to arrange a stay with a family in more than 60 different countries.

I've mentioned this as an opportunity for students or youth, but there is no age limit on participation. Each country sets its own guidelines; on the average most require you to be at least 17.

There are fees involved to cover the operations costs. Before you leave you're required to pay a registration fee of $30 plus $2 per week towards insurance.

There is also a fee that must be paid to the co-ordinating office of the country you're visiting. If you're visiting an area where the cost of living is very high, part of this fee is turned over to the host family to help cover food and other expenses they incur.

Here's an idea of what it would cost you to stay with a family in some exotic countries. To stay three weeks with a Peruvian family is $105 U.S.; two weeks in Sir Lanka is $55 U.S.; four weeks in Mexico is $100 U.S.; two weeks in Nigeria is $90 and two weeks in Egypt is $125 U.S.

One way to take advantage of a program like this is to incorporate it in a longer trip. The Experiment is involved in major areas of Europe, Asia, Britain, Africa, Australia and North and South America.

If you're interested in checking further into this idea, you can write The Experiment in International Living, 876 Eglinton Ave. East, Ste. 2, Toronto, Ont. M4G 2L1.

Looking for a cheap way to get across the U.S.A.? The Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE), World Airways and possibly TWA can fly you between New York and California for less than $110 U.S.

Before you pay a more expensive fare, check these out with your travel agent. The CIEE flights are the cheapest at $89 U.S. plus $6.85 tax. They operate in both directions twice weekly. And World Airways flies this route daily for only a few dollars more.

Finally, there is going to be a Youth Travel Guide for Canada. A group of 25 young people known as Youth Travel Canada, together with the Canadian Government offices of Tourism and Canadian Student Councils are working on the book. Hopes are it is going to be available by next spring. In the meantime, you may run into them as they collect details on where to stay, what to do and how to travel economically in Canada.

If you cross paths, your co-operation will be to everyone's advantage. They will also be working on increasing the number of special reductions available to the student with International identification — advantages Canadian students have been able to get abroad but only on a limited basis travelling here at home.

Don't forget that the British Columbia Youth Hostel Association is very active in organizing low cost holiday programs for youth.

One feature is the six-day hiking trip along the West Coast trail of Vancouver Island for $135. The fee includes local van and ferry transportation, food, some equipment and a guide. The last departure this summer will be August 28 through September 4.

If you would like to try kayaking, the B.C. association has a trip designed for the person with some paddeling experience or for the beginner who is in good physical condition. This 11-day "Hot Springs Cove Trip" costs $220, if you happen to have your own kayak, or $280 with a rental. That fee also includes instructions, camping equipment, food and local transportation from Vancouver. The last date for this summer is August 18 through 29.

This group also gets involved with trips within the Yukon.

If you want to keep in touch with these programs, you can write B.C. Regional office, 3425 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V6R 2B4.

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

He wants her to share digs

DEAR ABBY: How is this for a proposal of marriage? "Darling, how would you like to be buried in my family plot?"

This actually happened to me, Abby. He's a widower, 69, and I'm a widow, 66.

IN STITCHES

DEAR IN: He obviously digs you. But don't make light of such a grave matter.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged businessman who works 10 to 12 hours a day in graphic arts. I made an appointment with a physician two months ago for 3 p.m. last Monday. It was difficult for me to take time off, but I considered it necessary.

I arrived at the doctor's office at 2:45 p.m. and was told that it would be another "20 minutes." At 4 p.m. I was told it would be another 20 minutes. At 5 p.m. I was told the same thing — that the doctor had been overbooked and would see me as soon as possible. I left.

Don't you think it would be appropriate to bill the doctor for the $100 I lost by cooling my heels in his outer office?

STEAMED

DEAR STEAMED: You may think it "appropriate" to bill the doctor for your time, but I think it's impractical. A doctor can't block out x number of minutes for each patient, like a music teacher who gives one-hour lessons. Some patients require more time than others. I doubt if any doctor intentionally keeps a patient waiting.

DEAR ABBY: Although I'm not quite 16, I am very mature for my age. I am in love with a 25-year-old guy, but I have to see him behind my parents' back because they hate him without even knowing him.

You see, he was married to a no-good tramp and had two children with her. His divorce isn't final yet, and my folks don't want me going with a guy with that kind of background. Abby, you've got to believe me. He is really a wonderful guy. That messed-up marriage was HER fault, not his.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN LOVE: Assuming the man is blameless, I wonder what kind of "wonderful" 25-year-old guy, not yet divorced, would knowingly see a "not quite 16-year-old girl" behind her parents' back. I would have to say that he must be something less than wonderful. Listen to your parents.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after Christmas my wife bought a supply of Christmas cards at a greatly reduced price. Last evening she put them in front of me and said, "Here, sign these; you aren't doing anything."

I got my pen out and started to sign the first card, then she suddenly pulled the cards away and said, "Better not. One of us might not be here next year, and I would look awfully foolish trying to explain how your name got on the card!"

Credit screws twisted for Gulf heating oil

United Press International

Gulf Oil Corp., a major supplier of home-heating oil to the U.S. Northeast, is tightening credit terms in a move that could force dealers to demand cash payment on delivery from residential consumers, industry sources say.

Dealers said the change in Gulf's credit arrangements could boost homeowners' heating bills by almost a penny a gallon.

The Gulf move is "not only bad business but morally wrong and a low blow to the consumer," James Wells, executive vice president of the New York Oil Heating Association, which represents 150 dealers in the metropolitan New York area, said Thursday.

A Gulf spokesman in Houston said the company will eliminate the standard one per cent discount for dealers who pay for home-heating oil purchases within 10 days of delivery, beginning next month.

Gulf also will reduce the grace period for dealer payments on heating oil shipments to 10 days from the customary 30-day period now permitted by most of the industry. Late payments are subject to penalties.

"It's a normal business decision," the Gulf spokesman said.

"Our accounts receivable have increased by more than 50 per cent due to the rapid rise in crude oil costs. With more cash accounts, we should be able to pay for crude oil a little quicker."

Since more than 90 per cent of Gulf's dealers already pay for home-heating oil purchases within 10 days, he said the new 10-day due period should not affect their ability to meet obligations or their normal billing procedures.

"Apparently there is a trend in the oil industry toward tighter payment terms," one industry source said.

But Exxon USA, the nation's No. 1 home-heating oil marketer, and Mobil Corp., another large supplier, said they had no plans to restrict credit terms.

"Gulf is virtually asking for cash on delivery by shortening the period of time in which payments must be made to 10 days and leaving dealers only two choices," Wells said.

"The dealers can either demand that homeowners pay on a COD basis or try to borrow money at interest rates of 13 to 14 per cent if residential customers can't come up with the payments."

Wells said Gulf's stricter credit "will raise the dealer's cost of doing business and raise the cost to the consumer."

Cartoonist strike?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A dispute involving animators who say they're losing work to Taiwan and Australia could put some of North America's favorite cartoon characters out of the picture.

Among the major studios that would be affected by a strike are Hanna-Barbera, Walt Disney Productions, Warner Bros., DePattie Freleng and Filmation, said union spokeswoman Judy Vogue.

"Studios have been sending 75 per cent of their work overseas — to Taiwan and Australia — since about the first of the year," she said.

Raiders hit Menten home

DUBLIN (UPI) — Four masked gunmen early today broke into the Irish home of Pieter Menten, Dutch millionaire art collector facing trial in Holland on Nazi war crimes charges, in an attempt to burn down the 50-room mansion.

Police said the intruders broke into the house at Leamybrien, County Waterford at about 4 a.m., sprinkled a flammable substance on the staircase and set it afire. But the blaze did not take hold and damage was very slight.

The commotion disturbed one of two housekeepers in the building who called the fire department.

The intruders fled in a car reported stolen in the area the previous day and it was later found burned and abandoned.

Menten was not in the building and local people said they do not believe he has visited the house for several years.

Menten, a former SS officer, was been convicted on a war crimes charge in a Dutch court and sentenced in 1977 to 15 years in prison, but the convetion was overturned the following year. Last May, the Dutch supreme court ordered a new trial for Menten.

Philatelist fiddle in Cook vote

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — U.S. Government lawyers Thursday cracked a postage stamp and election fraud caper with a $50,000 fine against an American stamp dealer accused of helping to rig elections in the Cook Islands.

In the first criminal prosecution under the two-year old Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, stamp dealer Finbar Kenny admitted using the proceeds from the sale of Cook Island postage stamps to fly hundreds of Cook Islanders home from New Zealand to vote and tip the balance in the March, 1978, general election.

Prime Minister Sir Albert Henry won the election but the votes of the 450 Cook Islanders flown from New Zealand were subsequently disallowed as "unlawful votes tainted by rivalry" and opposition leader Thomas Davis took over as premier.

Stamps worth $20,000 are sold in the Islands for postage each year. The revenue from overseas collectors anxious to add Cook Island stamps to their albums was $1.5 million last year.

That sum is divided equally between the Cook Island government which uses it to fund old age pensions and to Kenny International Corp., a New York company owned by Kenny that helps several small countries to sell their stamps abroad.

Government prosecutors told Judge John Penn in Washington that Kenny's contract with the Cook Island government to sell its stamps abroad would have been due for renewal during the term of office of the winner of the March, 1978, election.

"Kenny and Kenny International could only be assured of renewal of the stamp distribution agreement by the continuation of the Cook Island party's control of the legislative assembly and the retention of Sir Albert Henry as premier," they said.

Sir Albert sought Kenny's help, they said, and Kenny agreed to pay the air fare of 450 Cook Islanders living in New Zealand.

U.S. speeds mail

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Postal Service has announced new international express mail rates that will allow for speedy delivery of some types of mail to Canada.

A post office official said Thursday that the U.S. service has, in effect, linked up its international custom designed express mail service with Canada's priority post service.

This involves agreements for delivery of mail such as payrolls on a fixed schedule to a fixed address.

U.S. rates for the new service to Canada begin at $23.63 for up to one pound of mail. An official said Canada is the 13th country to exchange this type of express mail service with the U.S.

SANDS — DUNCAN

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

Small corms and bulbs are planted this month

August is the month for seeking a source of supply for the not-so-well-known small corms and bulbs which must be planted before the end of this month.

GARDENING
Hilda Beastall

Some will flower within three weeks because the blooms are already contained as embryos within the dry corms. Others must spend winter in cool damp soil before showing us flowers in very early spring.

The reason for August planting is that the small corms and bulbs finish their foliage growth and root activity in June. Then for eight to 10 weeks they are considered dormant although flower development is progressing in certain corms and bulbs; but this false dormancy as it might be called, gives the dealer and the gardener a chance to do business and get the roots back into soil.

Small bulbs such as the little species daffodils and tulips, and corms such as fall and winter crocuses, and tubers such as winter aconites, quickly lose moisture when kept out of the ground more than the allowable eight weeks or so. If they dry to the point of shrivelling, growth will be slow or entirely absent when finally planted.

Local dealers having a local supply source will be happy to get orders for their "little bulbs" before the rush for the larger imports if daffodils and tulips. So shop around where you think a supply might be lurking.

Cyclamen corms to plant outdoores this month are another package of potential beauty. At least two kinds are fairly commonly grown in gardens here. One is Cyclamen neapolitanum (native to Naples), a three-inch high rose pink flower and its white variety. Both are free flowering once established and the leaves with silver marking appear at the same time as the flowers, in fall.

Another hardy cyclamen will push through the cold soil in a spell of mildness in winter or it may wait until early spring sunshine. This Cyclamen orbiculatum, variety cous (named after a Turkish island, Cous, where it was first found), is a small flower, rich pink with a crimson base. The leaves are plain dark green.

Once a cyclamen corm is planted in a suitable spot it will thrive for many years without being disturbed. It does not increase like a bulb, but the corm grows larer each year. There have been reports in garden magazines of cyclamen corms a foot or more in diameter, having hundreds of blooms.

Propagation is by seed, freely produced on your plants, and sown as soon as ripe. If left to self-sow, seedlings will be found in the surrounding fine leafy soil and after one year may be moved if desired to establish a new colony.

For these hardy outdoor cyclamens, provide a partly shaded spot that is well drained and filled with well rotted leafmould and a good dusting of lime. Perhaps west facing, at the edge of the branch spread of a large tree or shrub will be about ideal.

These and the little fall flowering crocuses are ideally suited to balcony garden planters; one kind to a planter where they may remain without interfering with the desired color display for the rest of the balcony.

If you don't already know these plants, look around now for a source of supply to plant by the end of this month.

2 sides to sign war and both profitable

OTTAWA (CP) — A Toronto sign company has found a way to live comfortably on both sides of the national unity issue.

It is producing and displaying signs with French-language slogans for both the separatist Parti Quebecois and the federalist Pro-Canada Committee.

The Parti Quebecois signs support sovereignty-association with a slogan saying "la souverainete-association, c'est vivre d'egal a egal" — sovereignty-association means living as equals.

The signs for the Pro-Canada Committee say: "le Canada — j'y suis, j'y reste" — Canada, I'm here to stay.

The committee is a coalition of federalist groups financing the campaign against the Parti Quebecois independence referendum.

The company, Urban Outdoors, rents display space across the country for advertisements or promotions.

In June the Parti Quebecois ordered 20 illuminated billboards which were posted, at the party's request, in the Ottawa area as well as in Montreal, Quebec City, Sherbrooke and Trois-Rivieres.

A month later Pro-Canada ordered the same number of the fluorescent signs to appear in the same areas. Those signs are to begin appearing this month.

The billboards with their political messages aren't always popular. Gallop said he has received complaints in all five areas and has removed some of the signs because of this.

A Parti Quebecois sign was removed from a parking lot in the Ottawa-area city of Vanier after neighbors complained it was too political. But it promptly reappeared on another lot five blocks away.

The sign has also been the target of vandals.

Pol Pot faces trial for genocide

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodia's Vietnamese-backed regime has set up a court to try deposed premier Pol Pot and his government in absentia on genocide charges, according to the Vietnamese news agency. The report said the tribunal may issue death sentences.

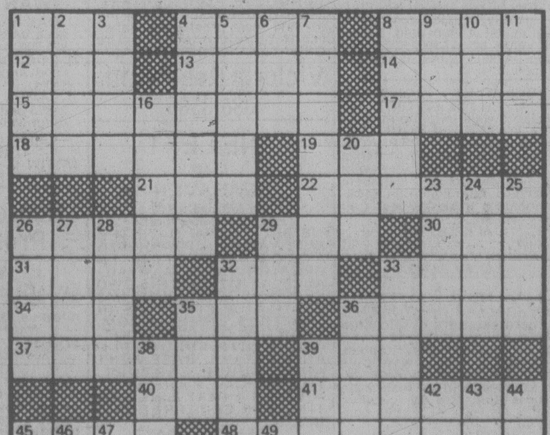
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



Globe man to China

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail has appointed drama critic Bryan Johnson to take over the post of Peking correspondent from reporter John Fraser, editor-in-chief Richard J. Doyle said Thursday. Doyle said the timing for the replacement has not been set.

Express strike cools

MONTREAL (CP) — Both union and management in the CP Express strike backed down on threatened court action Thursday, as tension on picket lines in several cities eased.

Activity was back to normal at CP Transport depots in Calgary and Edmonton where pickets had disrupted operations Wednesday by dissuading some truckers from crossing the lines.

As a result, Canadian Pacific Ltd., the parent of both CP Express and CP Transport, decided not to apply for a court order banning picketing at CP Transport terminals in the Alberta cities, company spokesman Len Cocolicchio said.

Meanwhile, the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, which represents the 2,700 striking workers, held off on a scheduled court battle against the company.

The union had planned to seek an injunction against the use of security guards to harass pickets at CP's rail and transport terminals in suburban Lachine.

. . . Dinosaur built for six!

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — One woman says a friend calls it "a pet brontosaurus," but hundreds of Edsel lovers gathering here for a weekend convention love it.

The Edsel, an automotive joke for 20 years, is big and old and extinct — except at an Edsel owners' convention. Then it somehow turns into a thing of beauty; a joy forever; a dinosaur built for six.

Edsel lovers and dozens of their cars are coming together for the 11th annual meeting of those who own the most infamous mistake in auto history.

"Actually I started out looking for a Studebaker," conceded Don Vatne of Rochester, Wash. "But I saw an Edsel for sale and I bought it. I've never regretted not getting that Studebaker."

The Edsel was the cute car with the horse-collar grille meant to revolutionize driving — and the Ford Motor Co. — in the late 1950s.

It was as long as a yacht and twice as comfortable. It was a gadet-lover's dream. It was the way to go for young executive families on the way up.

It was also a gigantic flop. About 110,000 of them rolled off the assembly line in three model years before Ford cut its $250 million in losses and quit making them in November of 1959.

"It was the wrong car for the wrong market at the wrong time," concedes Dave Sinclair, president of the Edsel Owners Club. "And I love it!

"There was nothing wrong with the car — it was just introduced in the middle of a recession. I've had lots of orphan cars — Kaisers, Packards, Nashes but I always wanted an Edsel and I've had 15 since I bought my first one."

Sinclair still owns three of the boat-size beauties, which may put him a little below the club average. Most everyone here seems to need two hands to count their cars. One man, Hugh Lesley of Oxford, Pa., has 106 of them at his farm, called Lemon Grove.

The idea of an Edsel club was the brainchild of one Edsel Henry Ford — no relation to the company.

Millions to settle tot-arms burn suit

HOUSTON (UPI) — A two-year-old girl whose arms were incinerated by a high-voltage transformer has been assured of up to $3.7 million damages from the operators of the apartments where her family lived, dependent on other awards in related suits.

Treelane Apartments and Amco Management Co. of Pasadena, Texas, signed an agreement Thursday in State District Judge Jack Smith's court assuring the minimum settlement to Barbara Lynn Steinsholt.

However, parents Benjamin and Patricia Steinsholt said they will press their demand for $12.6 million damages from several plaintiffs, including General Electric Corp., General Electric Supply Co. and Houston Lighting Co.

The agreement with Treelane and Amco provides that if total damages from other defendants equal $5 million, the operators will pay nothing. Otherwise, the complex will pay up to $3.7 million in order to assure a $5 million total.

Oldsrolet refund cheques mailed

DETROIT (AP) — After much legal wrangling, General Motors Corp. has begun mailing $200 settlement offers to 67,420 Oldsmobile owners in the United States whose cars were equipped with Chevrolet engines, the company says.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank McGarr of Chicago, whose original approval of the offer was overturned by the U.S. Court of Appeals, gave the go-ahead for the mailing last week.

About 24,000 Buick and Pontiac owners got Chevrolet engines and 90 per cent of them have accepted the offer negotiated with the attorneys-general, a General Motors official said.

In Oshawa, Ont., a spokesman for General Motors of Canada Ltd. said 34 cheques have been mailed to owners living in British Columbia, Quebec and Prince Edward Island, the provinces that have reached terms with GM on compensation.

The cheques were sent after each of the owners signed a waiver promising to release the company from further liability. The owners were also given a mechanical performance certificate that can be transferred to subsequent owners to cover major engine repairs for 36 months or 36,000 miles from the date of delivery.

Manual's 'slow down' contributed to crash?

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — A DC-10 manual instructing pilots to slow down if they lose an engine contributed to a May 25 Chicago crash that killed 273 persons, says a spokesman for the Airline Pilots Association.

Testifying at a U.S. National Transportation Safety Board hearing, Dale Leppard said Thursday that slowing down the American Airlines plane left it without enough velocity to stay in the air.

The hearings on the crash enter their fifth day today.

Leppard said when the engine fell off during takeoff at O'Hare International Airport, pilot Walter Lux followed instructions and immediately reduced speed, which prevented the plane from pulling out of a stall. A stall results when an aircraft has insufficient lift to stay aloft.

Art Kressley, an aerodynamics specialist for McDonnell Douglas Corp., maker of the DC-10, said slowing down hurt Lux's attempts to right the plane.

Kressley said the minimum airspeed "may not be the best speed to correct for the problems resulting from a lost engine."

The DC-10 manual is issued by McDonnell Douglas and approved by the U.S. government.

Captain Walter Estridge, DC-10 pilot training director for American, said the instruction about engine loss should not be changed because of the crash.

"I don't believe procedures could be written that could handle that situation in that time frame," he said. "It would take some time to evaluate what course of action to take in that situation" of multiple system failures.

Since the crash at O'Hare, the worst crash in U.S. history, airlines have increased the minimum speed for their DC-10s, which is determined individually for each flight by a computer that calculates the plane's weight, wind conditions, runway length and other factors.

A program manager for the Federal Aviation Administration, James Smith, testified that he was able, in flight simulator tests, to bring a DC-10 out of the same condition that confronted Lux.

But Smith said he knew before the tests that an engine would drop, that a stall would develop and that the hydraulic and electrical systems would fail almost completely.

Estridge said he was "extremely proud" of the way Lux reacted during the 30-second flight. "He was doing exactly what he was taught in that combination of bizarre circumstances."

The board has said pilot error did not cause the crash. Investigators said Lux could not have avoided the crash with the time and information available to him.

Goof with the Pill valued at $1.1M

SEATTLE (AP) — One of the largest medical malpractice awards in Washington state's history — $1.1 million — has been made to a woman who suffered a stroke after taking birth control pills.

Kathleen Klink, 24, and her husband were awarded the money by a King County court jury which ruled that Dr. Alvin L. Fields of Seattle negligently put Klink on the pill in 1974 and failed to warn her of the possible side effects of the drug.

She was engaged to be married at the time.

Klink told the court the stroke paralyzed part of her left arm and hand, impaired her speech and caused her to drool occasionally and to drag her left foot when she is tired.

She suffered the stroke in 1975, after taking the pill for 17 months.

New envoy sees Marcos

MANILA (Reuter) — President Ferdinand Marcos has received the credentials of Edward Lucien Bobinski as Canada's new ambassador to the Philippines, the presidential palace said.

Bobinski, who had been consul and trade commissioner here from 1966 to 1968, informed the president that he had personally asked for the Manila post.

Dalila kidnap linked to book

PARIS (AFP) — Dalila Maschino was taken from Montreal to Algeria because she planned to write a book potentially embarrassing to her wealthy brother, says Al Watan Al Arabi, an Arabic weekly newspaper published here.

Messaoud Zeghar whisked his 26-year-old sister out of Montreal in April, 1978, because she was preparing a book on Algeria, the newspaper quotes unidentified friends of Zeghar as saying.

Her husband, Denis Maschino, has said the reason for the alleged kidnapping was her marriage to a non-Muslim — an intolerable situation for Zeghar, the scion of the family. Koranic law stipulates that marriages between Muslims and non-Muslims are invalid.

The newspaper said the businessman is "a powerful intermediary in gas and oil sales contracts and transactions between the Algerian government and companies such as ITT and Boeing."

The same sources said Zeghar would not have appreciated Mrs. Maschino publishing material that risked harming his interests and the confidence he enjoyed with Algerian leaders.

Reports earlier this week said Zeghar was expected to announce Mrs. Maschino's marriage to another man in the near future. She is reportedly living in Algeria, but has travelled to Europe recently.

Meanwhile, Maschino has reportedly converted to Islam and is learning Arabic. The couple were married in France in March, 1975, and were living in Montreal when the alleged kidnappng took place.

The Amazing Diet Secret Of A Desperate Housewife

My name is Nancy Pryor. I am 35 years old. I am a housewife and mother of three children. I would like to tell you something personal about myself.

One day last September I just broke down and started to cry.

I couldn't help it. I had reached my breaking point. I felt like I was going to have a nervous breakdown.

It happened one Monday morning right after I got on the bathroom scales to weigh myself. I had been on a strict diet for nearly 2 months. I had gone off the diet over the weekend to give myself a break and just to live like a normal human being for a couple of days. Now the scales said I weighed 188 pounds. I just couldn't believe it! That meant that in one lousy weekend I had more than gained back every single pound I had lost in the last 3 weeks.

Maybe this doesn't sound like a big deal to you, but to me it felt like a tragedy.

I had been trying to lose weight for the last 5½ years. I had tried liquid protein. I had tried fasting. I had tried hypnosis. I had tried exercise. I had tried sauna belts. For a while I even used dangerous diet drugs. As far as diets go I tried almost every one I heard about. The Adkins diet. The Stillman diet. The grapefruit diet. The Women's Ski Team diet. Etc. Etc. You name it — I tried it.

The results were always the same. I would struggle and struggle to lose a few pounds and then the very first time I would give myself a small break the weight would come right back on.

It had happened many times before, but somehow this time it seemed like the last straw. I didn't know where to turn or what else to try. I was about to give up.

Don't get me wrong. I don't want this to sound like a sob story. I'm not telling you all this because I want you to feel sorry for me. There is no need for that anyway. My story has a very happy ending.

My story has a happy ending because the very next day I made a discovery that has changed my entire life. I found an amazing way to lose weight that I never dreamed existed.

I am not going to tell you where I found this secret. However, I will tell you this much: I did not get this information from a doctor. I did not get this information from a diet book. I did not find this information in a magazine. I did not find this information in a newspaper. I did not get this information from any of the so-called "diet experts."

To tell the truth, I stumbled across this information totally by accident when I was looking for something else.

But all that doesn't matter. What does matter is that at last I have found an answer.

Let me tell you why I think my diet secret is so fantastic.

MELTS FAT FAST

First of all, this diet works fast. It literally burns off fat by the hour. If you go on this diet in the morning you will losing weight before lunch. You will lose weight faster on this diet than if you ran 7 miles every day. You will be able to measure the difference in your waistline in 24 to 36 hours. I think this is the fastest safe diet in the world. If you can find a diet that works faster I will buy it from you and gladly pay you good money for it.

NO HUNGER

I'll tell you a secret. You will never lose weight and keep it off on any diet that leaves you hungry. Hunger is an irresistible force. Sooner or later, willpower always gives in to hunger.

This diet brings hunger to a dead full stop. You will never be hungry. As a matter of fact, one of the unique features of this diet makes it metabolically impossible for you to experience hunger. To me, it's like heaven.

76% MORE ENERGY

This diet converts body fat to body fuel. Starting on the 5th day of this diet your energy will begin to increase dramatically. It will increase every day until the 9th day when it begins to level off. After that your energy level will stay about the same. This new energy level will probably be about 76% higher than your level is now.

> "... You will lose weight faster on this diet than if you ran 7 miles every day. You will be able to measure the difference in your waist line in 24 to 36 hours. I think this is the fastest safe diet in the world. If you can find a diet that works faster I will buy it from you and gladly pay you good money for it ..."

SIMPLE AND EASY

This diet is very simple. It is easy to follow even if you eat in restaurants all the time. You do not count calories. You do not measure portions. The only thing you keep track of is how much you lose.

HEALTHY AND SAFE

This is not just a weight loss diet. It is a health diet also. It is safe. It is probably much safer than the way you eat right now.

Don't ever take a chance with your health. It's not worth it. Besides it is not necessary. You can lose weight fast with my diet plus get healthier every day you stay on it.

NO EXERCISE

You do not have to exercise to lose weight with this diet. However, since after the first few days you will have a lot more energy you will probably become more active. But you will lose weight very rapidly whether you become more active or not.

AUTOMATIC WEIGHT LOSS

Right after you go on this diet you start to lose weight automatically. You don't have to think about it all the time. Since you are never hungry you would probably forget you were on a diet if you weren't losing weight so fast.

As you can tell by now, I have come up with something pretty good. I think my diet is the best way to lose weight I have ever heard about. You will lose weight very fast and you will never be hungry. You will not have to count calories or measure portions. You can eat out as often as you like. Your health will improve and your energy will increase. Except for when you weigh yourself you will probably forget you are on a diet.

In short, this diet is fast, safe and simple.

There are four reasons this diet works so well. These four reasons make this diet different from any other. Here are those reasons.

Reason #1 This diet makes liberal use of a natural food substance that eliminates hunger. This food substance is widely used in Europe but almost unheard of in the United States. It looks and tastes exactly like table sugar. You use it the same way. You can mix it in your coffee or sprinkle it on cereals or use it in recipes as a substitute for table sugar. This substance is perfectly safe. Remember — it is a food not a drug. It is much better for you than ordinary table sugar (sucrose) because it does not provoke an insulin response. When eaten regularly throughout the day this substance very dramatically reduces hunger. It also has a soothing effect on jangled nerves.

Reason #2 This diet has a different plan of attack. This diet forces you to form a very new habit. This new habit is pleasurable and fun. This habit makes it possible to stay on any diet for life without ever feeling deprived. This new habit makes everything easy. It is so simple you will wonder why you never thought of it yourself.

Reason #3 This diet contains 5 delicious foods that may very well be new to you. I am going to ask you to eat at least one of these 5 foods every day. All of them are what I call "natural food tranquilizers." At exactly the same time these foods are releasing new energy into your system they also work to release all tension from your nerves and muscles and give you an emotional lift. Believe me it is very hard to diet if you are upset and in a bad mood all the time!

> "... I have lost 75 pounds. My friends say I look 15 years younger. I enjoy a peace of mind I have never before experienced. I feel good all the time. Best of all, my husband has fallen in love with me all over again."

Reason #4 This diet contains yet another unique food substance that releases the natural fat burning power of your system. This substance increases the amount of calories your body burns each day thereby allowing you to eat more without weight gain.

A SPARKLING NEW BODY

This diet has been a Godsend to me. I have a sparkling new body. I have lost 75 pounds. I now weigh 113 and I wear a size 6 dress. (I used to wear an 18). I have more energy now than I had when I was a teenager. I am in better health than I can ever remember. My friends say I look 15 years younger. I enjoy a peace of mind I have never before experienced. I feel good all the time. Best of all, my husband has fallen in love with me all over again.

Will this amazing little diet work for you? I am sure it will. All I ask is that you be open-minded enough to give me a chance to prove it even though I am an everyday housewife and not a diet doctor or anything like that.

I have written a book that tells you about my secret diet. It is easy-to-read. It tells you exactly what to do step-by-step. You can read my book in one evening. Then the very next day you can start losing weight so fast you just won't believe it.

NO RISK

Here's how you can read my book and try my diet without any financial risk at all. Go ahead and order my book by mail. Keep it 30 days and read it and check it out. Then if you are unhappy with it, send it back and I will return your payment to you quietly and without question.

If you are extra skeptical I suggest you postdate your check or money order by 30 days. I promise and guarantee I will not deposit it for at least that amount of time. Then if you decide to return my book I will send back your uncashed check or money order with no questions asked.

To order, write your name and address and the words "DIET SECRET" on a piece of paper and send it with $9.95 to me — Nancy Pryor, Dept. 506, 161 Maplewood Ave., P.O. Box 177, Maplewood, New Jersey 07040. I will send your book promptly by return mail. If you have any questions you can call me. My number is (201) 744-3777. Checks and money orders should be made payable to me — Nancy Pryor. (It is not a good idea to mail cash.)

Television remains world of fantasy

By DAN LEWIS

HOLLYWOOD — After a fortnight in Hollywood surveying the fall shows. I've concluded that television remains a world of fantasy, with an occasional interruption.

Come September 21 new weekly series will run on the three networks. More than half — 11 to be specific — come in various forms of comedy. The upcoming 1979-80 season is hardly historically innovative, imaginative, daring, or particularly meaningful.

Television executives maintain that television is meant to entertain. Thus, in addition to 11 new comedy series, there are seven adventure-dramas, and only two dramatic series.

If it is any consolation, two new shows are potentialy informative — the news magazine shows NBC and ABC have mounted to match the very successful 60 Minutes. Both, incidentaly, have already undertaken their weekly slots — ABC's 20-20 and NBC's Prime-Time Sunday.

Is there a Mork & Mindy and a Robin Williams in the pack?

ABC thinks it might have a new comedy sensation in Jimmy Brogan, a stand-up comic with a lean, Jimmy Stewart look and reticence. He's starring in a Sunday comedy. Out of the Blue, which is aimed at the very young audience.

If there is one series that has the advance feel of a bit hit, it would be ABC's half-hour spin-off Benson, starring Robert Guillaume, who became very popular as the butler on Soap. Now he's transferred his service to the governor's mansion where he's sort of a man-for-all situations — actually runs the executive mansion — and office.

There is merit to several other ABC comedies. The Associates, dealing with young lawyers, could develop into one of the beter-intentioned shows, and the Ron Moody-starring vehicle, Nobody's Perfect, is capable of being a good two-hour comedy with Moody playing a bungling Scotland Yard detective on special assignment in San Francisco.

NBC has no new half-hour comedies, but is offering a pair of hour shows it feels are funny, Real People in renewal, and The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo.

CBS has both half-hour and hour comedies. Trapper John stars Pernell Roberts, as the M-A-S-H character 20 years after the Korean war. The pilot is cluttered, filled with unrealistic hospital situations that are difficult to accept.

Last Resort is another sticom at CBS that has a nice feel to it, and is a potential success. It is filled with pleasant new, young people, which is television's preoccupation these days, set in a mountain resort where they work as waiters during the season.

The three networks are offering seven adventure dramas. Joe Don Baker will make his series debut in Eishied, recreating his role in To Kill a Cop, a good TV movie last season.

One of the most notable concerts to series television next fall will be the superb actor, James Earl Jones. He will star in Paris, portraying a big-city detective captain.

Consensus was that Jones lived up to his reputation in the pilot, but that the script left much to be desired. Slotted for Saturday evenings, his show will compete with Bob Conrad's Bondian role in Sloane and another new sleuthing series. Hart to Hart, on ABC with Robert Wagner and Stefanie Powers in a William Powell-Myrna Loy Thin Man type of series. The Sloane pilot originally starred another actor, but Conrad was substituted and so the pilot was not available for screening.

The Hart to Hart pilot is a two-hour film, a bit stretched, but the chemistry with Wagner and Powers is promising and the light touch makes it a humor-filled adventure show which has some appeal.

Buck Rogers is filled with special effects. Gil Gerard is an exciting new, macho-loaded personality for this NBC series. The only trouble is the show comes from those wonderful people who gave us Battlestar Galactica, Glen Larsen and Universal Television.

One of the new dramas on the schedule is Lazarus Syndrome, starring Louis Gossett Jr., the fine actor who did so well in both Roots and Backstairs at the White House. Based in a hospital, it has much more merit than Trapper John.

The other is From Here to Eternity, which debuted last season as a miniseries. Bill Devane is back as Sgt. Warden but Barbara Hersey replaces Natalie Wood as the captain's lady in the series. NBC committed to a series before the mini went on the air last winter, and might have regrets now.

Two greats in concert

In a concert produced especially for public television in 1976, Mel Torme and Woody Herman, two all-time musical greats, were reunited for the first time in over two decades. Airing Friday, August 10, at 10 p.m. on Channel 9, Mel Torme in Concert with Woody Herman, taped before a large audience at Adventureland in Des Moines, presents a unique blend of big-band, jazz, traditional and popular music.

Torme reveals is repertoire of talents as he sings his way through his own concert arrangements and "swings" on the original Gene Krupa drum set in a salute to that band leader.

Torme was enthusiastic about the joint concert "Woody has assembled one of the finest young bands in the business today." Herman, whose biggest single hit, "Woodchoppers Ball," sold over 5 million copies, recently has won back-to-back Grammy awards with his band.

British star learns from TV

Although she grew up in the theatre, Sheila White, who makes her American film debut in Walt Disney Productions' space-age fantasy, Unidentified Flying Oddball, has found television the perfect medium in which to learn and refine her acting skills. "TV is much more critical than the theatre," she says. "So by watching myself on the telly I can spot my mistakes and correct them the next time around."

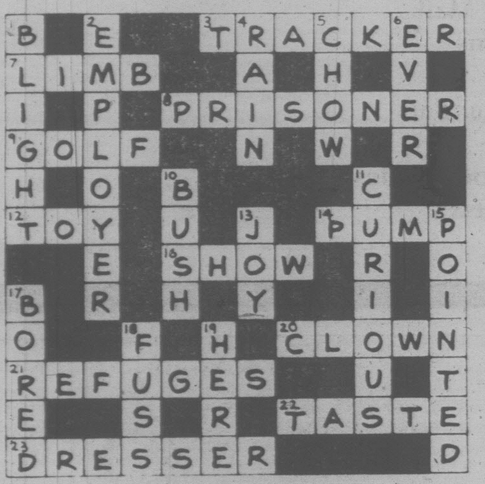
—PAYOFF PUZZLE—

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES ACROSS:

3. TRACKER not trucker. Since being a trucker is not all that unusual, the stronger answer is TRACKER.
7. LIMB not limp. It is the physical fault itself (bad LIMB), more directly than the mere symptom of infirmity (limp), that is the handicap.
8. PRISONER not poisoner. During the trial, one has a PRISONER (the defendant) who, being innocent until proved guilty, is not a poisoner.
9. GOLF not gold. Aptly, "fine, polished GOLF" is expert play, worthy of admiration. Gold is esteemed anyway and doesn't need polishing.
14. PUMP not jump. It is the prices that jump rather than the gasoline itself. On the other hand, it is necessary to PUMP all the gasoline supplies.
16. SHOW not snow. An early coming of the winter snow would be regarded as an accident of nature, rather than as being for one reason or another.
20. CLOWN not crown. A CLOWN's costume may be of a kind "long-established" in showbusiness terms, but the crown goes back into ancient history, much farther than this term implies. Also, the crown is an item of attire in itself, not merely "associated with" a form of attire.
21. REFUGES not refugee. Aptly, REFUGES are viewed as secure (that they may prove to be "less" so than had been imagined). Why should a refugee as such be assumed to be secure?
22. TASTE not haste. It is a desired skill or aptitude that is said to "come naturally," so TASTE is favored. Regarding haste, it is rather that some people seem prone to be late in the morning, or careless in dressing.
23. DRESSER not dresses. The idea of a woman keeping a number of old dresses as long-standing possessions is not very convincing. Also, the possibility of "regret" links up with a former possession later found to have value or desirability; this happens with antique furniture rather than old clothes.

CLUES DOWN:

1. BLIGHT not plight. BLIGHT is aptly viewed in the sense of a progressive disease. One can hope for an improvement — or at least no worsening — of one's plight.
2. EMPLOYER not employee. It is for the EMPLOYER, rather, that overwork is a matter of asking too much of himself. Where an employee is concerned, it may well be a case of allowing too much to be asked of him.
5. CHOW not crow. Aptly, a CHOW dog is a pet, but not a universally popular one. Thus, while a CHOW wouldn't appeal to absolutely "everybody," a crow would hardly appeal to anybody!
6. EVER not even. The idea of "perpetual" requirements making the job EVER more difficult is quite apt. "Even more difficult" implies that it is difficult in the first place; however, a fertile mind may find no particular difficulty in the very beginning.
10. BUSH not rush. The clue seems to envisage the progress of one such plant being observed; this is more reasonable in the case of a BUSH you plant in the garden.
11. CURIOUS not furious. Since he is a crank, his contentions may well be CURIOUS. However, "after" the quarrel, when he issues a considered "statement," he will hardly continue to be furious.
15. POINTED not painted or printed. Complaints about a sign being badly painted or printed would hardly be based on its having been done "the wrong way." Aptly, it is often the case that a directional sign needs to be POINTED in the right direction.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Deborah Hobart does it all

By JOHN GOUDAS

DEBORAH HOBART (left) is Dana Woodward in As the World Turns; Jacqueline Schultz turns up as the new Dee Stewart in the same show.

Deborah Hobart, who is a true beauty (she was a Miss World U.S.A. finalist in 1974-75), can also sing, dance and act — triple threat!

She joined As the World Turns in the role of the dancer from the Joffrey Ballet, Dana Woodward, who left the troupe to marry international composer-conductor Ian McFarland. Since her arrival in Oakdale, Bob Hughes has been paying a great deal of attention to Dana and it looks as if a strong romance is in the works.

Deborah, who has danced most of her life and appeared in many musicals, found the transition from hoofer to dramatic actress a tough one to make. She herself was able to do it without too much trouble, but casting people aren't as flexible.

"Once you get labelled a musical comedy performer," said Deborah, "that's the way you're tagged. It takes an imaginative casting person to give you a chance to break out of that mold and I was lucky, I guess."

Deborah remembers auditioning for the role of Dana a few times and at one point, it looked promising, but the next, she was told she didn't get it. However, a few months ago, she was called back and told the part was hers.

Since she has been appearing on the soap, Deborah says her mother, who works in showroom of a TV set maker, garnered new fans for the show. Her mother, adds Deborah, has all of the 20 or so TV sets in the showroom tuned into the soap and all of the salesman and office staff watch each day.

CHANNEL CHATTER. Jacqueline Schultz is the new Dee Stewart in As the World Turns. She replaces Marci McClain, who left to pursue other career opportunities. Dee handn't been involved in the storyline for some time, but she's fairly prominent now. Soap fans may recognize Jacqueline from "One Life to Live" as Valerie.

Quinn Redecker has recently joined the cast of Days of Our Lives in the role of Alex Marshall, a new businessman in town. Redecker was featured this past year as Nick Reed on The Young and the Restless. Also joining Days of Our Lives is Brenda Benet in the role of Lee Charmichael, Doug's sister-in-law. Brenda has done many movies and is married to Bill Bixby, The Incredible Hulk of TV.

Tempus Fugit! In 1966, Peg Murray (Carrie Lovett on Love of Life) won the Tony Award as Fraulein Kost for Broadway's musical Cabaret. Thirteen years later, Peg played the older Fraulein Schneider in a recent performance of Cabaret in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The high priestess of soap producer-writers, Doris Quinlan, takes over the production reins on The Doctors. In addition, Ms. Quinlan has signed an agreement to produce prime-time TV movies for NBC. Doris' vast background in soaps goes back many years. She was the original producer of Another World, produced One Life to Live for 10 years, and served as exec producer of All My Children for two years. Going way back to the early days of TV, Doris ws co-producer of the wonderful CBS series, I Remember Mama.

Attention soap fans! Coming up are two more Soaps Alive! presentations. On August 4 and 5 at Liberty Land in Memphis, Tenn., Kelly Wood (Mary Elison on As the World Turns) and Richard Dean Anderson (Dr. Jeff Webber on General Hospital) will grace the stage, as will David Hasselhoff (Dr. Snapper Foster on The Young and the Restless) and Wings Hauser (Greg Foster on The Young and the Restless). David and Wings will debut in their new musical act, The Foster Brothers.

PLOT PORTENTS. The affair between Chris and Amanda is getting out of hand on Days of Our Lives, since Amanda intends to work things out with Greg. Trish is puzzled about the diamonds Margo found, wondering what kind of jam Mike is into. That makes David angry, since he believes Trish is still fond of Mike.

Is Greg out of his mind to marry young Nikki on The Young and the Restless? Kay is beginning to get back at Suzanne with her resurrection bit, and Stuart Brooks almost chokes to death, only to be saved by Jill.

The search for Hope Bauer and Alan Spaulding continues on Guiding Light. Jackie takes a fall, and it looks like she might have a miscarriage. Ben's investigation may unearth a connection between the late Roger Thorpe and devious Alan Spaulding.

The seeds of discontent sowed by Delia begin sprouting on Ryan's Hope. Meanwhile, Siobhan accepts an invitation and gets a surprise!

Palmer mysteriously knuckles under to pressure from Myra on All My Children. Eddie vows revenge on Linc who is together again with Kelly. Benny and Edna face their coming wedding and Estelle says a prayer.

Three old faces return to Llanview on One Life to Live, causing a number of people to squirm. Pats search for Paul ends and she must now face Adam. Brad is sweating, Chip Warren arrives and Larry gets locked out of his office.

Paige escapes another attempt on her life on The Edge of Night. Margo pulls a fast one causing Draper anguish while there is new insight on Steve's "murder" of Joey Dials.

Looking at stars

It was the 19th-century philosopher Henry Drummond who wrote, "It is the man who is the missionary, not his words."

Well, updated to this week, Dr. Anne Race gets straight A's for practicing what she preaches about not getting uptight in stressful situations.

Anne, a psychiatrist, came to Mahattan for a press conference about her new Here's to Your Health series produced by Dallas station KERA for national distribution on the PBS network.

There were roses awaiting her scheduled midnight arrival at the new Halloran House Hotel, but no room. And it was 2:00 a.m. before she finally settled in at one of the Big Apple's older hostelries. However, she smiled away the unlovely surprise and got on with her work at 9 in the morning. She even wedged in a shopping spree.

DAMES AND LADIES — In answering a request for the address of Barbara Stanwyck, you recently referred to her as "the most durable dame." Didn't know from your name if you are male or female, but assuming you are male, no gentleman in his right mind would refer to Miss Stanwyck as a "dame." For your information Miss Stanwyck is a lady — always was and always will be. Reserve your insults for the trollops who deserve them. I request that you make a public apology to Miss Stanwyck in your column. If you don't you're no gentleman. — J. Belton, San Diego, Calif.

You're right; I'm neither a gentleman nor a man. But even if I weren't a woman myself (and one who had her consciousness raised years ago), I would not have flinched at the thought of calling Miss Stanwyck movies' "most durable dame." It was meant to refer to her film roles, as one might refer to Boris Karloff as movies' "most maniacal monster," when we all know in real life that Karloff was a gentle and cultured man. You'll note a harried writer's half-hearted attempt at alliteration, not character annihalation, in each case. Besides, if one wanted to get picky (and it seems I do), one might send you to Webster's where, under "dame," you would discover the slang definition means nothing more insulting than "woman or girl." However, if Miss Stanwyck read my column and was insulted by it, I do apologize.

CAUSE OF DEATH — Can you tell me how actor Jeffrey Hunter died, and if that was his real name? — Laura Bennet, Long Beach, Miss.

Hunter, born Henry M. McKinnies in 1925, died in 1969 as a result of injuries suffered in an accidental fall down a staircase.

ON HER OWN — I know Betty White appeared on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," but didn't she have her own show in the late '50s? I can't remember the name of it. — Fred Farley, Ashland, Ore.

From May of 1957 until January of 1958, she starred in the very forgettable "Date with the Angels," a sit-com in which she was married to an insurance salesman, which might have been funnier in the '50s than it is now. Immediately after that was cancelled, ABC gave her another chance with "The Betty White Show," which was also an early victim of cancelitis.

ACCURATE — I thought television was supposed to present an accurate depiction of modern times. I'm specifically referring to a recent episode of "Fantasy Island," where the story line involved a nun who was undicided about taking her final vows.

The story was OK but I'm at a loss to know why the nun was wearing the familiar traditional habit. Are the writers aware that nuns have modernized their clothing styles?

Why must they always be portrayed in an outfit that stretches to the floor with a habit over the forehead? — Sister A., Chicago, Ill.

There is an unwritten rule in the television and movie industry — avoid offending anyone. Another rule is based on the belief that a costume makes a role more theatrical and real.

Producers and directors hold the belief that the general public assumes nuns will be portrayed in the traditional habits. Thus to change the clothing might offend someone. Also, a change in clothing might detract from the role.

Essentially, nuns have been stereotyped in the entertainment industry. Even though there are many nuns today with a variety of non-traditional but tasteful habits, it will be some time before uou see them widely used in movie and television programs.

MOVED — I like soap operas and when I went to Dallas Texas, this spring, "Love of Life" was changed to later in the day. When I returned to Ohio, it wasn't scheduled at all from the Cleveland - Youngstown area.

Is there any special reason why it isn't carried in Ohio areas? Yet, "The Young and the Restless" is on twice in the morning. — A.R., Warren, Ohio

The CBS network recently changed its daytime schedule, shifting several soap operas to new time spots.

"Love of Life" was one of the series moved. It now airs at 3 p.m. regardless of time zone.

A CBS spokesperson here in Hollywood could not explain why the soaper is not being shown in your area. She said it is possible that your local station changed the air time from that set by the network. She suggested you contact your local CBS affiliate to find out what's happened to "Love of Life."

As for "The Young and the Restless," that popular soaper is aired on ABC and is unrelated to scheduling at CBS.

FIVE APES — How many "Planet of the Apes" movies were made and their titles? — E.C., Crawfordsville, Ind.

There were five "Ape" movies made, starting with the original "Planet of the Apes," which starred Charlton Heston and Roddy McDowall. Sequels included "Beneath the Planet of the Apes," "Escape from the Planet of the Apes," "Battle for the Planet of the Apes" and "Conquest of the Planet of the Apes." McDowall also appeared in the role of Galan in the short-lived television series based on the movie.

James Stewart narrates Yukon Passage

In 1896, a cry of "gold!" along Rabbit Creek in the Klondike of the Yukon Territory attracted thousands who thirsted for fortune and adventure. They were a breed of men and women made legendary by the wilderness sagas. Inspired by the mass migration spurred by gold fever, four young men set out to retrace the hostile beauty of the Yukon Passage, and their journey will be documented on a National Georgraphic Special, Thursday, August 9, at 8 p.m. (rebroadcast Saturday, August 11, at 7 p.m.)

Captain's 25th year

The multi-award-winning "Captain Kangaroo" children's series, starring its creator Bob Keeshan as the Captain, will open its 25th season this fall on CBS.

Drawing on the enormous pool of New York talent, the series will continue to feature guest stars, along with other entertaining and informational sequences in its Monday through Friday morning format.

This summer, a number of Broadway stars dropped by the CBS Broadcast Center in New York City to tape programs which will be broadcast in September.

Bob Keeshan, Captain Kangaroo to millions of youngsters, is recognized widely for his concern on behalf of quality children's programming. He and his "Captain Kangaroo" staff ran the second CBS Workshop on Children's Television in early June.

"Children's programming has grown up," Keeshan says. "We have some very good programs for young people — 'Mister Rogers' Neighborhood,' 'Sesame Street,' the numerous after-school specials and the 'CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People.' But too often these programs don't have large audiences because the children are watching soap operas, game shows and reruns, none of which were specifically designed for youngsters."

LOOKING AT STARS

Francesca Annis, TV's racy Lillie Langtry, told us some weeks ago she would accept no heavy dramatic roles until her half-year-old infant, Charlotte, was 18 months of age because she didn't want to bring home bad vibes.

To keep working, Francesca signed onto a studio-based television situation comedy not more than 15 minutes drive from her London townhouse. Now an apter — but non-TV — vehicle has been offered: to star in the London production of "I Remember Mama," in the role in which Liv Ullmann made her Broadway debut as a singer.

John Hearn's collectibles

Collector's are always intrigued by the dream of exclusivity — to know that they own the ONLY specimen of a particular collctible. There is a legend about an American millionaire philatelist who paid $100,000 for a stamp of which there was only one in existence. Sometime later he was approached by a dealer with a hitherto undiscovered identical stamp. The millionaire, shocked, had it carefully checked for authenticity only to find that there was no question but that it was the real thing. The dealer was asking $100,000 for it.

The millionaire paid up, received his precious stamp and promptly put a match to it. "Now," he said, "there IS only one".

Along the same lines there is a story that Anna's friend, the King of Siam spotted an assortment of Goss China in a Bangkok store — all bearing the Siamese coat of arms. He promptly bought the entire stock and to make sure that he would have no competition from other Siamese collectors, he passed a law prohibiting further sales of Goss china in his country.

Goss china is a perfect collectible — at least for the English collector, although it is undoubtedly very popular here and throughout the rest of the world. It was particularly popular in its day, around the end of the 19th century. The company was founded by William Henry Goss who was born in 1833 and became chief artist and designer for the Spode company before he was 25. It was then that he went into business for himself and in the course of the next thirty years built an unequalled reputation for his fine porcelain.

In the early 1880s, his son, Adolphus, launched the mass produced heraldic line which became 'Goss China' as we know it today. He travelled all over Britain sketching local antiquities which were than made in miniature complete with their coat of arms. In each locality he set up one exclusive agent for the product and eventually there was not a town of any size anywhere without its Goss china store.

Even though the line was mass produced the pieces were made of the same fine quality porcelain as the best of the regular Goss line and decorated with the same secret formula enamels for which they were famous. The timing was perfect since it coincided with the new cycling craze and collector's would pedal from town to town and fill their china cabinets with these pretty little mementos of their travels.

There was one little problem which throws an interesting light on the lack of marketing know-how of the day. There was only one Goss agent per town and in any sizeable place there was no way of knowing who or where he was.

Goss collector's pleaded with the company to publish a directory but they could not be bothered — to tell people where they could buy their product, that is! Eventually a private collector by the name of Jarvis compiled his own list of authorized agents with their addresses in virtually every town in the country. It was a big undertaking but the book was an instant best seller. Eventually Goss grudgingly cooperated with Jarvis to keep his information up to date. The Goss Record as it was called, continued to be published until 1921 and is a collector's item in its own right today.

The mantle of the long gone Mr. Jarvis seems to have fallen onto a gentleman by the name of Nicholas Pine, the present day Dean of Goss crested china who publishes a magazine for collectors, and a reasonably comprehensive price guide — in Pounds Sterling. I see that most of the familiar little pots trade in the 2-Pound to 5-Pound bracket while the rarer models will soar over the 1,000-Pound mark.

Collectors who want to be in touch with the mainstream of the Goss game can write to Nicholas Pine at West House, Portsdown Hill Road, Havant, Hants. P09 3JY. England.

Readers letters should be addressed to Collector's Item, c/o your newspaper, R.R. #1, Lowbanks, Ontario, N0A 1K0.

PLAN Nº 70-2057

Spacious ranch-style design

This three-bedroom ranch style bungalow may not have a basement but, its long and wide, low-profile exterior contains more than enough wide-open spaces for the most demanding of families. It is ideally suited to the wide frontage residential building lot, preferably with a view to the rear.

The crisply modern exterior, finished in horizontal channel siding, with brick veneer accents, shuttered windows and Arizona brick chimney, emphasizes the low-profile width and spaciousness of the design, and makes the home seem even larger than it is in fact.

The weather-protected entry leads directly into the long rectangular living-dining room combination, which features a wide-hearth fieldstone veneer fireplace, and wide picture window for excellent view and natural lighting.

The well planned U-shape kitchen is centrally positioned between the dining room and the large family-T.V. room, for excellent separation of casual family meals and formal dining when entertaining. The family room has wide sliding glass doors which provide ready access to a wide rear patio for outdoor barbecues in fine weather. A large laundry/utility room is immediately adjacent to the kitchen, and a two-piece vanity bath adjoins both the laundry facility and the garage.

A large and private den is adjacent to the family room., providing space for quiet moments or a retreat for Dad after a harried day at the office.

All three bedroooms are positioned around the central bath and linen storage area, and well away from the main entertaining area for freedom from disturbance. All have excellent natural lighting and abundant closet storage. The large master bedroom has a full walk-in closet, a three-piece ensuite with shower, and sliding glass doors connecting to the large rear patio. The central bath has sufficient counter area for the installation of a second vanity sink should it be required by individual family needs.

Plans for design No. 70-2057 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $70 for the first set and $10 for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $100.00 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $125.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 4 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs, Series 40, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas, plus 320 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.75 ($2 plus .75 cents postage and handling).

To order any of these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, c/o Victoria Press, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C., V5Y 1R2.

The newest addition to ABC's "Charlie's Angels" is top New York model Shelley Hack.

Shelley Hack will earn her wings

By DAN LEWIS

"I don't think I'm vapid or shallow," declares Shelley Hack. "I'll have to show the public I'm not a vapid person."

Top model Shelley Hack was selected from more than 100 tantalizing young ladies to replace Kate Jackson in "Charlie's Angels."

Admittedly, Charlie's Angels" does not require outstanding acting talents. However, it does require that the Angels be pretty — like Jaclyn Smith and Cheryl Ladd, and Farrah Fawcett-Majors before them. (The departed Miss Jackson was the exception — attractive and a better-than-average telvision actress.) They also should be energetic and able to take orders from Charlie, the voice in the squawk box of actor John Forsythe.

Miss Hack is a fetching contradiction of surface values. A stunning long and lean blonde (5-foot-7 and 115 pounds), she's known to television audiences as the Revlon commercial girl who saunters through a chic bar in an exquisite white suite while a pianist sings "Charlie Girl."

Shelley's background suggests substance more than shallow beauty. Born in Connecticut, she is one of seven children (she has two brothers and four sisters). Her late father was a chemical engineer.

She has a degree in history from Smith College, and she studied archaeology at the University of Sidney in Australia, and acting in New York. She's traveled widely on assignments as a model — which placed her on the cover of magazines such as Glamour, Vogue, McCall's and Harper's Bazaar.

At 14, Shelley ws "discovered" by a photographer-publisher who was taken by her looks and gave her the I'll put you on magazine covers" speech. Remarkably, he did — Glamour Magazine the first time out. It quickly led to a contract with a leading model agency (Eileen Ford) and soon she was in heavy demand.

The Charlie Girl cmmercial sprinboarded Shelley into acting. Bit parts followed in several films, including one in "Annie Hall." She is still committed to the commercials.

When she won the role of Tiffny Wells, Shelley headed for the Caribbean with her new costars, Jacklyn and Cheryl, for the two-hour opening episode of the new season. Before long, stories were hitting the gossip columns and fan magazins that there was trouble brewing: The two returning stars were being cool to their new partner.

To offset these dastardly, untrue rumors, ABC conveniently arranged for a party during the recent press eeek. Cohosts Cheryl and Jaclyn introduced Shelley to sme 300 television editors from all over the country. They spoke glowingly of each other and chastised those who fabricated stories of friction.

The following morning Shelley went through the round-robin interview.

Asked why she would want to participate in a series whose producer considers it "cotton candy for the mind," Shelley responds: "Working every day is the best thing an actor can do. It's terrific. You learn so much being in front of the camera every day, as opposed to sticking to acting classes."

Shelley revealed her agent arranged for her test in response to a national search for a new "Angel." In the series, Miss Jackson's departure will be explained simply: Her character got married and no longer wanted to work.

"I tok the test," Shelley recalls, "and then I didn't think about it. You do your best and forget about it, otherwise you spend two weeks of sleepless nights waiting for a word."

"A hobby that's gone wild" is how Glen Sorestad describes the publishing business which operates from his home in Saskatoon. Sorestad works full time as a teacher of English and creative writing at Evan Hardy Collegiate in Saskatoon, but seven or eight years ago he also began to pursue an avocation as a poet. By 1975 he'd published enough poetry in little magazines to begin thinking seriously about collecting his work in book form.

From there it was a relatively short step to the organization of Thistledown Press, which Glen and his wife Sonia operate with friends Neil and Susan Wagner. The women handle the business end, coping with correspondence, budgeting, bookkeeping, promotion and orders, while Neil prepares the graphics and Glen is final editor ("though everybody has a say in what we decide to publish").

Their first book was Windsong, a collection of poems by Glen and drawings by Neil. They'd contracted with a printer for 500 copies, and two and a half months later, "with not much publicity", they'd sold them all!

"It was a home-grown product," says Sorestad, "and we sold most of them in Saskatoon." Convinced — as who wouldn't be — that the time was ripe, the Thistledown Four promptly found another writer and produced a second book. This time it was Dark Honey, a collection of poems by a professor friend of Glen's named Ronald Marken.

By the spring of 1979 Thistledown had produced 15 collections of "prairie poetry" by writers in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Titles include two more by Sorestad (Prairie Pub Poems, Ancestral Dances), Inside is the Sky by Lorna Uher, and Octomi by Andrew Suknaski.

So far their most financially successful project has been Old Wives Lake by J. D. Fry. This is a retelling of a Cree legend that is based on historic fact. (It seems a Cree tribe once camped in hostile Blackfoot territory while travelling in search of Buffalo. The Blackfeet, angered, prepared to attack. The greatly outnumbered Cree held council and opted to fight and die, but were interrupted by an "old wife" who persuaded the men to take their young people and flee by night, while the old wives stayed behind to tend the fires and deceive the Blackfeet. Next morning, when the attack came, the old wives were massacred but the remainder of the tribe were saved to live on and tell the story of their heroic sacrifice to future generations.)

Fry relates this legend as a play in verse. The book lends itself to classroom use so well that Saskatchewan has listed Old Wives Lake as a resource book for English curricula in grades seven, eight and nine.

Like other publishers I've talked to about their work, the Sorestads are enthusiastic. "It's a labor of love, though," cautions Glen. "We're strictly a literary press." If one of Thistledown's books happens to appeal to the lucrative schools market it's a happy accident, not the result of shrewd advance planning.

Thistledown's main aim is to promote the work of Prairie poets, especially younger poets who have begun to publish in little magazines but who are still relatively unknown. For this reason Thistledown prefers to bring out a new title rather than reprint an old one that has sold out. Consequently, its earlier books have become collectors' items.

Plans for the future include an anthology of poems reflecting the Prairie experience. "There's an explosion of writing in the Prairies right now," says Glen Sorestad. "There's been much more happening in the last five years then ever before."

The population of Saskatchewan has remained at just under a million for the last 25 years. Today's poets are often urban dwellers with deep roots in ther province's rural soil, seeking to synthesize their experience of the present with their consciousness of the past. Here's Sorestad explaining the process himself, in a poem titled "Beginnings" from his book Ancestral Dances:

"The poem is not so much
that bound the prairie mind it is the impaled wing the sole reminder of a sharp-tailed grouse that flaps now on the wire like some unremembered signal".

Two versions of dubious Hitler visit to Liverpool

ADOLF HITLER . . . Bridget misremembers

By ANTHONY JENKINS

In 1909, at the annual Dublin Horse Show, Bridget Dowling, a 17-year-old Irish girl, was introduced to a "handsome stranger" and fell in love with his "cream-colored waistcoat . . . heavy gold chain . . . his moustache . . . waxed and curled upright a la Kaiser. Despite, or because of her parents' disapprobation, the pair eventually ran away to London, married, and settled in Liverpool. The handsome stranger was Alois, the older half-brother of Adolf Hitler.

The typescript of Bridget's uncompleted memoir is now part of the collection of the New York Public Library and was re-discovered by Robert Payne during his researches for The Life and Death of Adolf Hitler. Other writers have since consulted its pages, but the memoir is now published for the first time, with contemporary photographs, by Michael Unger of the Liverpool Daily Post..

Bridget's marriage to Alois and the fact of their son — mother called him Pat, father insisted of Willie — are genuine enough; the edition contains copies of the marriage and birth certificates. The controversy surrounding the memoir arises from the fact that it was obviously written during the Second World War when Bridget's memory of her early years was colored by hindsight ("if only we'd known then . . .! ") and by an urge to cast herself and her son in the best light possible.

This bending of the facts and certain inaccuracies (misrememberings?) of detail, has led experts to doubt the more startling claims that Bridget makes. She maintains that between November 1912 and April 1913 brother Adolf, on the run from conscription into the Austrian Army, was a visitor to their lodgings in Liverpool's Upper Stanhope Street. She also states that the dictator was responsible for the death of his adored niece, Geli, in an incestously passionate quarrel and that her brother, Leo, was murdered after having accused his uncle of Geli's death.

Nowhere in his own writings and conversations with others did Hitler ever mention a visit to England that would agree with Bridget's recounting of Adolf's famous "lost year." Yet the memoir implies that his humiliation and discomfort while down-and-out in a foreign land had something to do with the revenge he was later to pursue. Upon his departure for Munich, Adolf is supposed to have leaned from the train and promised that his brother would get what was owing to him. Alois saw in those words a double meaning: "He meant to threaten me, saying I'd get what was coming to me. But what do I care for threats of a loafer like him?"

The details of Geli's death are even more dubious. Her brother was actually captured on the Russian Front, and Hitler arranged for his exchange. And, in 1937, Bridget herself had given a different version of the girl's death: "The cause of Geli's suicide was the fact that she was pregnant by a young Jewish art teacher in Linz."

Although its style is flat in a genteel sort of way (the editor theorizes about a ghost-writer), the memoir, however controversial, is worth reading for its sidelights on Hitler's embarrassed relationship with Alois, with his English nephew, and with his two sisters.

Bridget's account of her visit to Berchtesgaden is crowded with circumstantial details which expose the weird twists in Hitler's idea of himself, his family, and the people he ruled. It also, unintentionally, displays the edginess of his British relatives and the intricacies of their feelings toward the new Napoleon.

But Bridget, who ended in respectable obscurity as an American citizen, would be loath to recognize herself through the eyes of the British novelist, Beryl Bainbridge, who has bent the first few pages of the memoir into her idiosyncratic brand of black humor.

The Bainbridge world consists of subliterate characters who are determinedly self-possessed but who, in the reader's eyes, are grotesquely out of kilter with the normal world and with their fellow creatures. In this version, Bridget cannot comprehend the tensions between Alois and Adolf nor their emigre world. Were it not for her pride, she would as soon take herself and "darling Pat" back to Dublin and her parents.

THE MEMOIRS OF BRIDGET HITLER, edited by Michael Unger. Burns & MacEachern. $16.95.

YOUNG ADOLF, by Beryl Bainbridge. Burns & MacEachern. $13.50.

Bainbridge plays amusingly with our knowledge of later history. She takes a detail from the memoir about the frayed condition of Adolf's only shirt and pictures Bridget's rummaging about for material to make him another, and finding only coarse brown cloth.

We also learn how he parted his hair in that distinctive way (to hide a scar) and grew a small moustache. But from the failure of the surrounding slum-dwellers to thwart the health authorities in taking away their children, Adolf learns one of life's more sinister principles: "Let the minority act with enough authority . . . and the majority will walk like lambs to the slaughter."

Were these ironies its only aim, the novel would simply trivialize one of the century's major tragedies. Adolf is only incidentally an historical character. The memoir, in all probability part fictional in itself, has provided the novelist with the germ for a study of paranoia.

Adolf, unable to understand English, is maddened by a persecution mania that is only partly explained by his fear of pursuit by the Viennese authorities. In his eyes, the world becomes a grotesque looking-glass peopled with monsters, derelicts and butchers: "I have suffered enough . . . They are everywhere. On boats, beside railway tracks, outside picture houses, smiling above beards. Just now there was another with a bandage about his head."

Bainbridge plays off the fractured delusions of Adolf's haunted mind against a minutely accurate Liverpool in the early 1900's. We see the realities of life in Upper Stanhope Street, though Adolf and the others, in their obsessions, cannot. The effect is both terrifying and hilarious.

So disturbing is Adolf's experience in Liverpool that he vows never to mention "this accursed city . . . this lunatic island" (another version of Hitler's later silence about England).

In the novel Adolf's departure is even more sinister and ironic as he repeats the words from the memoir, his head filled, as the reader knows, with a fortune-teller's promise of "tall nordic maidens" who would "blow their brains out for him." Despite the surreal grotesquerie, the book's last line produces a shiver: "Such a strong-willed young man. It is a pity he will never amount to anything."

Putting blame on the sufferer

By WALT KELLYTHORNE

SONTAG . . . condemns 'preposterous' theories

With the spread of modern disease — particularly tuberculosis in the last century and cancer in this — has come a peculiar way of thinking about disease. Susan Sontag calls it "metaphoric" thinking, and this startling book is her pungent exploration of that way of thinking and its consequences for all of us — well or ill.

Metaphoric thinking about disease is not easily defined, and Sontag doesn't attempt an exact, dictionary explanation of the process here. What she offers instead is example, from Galen to Karl Menninger, the modern psychoanalyst who, as Sontag quotes him, muses that "illness is in part what the world has done to a victim, but in larger part it is what the victim has done with his world, and with himself . . ."

To Sontag, views like Menniger's are "preposterous and dangerous". She maintains that such "psychologizing" eventually "undermines the 'reality' of a disease" and makes understanding and effective treatment nearly impossible.

Most brilliantly in this short book — where every page contains at least one idea capable of generating imaginary pages of thought in the reader's mind — Sontag examines the short and long term results of such metaphoric thinking.

Simply put, such thinking makes the sufferer responsible for his or her disease — and for its ultimate cure.

In the 19th century tuberculosis was thought to be the outward sign of its victim's frustrated passion. The notion actually goes at least as far back as the 17th century, when "melancholy" and "choler" were described by Gideon Harvey as "the sole cause" of TB. Byron, Keats, Dickens and other famous figures further popularized the figure of the passionate victim until, as Sontag puts it, the whole process became "the first widespread example of that distinctively modern activity, promoting the self as an image."

Cancer began to receive its due primarily through the writings of Wilhelm Reich in the twenties and thirties of this century. Repression — mainly of anger — was thought to be the main cause of cancer, and Reich's ideas have flourished to the point where today many physicians and psychologists are shifting treatment emphasis from the entirely physical to a mixture of the physical and emotional — or even abandoning physical treatment entirely.

Sontag doesn't stop at the personal, however, and the most provocative parts of Illness As Metaphor are concerned with the effects of metaphoric thinking about disease upon what might be called the body politic.

After examining the relevant literature, Sontag remarks, casually enough, that "Cancer is described in images that sum up the negative behavior of twentieth-centry home economicus: abnormal growth, repression of energy, that is, refusal to consume or spend."

She goes on to point out that the language of warfare is commonly used to describe cancer and its treatment and then, after quoting effectively from modern political philosophers, leads the reader inescapably to her assertion that "to describe a phenomenon as a cancer is an incitement to violence."

Thus Illness As Metaphor is primarily and preeminently a political work, as is the phenomenon it describes.

Poets speak through art to each other

By DOUG BEARDSLEY

No Longer Two People is a unique series of poems by Governor-General Award's winner Patrick Lane and Lorna Uher. The title is taken from a quote by Picasso: "They are no longer two people, you see, but forms and colors, forms and colors that have taken on, meanwhile, the idea of two people and preserve the vibration of their life."

Uher and Lane wrote nine poems each. She begins the dialogue, this "search through language to find the means by which we could know each other, with the poem, "With my fist I stroke you," but she doesn't stop there. "I burn your poems/scatter the ashes over your toast" are just two of the more humorous lines that follow, though Uher has the skill to shift the tone of a poem from stanza to stanza and frequently does.

The man answers her ("The space between my ribs contains only a loss") and the dialogue begins. The poems build well, complementing each other, uncovering as they go. Uher's "You're so covered with scars/you forget where they come from" is particularly fine. Here is Lane's reply:

> covered with pale feathers.
> At night when you lie > sleeping among the green > dreams your body calls love
> I lift your eyelids, watch > his wandering among the white > rivers of your mind.

There is, of course, a male and female vision in these poems. Accusations abound:

> You have never learned > the meaning of the word > gentleness: tell me > you will kill me > for poems

he writes, and we feel certain of her ability to do just that.

In the end the female voice calls for "the forgiveness of winter: drifts/to bury all the dead we left behind." She opened, he closes, the male voice calling for patience, breaking "a trail through the snow."

As they state in their preface, "it is rare in literature for two poets to exist in love and even rarer that they risk themselves by speaking through their art to each other." It is rarer still to have poems such as these from such fine poets.

A first book of poems is always a difficult business, especially when the poet is in his or her late teens or early twenties. What weighty pressures we bring to bear on our young poets today. There seems to be a demand that they write their old-age poems, their poems of wisdom, while they are still teenagers. As a result, there is little joy or celebration in a young poet's work, little risking of the English language or testing of the magical possibilities of words. We seldom see or feel the anxiety of today turning to light. Instead, we are offered a young, tormented soul, reaching for what it cannot hope to assimilate, let alone understand.

There is much in Moving Inland that is derivative of the typical west coast poem so championed by creative writing schools today, but Diana Hayes is potentially too good a poet to have to worry about that. Anyone who can construct poems such as "Cormorant With Wings On Fire" (though the penultimate line is unnecessary), the highly-skilled "Sestina For Superior," the first half of "Cayman At Hollows Marsh," the opening of "Epitaph," "What Is Heaviest" and "What If," has nothing to lose but her influences.

Hayes' lovers are seen as "curious sculptors/ carving each other/ to scale . . .

> this island, > afraid to move
> from this knowing, > knowing this leaving > will see three > of us
> on a tilted horizon,
> heavy from her quay.

Hayes has a habit of repeating words that have neither the power nor the rhythm to stand repetition ("beyond the thick and thick of morning," "I knew the rending of soul and soul," "the flow and flow of city walks"), and I'm not convinced the short line she employs is the natural line for some of these poems, but these are things she can easily correct, if necessary.

Regarding "the rending of soul and soul" quoted above, I would just like to add that the wrenching of the emotional and spiritual centre of man is serious business, yet simply saying it in the poem doesn't make it a fact. We, the reader, must be made to feel the emotion, we must be shown, not merely told.

One final comment: if I didn't feel that Diana Hayes was a skilled writer with the potential to become a really fine poet, I wouldn't have taken the time to write this review. I wouldn't have written anything at all, because it wouldn't have mattered. Where Diana Hayes is concerned, it matters.

E. D. WARD-HARRIS

The other Naipual writes a remarkable travel book on Africa

Some time ago, late last year in fact, I read North of South, Shiva Naipaul's description of his journey through three African countries. Two or three weeks ago I read Anthony Jenkins' review of V. S. Naipaul's new novel, A Bend in the River, set in the same region of Africa, and I went to check what I had written about North of South and, horror of horrors, discovered that I had shelved the book without reviewing it. To do this to any book is bad; to do so to a book written by a Naipaul is unpardonable. To make amends, I read the book again — which was certainly no hardship — and now, belatedly, I must tell you about it.

I wonder whether the Naipaul brothers journeyed to Africa together, or whether Shiva went first and then alerted V.S. to the possibilities. It may have been the other way round. The speculation is idle; what counts are the results, and the results in this case are interesting and highly enlightening: fictionalized and non-fictionalized accounts which overlap to provide a graphic word-picture of an important area of modern black Africa that we are unlikely to obtain from any other quarter

We are concerned here with Shiva Naipaul, but it is difficult to avoid mention of V.S., if only for the reason that Shiva has so obviously modelled his work on that of his famous older brother. And what a model! V.S. Naipaul, who is head and shoulders above most contemporary novelists, is as astonishing as the Orwell who came out of Burma and the Conrad who came out of the British Merchant Navy. As a rootless Trinidad-born East Indian, based in London, his is the very voice of exile, expressed in prose fiction far superior, in my opinion, to that of Nabokov.

His fiction, like all the finest novels, is, to quote a phrase he himself once used, "indistinguishable from truth." His non-fiction, displayed at its best in India: A Wounded Civilization; usually consists of observations of, modern social history presented as sensitive, insightful vignettes that make his work as remote from that of professional historians as one can imagine.

Shiva, who has written two novels but whose first venture into non-fiction this is, describes his journey through Kenya, Tanzania and Zambia in the style of his older brother and North of South (South Africa) proves that he is a very apt pupil indeed.

The mood is set even before he arrives at his destination. In the airport at Brussels he is beseiged by an elderly Sikh who is bewildered by visas and terrified by the thought of returning to Africa where, after the Ugandan forced exodus, he realizes that his days in the only homeland he knows are numbered. The remaining passengers in the airport lounge are Zaireans returning from a financial conference in New York. These flashily-dressed types are completely preoccupied with 'beads and mirrors' in the form of wristwatches, transistor radios, cassette recorders and calculators they have just purchased at the duty-free shop.

Pilots are white

Aboard the Air Zaire plane they refuse to stop smoking or to fasten their seat belts or even to sit down, preferring to wander about showing their new toys to one another. Shiva wonders aloud what is going on in the cockpit but is reassured by an ardent Zairean nationalist that Air Zaire is a safe airline because all the pilots are white men! Eventually, liquor does its stuff and the 'financial advisers' go into a drunken sleep. And with the big spenders unconscious, the lazy, disinterested, plump, steatopygous hostess refuses to do any further work.

With this sort of introduction, you can imagine how an Evelyn Waugh would have treated Africa. But a Naipaul is not a Waugh. Preconceptions, assumptions and cruelty are not part of his intellectual baggage. Shiva Naipaul stepped off the plane at Nairobi with an open mind, no contacts, and with no fixed itinerary.

But an open need not be a blank mind, and Shiva Naipaul clearly prepared himself by reading and digesting everything he could lay his hands on. So what we have here is an informed traveller who is able to relate effects to causes and who is scrupulously honest in his reporting without ever being judgmental. And best of all we have as guide an educated, highly intelligent rootless man whose skin color permits him access to black and white, both of whom are flattered by his attention and feel unthreatened.

We are introduced to examples of all sections of stratified African society from young Kikuyu in Kenya who act and talk like actors in a Hollywood B movie. ("Hi, baby." "Where you been?" "Around.") to cadre leaders in Tanzania who blindly follow Chinese revolutionary fervor, with all its extremes and contradictions, without realizing that what works in China cannot work in Tanzania because "the China experience" has no relevance to anyone but a Chinese, the Chinese peasantry having been inured over millenia to disciplined labor and highly centralized state control.

We also meet platitude-mouthing, urbanized government officials who are completely out of touch with the people they control. In Tanzania, Shiva wished to visit a commune and asked permission from the top officials at the Culture Ministry to see ujamaa (President Nyerere's vaunted doctrine of universal familyhood) in action.

"I will tell you frankly — ujamaa is not very interesting," said the official.

"But ujamaa is the foundation of the Tanzanian Revolution, Ndugu Kaiza. How can you say such a thing?"

Official obstruction

"It is people planting. That is all. Why do you want to see people planting? If you want to find out about ujamaa read the works of Mwalimu."

"I have."

"Then why bother . . . people planting, that is all."

Shiva never did get to see "the spirit of Socialism and Self-Reliance". It was typical of the official obstructionism he met at every turn.

But he did meet a student of literature ("I am very good at literature") who had never read a book; a young man, dressed as a Hollywood cowboy, who had visited London and been an extra in a BBC television production and who, without any assets, talked of starring in an ambitious play ("As I'm the only professional here I shall also have to produce and direct it."); and an incredible black woman who called herself Alberta and "operated a ranch." She, too, was dressed for the part, had a huge American car, a house filled with skins and European bric-a-brac and cases of whisky — but who possessed only one or two cows and no crops.

He meets all manner of people — Africans, Asians, and Whites — and he employs snatches of dialogue tellingly to portray the universal disillusionment and absurdity. There is the Dutch Calvinist minister who wants Africans to remain simple primitives, and practise birth control, and the wife of an American UN official who finds everything "fantastic" — fantastically awful ("I can't get frankfurters. What do the people here live on?" "I've been to a game park. It was dirty, so much dust. Why can't they build proper roads?")

Everywhere he goes Shiva Naipaul is made aware of the three things which disfigure Africa: widespread corruption, fear, and the pathetic equation of western technological gimmickry with progress.

Apart from acute observations, strong descriptive powers, and marvellous dialogue, Shiva Naipaul also frequently treats the reader to brief passages of his own philosophy. These passages are so lucid and so filled with genuine insight that, for me, they became the best parts of the book. Here, he expresses forcibly his strong feelings regarding the fascinating and deadly game played between black and white, and always he is free from the preconceptions which color most writing about Africa.

Shiva Naipaul, like his brother, is a master at exposing cliches and rhetoric for what they are. Resounding words, whether mouthed by African political leaders or by European romantics like Karen Blixen, are set against the realities experienced by this sharp-eyed and sensitive traveller, and they shrivel.

In North of South you will find comedy and tragedy and the usual anecdotal pleasures of a good travel book, but this is infinitely more than a travel book. For one thing, the author is a novelist and he tells his story with a novelist's skills; and for another this brilliantly written book presents a view of Africa which may well shock or alarm some complacent readers and, like all great books, it cannot fail to stimulate thought and discussion.

'Raincoast Chronicles' tell the British Columbia story

By CHARLES LILLARD

Well, Howard White and his associates at Madeira Park have done it again.

M. Wylie Blanchet is probably one of the most shadowy of all B.C. writers. She is the author of the justly popular The Curve of Time, but her devotees have found it impossible to learn anything about Ms. Blanchet. What she wanted known, she put into her book. And that's that.

Now, in their eighth issue, the editors of The Chronicles have published a biographical article on Blanchet by Edith Iglauer Daly. It's a must for anyone interested in this author, and it's one more first for The Chronicles. But we shouldn't be surprised — this magazine always contains eye-opening articles and art. The editors published Bus Griffiths' first cartoons (now compiled in a "classic" edition), as well as many of the first intelligent articles on logging, fishing and growing up in B.C., which have appeared in years. No wonder the past seven issues of this magazine are prized by collectors and readers alike.

Along with the article on "Capi" Blanchet, there's a previously unpublished piece of hers, "Henry Finds the Roar," along with a piece on A. J. (Jim) Spilsbury, who pioneered coastal radios in B.C., then went on to found Queen Charlotte Airlines (now known as Pacific Western). There's also a fascinating piece on a deserters camp near Gibsons and a long-rumored murder. Beth Hill writes on Francis Barkley, the first woman to see the B.C. coast. There are also poems by Earle Birney, Hubert Evans and John Skapski.

Perhaps the weakest section of the magazine is an article on the now-famous "outlaw" Simon Gun-an-noot. However it's only weak in the sense that nothing new is revealed. If the reader is unfamiliar with Gun-an-noot, the material is new; if not, it's merely a rehash of the already-known. More than one person, among them an ex-RCMP officer from the Hazeltown area, and a well-known B.C. writer, can add a great deal to the "outlaw's" legend. Gun-an-noot's last years were not as "peaceful and law-abiding" as the many pop-historians might like us to believe.

The importance of The Chronicles is outlined by White in his most recent Editorial. He quotes Rupert Brooke's famous lines about B.C.: "Here one is perpetually a firstcomer." Brooke believed this land was filled with stories, yet "destitute of legend." White is quite right to point out: "What these good people forget is that you cannot see the ghosts or learn the legends of a place unless you are willing to do so."

The Chronicles are teaching us to see, and each issue, for those willing to look, has extended our vision. Our coast is full of legends; this magazine is hunting down the ghosts behind the legends and giving each a name and face. Let's hope it has a long life; it's doing a fine job in a long overlooked area.

She is still learning

After a stage and nightclub career in New York, Lynn Kellogg has found the transition to West Coast life relatively easy. Seen regularly on the ABC News young people's magazine, "Animals Animals Animals," Kellogg, known primarily for her singing, modeling and acting, hopes to add designing to her list of accomplishments. She has already successfully transferred some American Indian designs onto fabrics.

Fortunately, Kellogg adores animals and, although her fellow cast members on "Animals Animals Animals," may be more exotic, she currently shares a happy home with a 5-year-old cat, Moose and a 2-year-old dog, Buffy.

Violence flares in gas strike

A Teamsters Union strike against three oil companies turned violent on the mainland today as pickets broke windows and flattened tires on four Gulf Canada Ltd. tanker trucks.

Company spokesman Roy Carson said the incident occurred at Gulf's distribution plant in Burnaby as supervisory staff were moving the trucks across a picket line.

Rocks were hurled through the trucks' windows and tires were punctured with spikes.

"It was rather surprising because yesterday the union had said they were not interested in harassing service stations," Carson said.

He said the tankers were headed for stations in the Vancouver area.

The company will only continue its efforts to supply the gas stations if police protection is guaranteed, Carson added.

The other two companies involved, Chevron and Imperial, were also attempting to keep up with the burgeoning demand for gasoline but they were not bothered by pickets.

The truck drivers, warehousemen and office staff went on strike against Gulf Tuesday and Thursday their counterparts at the other two companies joined them on the picket lines.

Spokesmen for the companies in Victoria and Vancouver said motorists have started to panic unnecessarily.

Imperial is not involved in Victoria because the company doesn't operate its own trucks but contracts the work out.

Neither is Shell involved because their truck drivers belong to a different union.

Bob Dunsmuir, who runs a Shell station at 1321 Yates, said there shouldn't be any problem as long as people don't overreact.

He said cars were lined up at his station at 7 this morning.

One man showed up with a barrel to be filled and Dunsmuir turned him away saying such hording is unnecessary.

Chevron is continuing to deliver products to the gas stations in Victoria using supervisory help and a company spokesman said he didn't foresee any supply problem.

Gulf is making no effort to supply its Victoria stations and a company spokesman said the stations will likely run out this weekend.

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier said Thursday there was a possibility public works employees would have to be laid off in order to leave enough gasoline for emergency vehicles.

However, he said today the municipality had been assured of the delivery of another 1,000 gallons and so there would be enough "for the near future."

The Teamsters union members are seeking parity with their counterparts in the transport industry who received a $2.12-an-hour wage increase in a two-year contract earlier this year, said one Gulf official.

Teamsters officials refuse to discuss the issues in the dispute.

Poll shows Petro-Can sale opposed

TORONTO (CP) — Almost half of Canada's voters think the Progressive Conservative government should not sell Petro-Canada, the government-owned oil company, to the private sector, a Gallup poll shows.

About 48 per cent of those surveyed said they disapprove of selling Petro-Canada while 22 per cent support the sale. Thirty per cent had no opinion.

Results are based on 3,052 personal home interviews with adults, 18 years and over, conducted in early July. A sample of this size should not vary more than three percentage points, at a 95-per-cent confidence level.

Opposition to the sale of Petro-Canada was greater in Western Canada, among those with university training and those who voted NDP or Liberal in the recent federal election.

The question asked in the poll was:

"There has been some talk recently about Petro-Can — the national oil company that is operating as a Canadian Crown corporation. In your opinion should Petro-Can be sold to the private sector — that is the non-government sector — or not?

"How strongly do you feel about this — very strongly, or not strongly at all?"

Major air safety probe launched by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — A public inquiry into the safety of civil aviation was announced today by Transport Minister Don Mazankowski to deal with public concern about air safety rules and procedures.

Mazankowski said in a statement he is calling for the public inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Charles Dubin of the Ontario Court of Appeal, because of aircraft accidents, critical press reports and a 1977 safety investigation report on commercial aviation in Ontario.

The minister said in an interview this criticism "doesn't augur well for a good environment for the travelling public."

It was "advisable to take an independent examination of this thing" to assure the public the air safety issue was being given a fair hearing. The inquiry would help him plan changes to the Aeronautics Act and establish an independent accident-investigation commission.

Mr. Justice Dubin is to report by Oct. 1, 1980.

He is to inquire into inspection and certification of the aircraft and conditions under which they may be used and operated. He also will look into the formulation and enforcement of laws, regulations and rules for air safety.

The commissioner also will examine how air accidents and incidents are reported and investigated, particularly the problem of small aircraft in remote areas and at airports without air traffic control.

A public inquiry, rather than an internal investigation, reflects the Progressive Conservative government's policy of responding to public concern in an open manner, the minister said.

Mazankowski said there is debate on details for his proposed independent accident investigation commission and Mr. Justice Dubin's inquiry should help.

Accidents such as a 1978 crash at Cranbrook and reports critical of air safety helped prompt him to call the public inquiry, the minister said.

Exclusive fishing rights to Indians

A provincial court ruling Thursday gives Indians exclusive right to control fishing in coastal rivers where they run through reserves.

The move is seen as an encouragement to Indian bands to pass control bylaws, and according to a legal adviser will affect access by sports fishermen.

It also will support a permanent conservation scheme on the Cowichan and Koksilah rivers, Indian spokesmen said today.

Chief Dennis Alphonse and economic development officer Wes Modeste, of the Cowichan band, hailed a provincial court decision at Lillooet granting the Bridge River band the rights to fish caught on that part of the river passing through the reserve.

The decision encourages Indians to move into management of fish stocks under authority of the Indian Act, by means of band bylaws, said Louise Mandell, counsel for the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs.

She said sports fishermen on reserves are already trespassing on property. "Now they are trespassing on the fish, too. It really makes sports fishermen completely out of bounds on reserves unless they are given the right by the band."

The Cowichan band is already in the second year of a salmon enhancement program financed by the federal fisheries department. Alphonse said his people are hoping to develop a permanent management scheme that will meet the needs of the band and satisfy conservation requirements.

Provincial court Judge William Diebolt pointed out federal fisheries conservation measures affect Indian rights to fish only in the absence of a coherent management program.

"I think it is a landmark decision," said Modeste, former chief of the Cowichan band. "Especially here in the Cowichan, where the river comes through the lands, the people have always maintained we have the right to the fish which come up the river. We've been here all the time."

Modeste said the Indians themselves are aware of the decline in fish stocks which has occurred in 80 years of commercial fishing in coastal waters. As a result of commercial harvesting, he said, chinook salmon stocks in the Cowichan are down about 90 per cent; chum salmon around 70 per cent and coho 80 per cent.

"That's the kind of depletion that's been taking place since 1900."

The ex-chief said the federal authorities have been told to "take your conservation measures elsewhere. We've always said preservation should be done on the saltchuck, not in the river."

Commercial fishermen take salmon by the ton out of the ocean, while in the Cowichan only about 100 Indians fish for food, Modeste said.

Koksilah and Cowichan reserves lie along three to four miles of the respective rivers just before they empty into Cowichan Bay.

From four to 30 persons are employed on full or part-time jobs in the program to restore stocks of fish in both rivers. Alphonse said results can be seen in chum runs and attention is now being directed to spring salmon.

Modeste said other major rivers on the island that could be affected by the court ruling are the Nanaimo, Qualicum and Campbell.

Trade surplus at $190M

OTTAWA (UPC) — Canada had a $190 million trade surplus during June when a sharp drop in exports was balanced by a similar drop in imports, Statistics Canada reported today.

The latest figures gave Canada a second quarter trade surplus of $492 million. The surplus through the first half of this year stood at $990 million, about half of the $1.86 billion surplus run up during the same period last year.

The figures, adjusted to remove seasonal fluctutations, showed that exports fell 6.1 percent — $310 million — to $4.8 billion in June. Exports had risen 4.8 percent in May although the surplus was only $215 million.

Nyerere speech fuels Rhodesia peace hope

Times News Services

LUSAKA — In a speech so conciliatory it left British diplomats staring in surprise, Tanzania today called for a cease-fire in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia and a new settlement that would include guarantees for its white minority.

Diplomats said the unexpectedly moderate speech by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, chairman of the five so-called "front-line" states backing the guerrilla war against the Zimbabwe Rhodesian government of Bishop Abel Muzorewa, could pave the way for a compromise on Rhodesia, the thorniest issue at the Commonwealth summit conference here.

Nyerere called for a cease-fire in the Zimbabwe-Rhodesian guerrilla war and new elections in which seats in parliament would be reserved for the white minority even "out of proportion to the numbers involved."

Alternatively, Nyerere suggested, a fund could be established to "buy the whites out peacefully."

Canada would be willing to join a team of international supervisors to monitor any new elections, according to Canadian Foreign Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald.

Nigeria, however, the biggest and richest African member, dismissed the idea, reviving fears it would quit the Commonwealth.

Nyerere's speech was so close in tone and position to that of Britain that diplomats who had been predicting a major confrontation over Zimbabwe-Rhodesia said they now believed a compromise would be reached to end the Commonwealth conference on an upbeat note.

For her part, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said that major changes in Zimbabwe-Rhodesia's constitution were needed along with a cease-fire and negotiations to reach a new settlement eliminating some of the powers now reserved for whites.

In the first such admission by an African leader, Nyerere conceded that the

$100,000 tab put on Socred error

Times Staff

The Social Credit government — after a seven-hour emergency session of the legislature — early this morning corrected a legislative error that had put a $25-million insurance company out of business for two days.

Premier Bill Bennett admitted the government made "a human error" but said he does not intend to stage a witchhunt to find the person responsible.

The emergency session — which may cost the taxpayers more than $100,000 — was called because the Seaboard Assurance Company Act, 1953, was mistakenly included in a list of 60 obsolete statutes being wiped off the books.

The error meant Seaboard Life, which carries out business across Canada but is chartered only in B.C., was no longer legally licensed.

A halt was placed on trading in Seaboard shares on the Vancouver Stock Exchange at the company's request.

Earlier fears about getting a quorum for the special legislative sitting were quickly relieved.

The mandatory 10-member quorum was easily fulfilled when 24 Socreds and 19 NDP members made it back for the legislative recall made by Lt.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving who had to return from a visit in the province's interior. The lawmakers had left on holidays only two days before.

Normally 31 Socreds and 26 NDP sit in the in the 57-seat assembly.

Bennett was forced to postpone an appearance at the opening of the B.C. Summer Games in Richmond, Opposition leader Dave Barrett was en route to San Diego, but flew back here from Vancouver.

Planes were sent to pick up MLAs from far and wide. A seaplane did a milk run, picking up Socred MLA Brian Smith on Hornby Island and NDP MLAs Karen Sanford in Comox and Don Lockstead in Powell River.

Some MLAs were incommunicado. Alan Passarel (NDP — Atlin) was somewhere over the Pacific near Hawaii and Colin Gabelmann (NDP — North Island) was on the West Coast Trail.

Charles Barber (NDP — Victoria), who discovered the government gaffe, said the $100,000-plus cost of recalling the house does not include the price of any civil liability suits that might be launched against the government.

Total cost of the fiasco will not be known for some time. Government officials will have to compile the costs of sending airplanes out to collect MLAs, extras salaries for legislative staffs, and the price of running the legislature.

The Seaboard affair

Rest assured, British Columbia. The province's reputation for political zaniness is secure after yesterday's legislative comedy show to resuscitate the Seaboard Life Insurance Co. of Vancouver.

What other province ever accidentally wiped out an active business, with several hundred shareholders and thousands of policyholders across Canada, and then had to call the legislature back just two days after it adjourned for the summer?

Canadians on the other side of the Rockies may have wondered what's happened out here. The political scene has been unusually quiet and sedate for the last few years. The colorful, bombastic politicians of former years, like W.A.C. Bennett and Phil Gaglardi, are gone from the main stage. Even former premier Dave Barrett, who seemed to make the headlines every other week when the NDP was in office, is now a quiet and sober political leader who wears a sensible blue suit.

But the affair of the Obsolete Statutes Repeal Act has abruptly reversed the trend.

Of course, it has more than just comic elements to it. The scrapping of the Seaboard Assurance Act of 1953, among 53 other redundant statutes, had serious ramifications for the Vancouver-based company.

Legally, for two days it did not exist and could not carry on normal business. Trading in Seaboard shares had to be suspended on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. When the news got out, many policyholders were rightly worried about their insurance coverage.

The goof also raised questions about the government. When Premier Bill Bennett established the deregulation department last December to cut red tape and bureaucratic delays, most praised it as a sincere effort to streamline the government. But more and more it has taken on the coloring of a public relations venture, and the Seaboard affair will live forever as its most ambitious attempt at simplifying things. It also may have scuttled the department for good.

British Columbians, especially businessmen and lawyers, will also wonder about the quality of the civil servants who prepared the legislation which sent Seaboard down the tube. It went through half a dozen stages in the government, all of them supervised by trained legal hands, and apparently nobody checked carefully enough to discover the actual effects of repealing the 26-year-old law.

Nobody is reassured by the government's remedy, to simply repeal the repeal act, thus reinstating all 54 old laws. Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, who is also deregulation minister, said the government wants to make sure such a thing will not happen again. Exactly. What other sleeping time bombs are hiding in the deregulation ministry?

Politically, too, the foul-up leaves the Bennett administration with a lot of egg on its face, no matter that it was blamed on honest, human error. Coming on the heels of a series of equally embarrassing cabinet squabbles, it gives the impression of a government coming apart at the seams.

It does not, as MLA Charles Barber claimed last night, "betray a cabinet in chaos, a government in disarray," preoccupied with its own internal problems and political infighting. Bennett's cabinet will be known henceforth as "the government that pushed Seaboard overboard." Somehow the traditional Socred refrain of efficient, businesslike government will not sound the same again.

A handle to hang it on

The addition of a handle to a case of beer has the breweries engaged in a frantic promotion campaign. They appear to believe that this amazing reform is the best thing since the invention of frosted corn flakes or tea bags.

On one company's familiar blue box, the new attachment is colored a contrasting bright red and if you still don't see it, the word "handle" is printed across it in big block letters. Isn't that helpful?

Another brand of brew practices a little oneupmanship. Its boxes have a handle — and are also divided like egg cartons to keep the bottles separate. No more fumbling with the empties falling over flat.

All the hoohaw might be good for something if the beer companies could honestly take credit for a genuine improvement, but didn't the same breweries get rid of the handle a few years back to save money and make things easier for their box-making machinery?

It was a good idea then, and it's nice of the breweries to bring it back, but please excuse the imbibers who aren't too hearty with praise after watching a dozen brown bottles rip away from their grasp on the way out of the liquor store.

How things work in Africa

LUSAKA, Zambia — The visitor comes to understand the way things work in Africa is that they don't. Not very well.

Thus, Canadians gathering at their high commissioner's residence for a cocktail party for Joe Clark and the Canadian delegation to the commonwealth conference tell visitors with a kind of perverse glee how they wait a year and a half to get their telephones repaired.

It's the same for plumbing, electricity, machinery, transportation . . . The Canadian visitors themselves have found out what it is like to get around Lusaka: impossible.

Taxis don't come, chartered buses don't show up, or they break down, police snarl the traffic that does move by sweeping the roads clear of vehicles whenever a dignitary goes on the move.

Stacks of bumf

The commonwealth secretariat announces that all the special long-distance telephone lines, special soundproof booths for radio reporters, telex and wirephoto machines have been located in Mulungushi Hall, where the conference is being held. Then Zambian security forces declare the hall off-limits to press.

The other telexes and long distance lines are at the National institute for public administration, miles away. And the transportation . . .

All this is by way of introduction to the one interesting little pamphlet handed out by the Zambian government and commonwealth secretariat in amongst the stacks and stacks of bumf and purple rhetoric for the conference.

It is called Why Zambia Re-opened the Southern Railway.

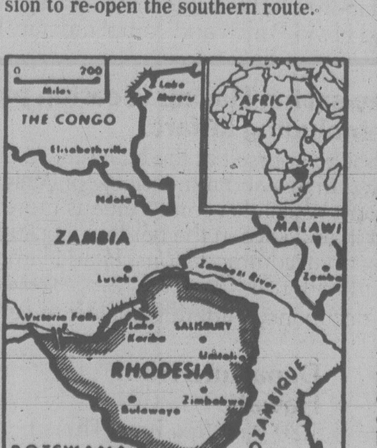
It is about the horrible problems Zambia experienced between Jan. 9, 1973 — when it closed its border with Rhodesia, thus severing southern rail and road links — and Oct. 6, 1978, when it was forced to re-open the railway or face economic disaster.

Zambia is landlocked. With the Rhodesian route to the sea closed, and one or two other lesser routes out of commission, the route to Dar Es Salaam via road and the Chinese-built Tazara Railway became the critical transportation artery: By 1976 more than 80 per cent of Zambia's exports and imports were moving through Dar Es Salaam.

But with what efficiency?

Tazara started full operations in August, 1976. Its expected capacity from Zambia to Dar Es Salaam was 80,000 tonnes per month in either direction. The best achievement was only about half that figure.

Out of 1,800 railway cars, only 1,450 were serviceable: The rest were in workshops, and out of 85 mainline locomotives, only 39 were serviceable when the government made the decision to re-open the southern route.



SOUTHERN AFRICA
. . . Zambia locked in by Rhodesia

The target for railway car turnaround time was 22 days. In fact, it was averaging between 35 and 45 days.

On the Tanzam highway, the transporter is Zambia Tanzania Road Services, a company owned jointly by the two governments and an Italian firm called Intersomer.

The ZTRS operational fleet on the Tanzam highway was 180 trucks out of 520 — the rest were in workshops awaiting repair.

This was partly because of inexperienced mechanics. It was also in part because ZTRS, lacking foreign exchange, could not purchase replacement vehicles or spare parts. Shortage of foreign exchange also caused ZTRS subcontractors to cancel their contractual arrangements because of the difficulty they had in repatriating their earnings from Zambia in convertible currencies.

Next, problems at the port of Dar Es Salaam. Because of the slowness of Tazara and ZRTS in moving goods destined for Zambia out of Dar Es Salaam, the port area had to be used for storage, a function for which it was not intended.

This congestion further slowed cargo handling and general administration, leading to a steadily decreasing volume of cargo handled by Dar longshoremen — from 61 tonnes average per shift in 1974 to 41 tonnes average per shift in 1978.

It also increased the average number of days ships waiting to load or unload Zambian cargo had to hang about before they got berthing space — an average of 30 or more days at demurrage charges of $3,000 per day per ship.

Ferry bottleneck

The upshot of all this was that there was no way the fertilizer Zambia desperately needed for its planting season could make it in time through the port of Dar Es Salaam. So it was decided to bring the fertilizer in via the port of Beira in Mozambique.

Only for one reason or another the trucks that were needed didn't show up and the port administration got jammed and nothing moved. So it was decided to bring fertilizer in via another port — the Mozambiquan capital of Maputo — and move it by rail to Zambia via Botswana.

Only the promised facilities for offloading the rail cars at the Botswana transshipment point could not be made available and the trucks to pick up the fertilizer at the point didn't materialize. And someone hadn't calculated how much of a bottleneck a ferry on the road route would be.

So it was decided to open the rail route to Rhodesia, and bring in fertilizer via that route. Which is what happened.

This isn't a new story. But the details are interesting. These are Africa's problems.

Squeezed out

Re your recent editorial Stuck Record (July 13), and the ensuing correspondence from Messrs. Geddes (Support Mayhew, July 21) and Wheaton (Back Up Mayhew, July 20). One gathers that Geddes speaks for the population at large, which I question, and from Wheaton that the Victoria area has been suffering from the blight for the past 30 years and is a deserted village.

I am not altogether qualified to give an objective rebuttal to their remarks in as much as I was "squeezed" out of my home by a developer and had to leave Victoria, not because I wanted to but because a developer required my property to enhance his holdings and annual income.

I am not going to suggest to Geddes that he return to Alberta. However, I fail to read anything remotely resembling common sense in his remarks. Furthermore, if some of the developments that have been perpetrated in these parts over the past ten years were "sensible and well planned," I would like to see them! Condominiums where it made no difference where you were located, everyone heard your every conversation, and no matter who in the building flushed the toilet everyone else heard it — sensible and well planned all right!

A developer from the "Wild Rose Country" erected an out and out monstrosity in the downtown area some years ago and the city fathers found it a near impossibility to prevail upon him to clean up the site when the structure was complete.

I would ask Mr. Wheaton to clarify his statements with some facts regarding the local stagnation he speaks of. From where I sit development has brought vast change in Victoria and the outlying areas over the past 30 years. Not all of it good. We had a period when it was almost out of control, witness some of the near-instant slums that were constructed a few years ago.

Mayhew's statement that 1,000 workers could have had jobs for 11 months if the projects he enumerates could have had the go ahead also seems a little flimsy. As I recall, when he arrived, he was going to bring in various types of business as well as light industry.

One gets somewhat out of patience with the cry of "Red tape halts big development" when in many cases people are merely standing up for their rights. While some of the developers get annoyed when hey are not allowed to do just what they think is good in any situation, i.e. "What Bullmoose thinks is good is good for the entire area." And no comments allowed from anyone! — W. A. Drummond, Duncan.

Running wild

While I am an admirer of dogs, I am fed up with their running uncontrolled in our parks and on public beaches. On several occasions recently my young children have been chased and badly frightened by large, barking animals whose owners seemed amazed that anyone should object to their dogs running free on public land.

If we allowed our children to terrorize strangers and defecate in public places, there would be an immediate protest. Why should we tolerate such behavior from dogs?

All Victoria municipalities should have bylaws requiring any dogs walked on public property to be leashed and owners to collect any messes left by their pets.

If this issue also concerns you, speak to your aldermen. — M. Brigden, 3195 Norfolk Road.

Ayatollah Khomeini has decreed no rock or Bach for Iran.

No rock for Iran

I have just learned Ayatollah Khomeini wishes to silence Bach and rock, the latest in a long series of proposals he has made to imprison life within the strictures of his dogma.

Now he is a Moslem, with a desire to have his country live according to the laws of the Koran, laws which encompass the whole range of social and moral behavior. As a devout believer he no doubt has a particular conception of a Creator, one who presumably would demand that he execute all traitors, flog all adulterers, sever the hands of thieves, cover the faces of Iran's women and mute Beethoven's piano.

Is He who created this cosmos that tyrannical and prudish? Somehow I doubt it. This killing of what is free, sensuous and poetic surely pronounces the impoverishment of His imagination. Mohammed the prophet instituted his revelations because at that time the Arab people needed to be unified, needed to root themselves in a common mythology and tradition. Only by a highly repressive and fundamentalist doctrine of morality could such a cohesiveness be created amidst Arab civilization. But as the final statement of the character of God, such precepts nowadays lag far behind the unfolding of His mysterious and wondrously aesthetic script.

I ask the Ayatollah to exalt what he has abased — the potential for human beings to master their fate and discover a relationship with the universe that begins to account for the playfulness of Picasso, the humour of Chaplin, the skill of Pele, the intensity of Aeschylus, the serenity of Buddha, the brilliance of Michelangelo, the sensitivity of Mozart — and, indeed, the charisma of Mohammed. Whether there is a God or not, we must above all recognize that religious feeling attains its apotheosis in the celebration of what has expressed itself most beautifully, most subtly, most imaginatively — there is where eternity breathes. — Robin W. Carlsen, 1225 Sunnyside Avenue.

Stand on guard

I am at least one Canadian who is not in hysterical acquiescence to the imminent influx of the Boat People.

First of all, I would remind fellow Christians that the Good Samaritan did not take his protege home with him. I have a friend who was a missionary in Ethiopia for 23 years. She says that the only real solution is to help them in their own milieu. Another friend was with human resources in British Columbia for many years in a supervisory capacity. She too confirms this, in view of the heartbreak she has seen among refugees, some of whom were never able to adjust to their new environment.

Let us be truly humane where the refugees are concerned. We are on an emotional binge and had better slow down and think before we do irreparable damage.

At this time it is irrelevant what race, color or creed immigrants may be. The fact is, we can't afford any more population for the following reasons:

The first is energy consumption. At the present time we are being told we need to resort to nuclear power, despite the threat it may pose to our very existence. Some eastern Canadians pay as much as $300 a month just to heat their homes.

Second, two-thirds of our vast area is desert covered with ice and snow much of the year, making it necessary to import most of our food.

Thirdly, at the present time we have the highest unemployment rate in the Western world, and our own economy will soon reflect that of our neighbor to the south where a depression is pending.

Fourth, government spending is the major cause of inflation, and this refugee program will be very expensive.

Fifthly, it has been brought to my attention by a sponsor of the first group of "boat people" to arrive in Victoria that many have intestinal parasites. Despite this, they are employed in the handling of food. This makes one wonder if bubonic plague and smallpox might be a problem later on, along with other maladies heretofore unknown on this continent.

I resent the implication of some that I am a racist because I wish to sing "O, Canada, we stand on guard for thee," and to act accordingly.

Let us apply reason and care to an emotional problem. — Sydney Carroll, 4657 Amblewood Drive.
